Tribune Show Sets American Styles

AWARD $7,500 IN PRIZES FOR VITAL NEW FASHIONS

Highest Honors Go to an Artist in California.

BY MARCIA WINN.

American fashion designers demonstrated their prowess yesterday in dramatic and brilliant manner.

In three fashion shows held in the W-G-N audience studio in conclusion of THE TRIBUNE's American Fashions competition they showed that, given proper encouragement, they can create styles hitherto unparalleled outside of Paris salons.

Their Gifts to Fashion.

In 48 magnificent designs, selected by Mrs. Grace Pickering, fashion authority, from among 12,491 entries to be finalists in the $7,500 contest to stimulate American fashions, they brought these new elements to the world of fashion:

Vitality, youth, spirit, grace, a new use of subtle color, and sculptured line and designs which drew success from cut, line, and exquisite detail rather than from bizarre trick or ornamentation.

New styles were born, new colors and accents were introduced, and new names were made. A young California fashion artist, who heretofore was known only as one who sketched the work of somebody else, walked away with the $3,000 grand prize.

Four in One Dinner Suit Wins.

The winning designer, as she now may be called, is Mrs. Kathryn Bill, 30 years old, of Arcadia, Cal. Her design, a superb four-in-one dinner suit of black crêpe and cloth of gold, displayed the acumen, artful knowledge of line, innate sophistication, and good taste of a seasoned designer.

A New York designer, Patrick, was awarded second prize of $2,000. He entered two designs, a medieval bridal gown of embroidered silver lame with a moyen age headdress and a bridal attendant's gown of filmy white net accented with dozens of ermine tails. The $2,000 award was given for the latter, but he received a $50 prize for the bridal gown.

Undertaker Wins $500.

Three prizes of $500 each were given.

One went to Donald C. Frist, Clinton, Ind., undertaker, for his romantic, wistful evening gown of pale pink net over pink taffeta, its bouffant skirt splattered with pale pink pond lilies which fall in a diagonal sweep from hip to hem.

Another $500 prize went to Nancy Layton of New York for a dark gray wool daytime ensemble. The third went to Emmet Joyce, another New York designer, for an evening gown in which he combined black silk jersey and heavy white lace with startling, subtle effect.

Three Shows in Day.

The winning designs were selected in the course of the day's three fashion shows, at which the judges and the public alike had their first glimpse of what The Tribune's nation-wide fashion contest had produced. All the work was that of American designers, but most of it was from ambitious, unknown young designers.

So successful was the entire show, so beautiful was each of the 48 finalists, that requests for its repetition poured in from all sides. Two important bookings already have been made for it. The International Silk guild will present it next Tuesday night at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York, and the Chicago Automobile show will present it in the Interna-

SOME SKETCHES OF THOSE WHOSE SKETCHES WON

There's as much variety among dress designers as among dresses. Consider the prize winners named last night in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's $7,500 American Fashions contest.

One is a town undertaker, equally adept at laying you out in a shroud or dressing you for the Easter parade. Another was tossed by his mother from the burning deck of the General Slocum when that steamer went down in the East river, New York City, in 1904 with 1,031 of her passengers.

A noted New York designer is less proud of her own accomplishments than of the radio career of her husband. Another designer, born in France, has 13 brothers and sisters. The father of still another is a professor at the United States Naval academy at Annapolis. A rugged, pipe smoking Milwaukeean got his start as a designer from the WPA.

A Quaker's Granddaughter.

Among the other prize winners is the granddaughter of a pioneer in an Indiana Quaker settlement. The Quakers regarded any frills in dress as evidence of worldly pride.

Mrs. Kathryn Bill of Arcadia, Cal., a suburb of Los Angeles, winner of the $3,000 grand prize, says her career began at the age of 5, when her drawing of a grotesquely misshapen tree was held up before her class in kindergarten as an impressionistic masterpiece.

Her husband runs a bicycle shop, and that suits her, because bicycling is her favorite sport. She has a daughter, Judy, and has sold drawings for the nursery walls of Hollywood movie stars. She is head sketch artist for a leading Hollywood designer, but her winning design in THE TRIBUNE contest is the first creation of her very own.

Scuttled by Fall of Paris.

The town undertaker, who won one of the three $500 prizes, is Donald C. Frist, doing business for both the dead and the living at Clinton, Ind. [population, 7,000]. Frist was doing well as a free lance designer between New York and Paris when the bottom dropped out of the luxury clothing market during the depression. Then his father died, and he went back to Clinton to take over the family business.

Another $500 winner, Emmet Joyce of New York, is thankful to his teachers during his school days in Chicago. They let him draw for 12 years, he says, with never an interruption for arithmetic. He rarely uses sketch designs nowadays, but creates directly from materials. Joyce was inducted into the army two days before the 1918 armistice.

Made Her Own Clothes.

The third $500 winner, Nancy Layton of New York, was a millinery designer for a fashionable salon until customers begged her to let them copy her clothes, which she made herself. She was given a tailor after that, and now her department is one of the largest in the business.

The youngest successful competitor, Bill Blass, who won $50, is 18 years old. He complains that in Fort Wayne, Ind., where he lives, "a male designer is still somewhat of an oddity." He began his career designing dresses for girl friends who wanted to make a hit at the high school proms.

Robert E. Finney, another $50 winner, wasn't too proud to work as a window trimmer in a dry goods store in El Paso, Tex., when nothing better was offered an ambitious young style creator.

AMERICANS SHIP SMALL ARMS TO GREAT BRITAIN

New York, Oct. 2 [Special].—The first shipment of small arms to British civilians for use against Nazi invaders was started on its way today when the American committee for the defense of British homes delivered a large packing case to be placed on a freighter bound for Great Britain.

The guns, ranging in size from .32 caliber pearl-handled revolvers to hard-hitting rifles and ten-gauge shotguns, were part of a collection of arms and ammunition made by the committee since its first appeal three weeks ago.

THE TAMMANY FARMERS

Under the leadership of the dapper Tammany politician, Mr. Eddie Flynn, who invented the Bronx cheer for Mr. Roosevelt to sit in, if and when, and who is guiding the Democratic national party in its assault upon the third term tradition, the missionaries carry the torch of enlightenment hither and thither, under the impression that democracy means the Democratic party.

Chamberlain Out in British Cabinet Shift

LONDON, Oct. 3, Thursday (AP).—The ministry of information today announced that former Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain has resigned as lord president of the council, a cabinet post, and that the resignation has been accepted by the king. The bulletin said Chamberlain would be succeeded by Sir John Anderson, minister of home security.

Other cabinet changes announced include:

Herbert Morrison replaces Anderson as secretary of state for the home department and minister of home security.

Two Named to War Cabinet.

Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir Kingsley Wood and Labor Minister Ernest Bevin were made members of the war cabinet.

Sir Andrew Duncan was named minister of supply and Lieut. Col. J. T. C. Moore-Brabazon, minister of transport.

Sir John Reith was named minister of works and public buildings and first commissioner of works—a new cabinet post.

Lord Hewart resigned as chief justice of England and was replaced by Viscount Caldecote. Lord Hewart's resignation is to be effective Oct. 12.

Viscount Cranborne, Capt. Lyttelton and Lieut. Col. Moore-Brabazon were named to the privy council.

Chamberlain Ill and Criticized.

There had been rumors for some time that Chamberlain, in ill health and long the object of criticism from some quarters for his "appeasement policy," might resign.

His letter of resignation, addressed to Prime Minister Winston Churchill under date of Oct. 1, referred to Chamberlain's recent operation and said: "It has become evident to me that it will be a long time before I could hope to be able to perform the duties which are essential for a member of the war cabinet."

OFFICER-PRIEST SAVES DE GAULLE LANDING PARTY

Ignores Wound and Heavy Shellfire.

(This is the first detailed account of dramatic events leading up to the costly three day British supported effort of Gen. Charles de Gaulle's "free French" expedition to occupy Dakar, capital of French West Africa. The British abandoned the battle on Sept. 25).

WITH THE DE GAULLE DAKAR EXPEDITION, Sept. 29 (AP).—[Delayed.]—Heroism of a naval officer-priest, whose white flagged "free French" landing party touched off the battle of Dakar, prevented the capture of former French deputies who tried to win West Africa bloodlessly over to Gen. Charles de Gaulle's Anglo-French cause.

He was Capt. G. Thierry d'Argenlieu, who stood erect in a small boat under a hail of machine gun fire, even after being wounded, and directed withdrawal of the landing party, made up of members of the French parliament serving in De Gaulle's legion. D'Argenlieu is a priest in civil life.

Altho sailors were lining the rails of French warships and commercial vessels in Dakar port, no effort was made at first to halt the landing party.

Officers Bar Landing.

Just as the party's two boats reached the dock, however, an automobile drew up. A young ensign with a drawn revolver and a lieutenant stepped out and refused to let any members except D'Argenlieu land.

The lieutenant shook hands cordially with D'Argenlieu, who asked authorization for his delegation to land. This was granted by the commander of port police, Capt. Lorfevre.

When D'Argenlieu declared he was carrying a letter for Gov. Gen. Pierre Boisson of West Africa and the admiral commanding the port, the chief of police telephoned the governor for instructions.

Boisson's answer came eight minutes later. Its tenor was indicated by Capt. Lorfevre, who ordered the party to put back to sea at once.

Immediate Arrest Ordered.

"And if we refused?" D'Argenlieu demanded.

"I would be obliged to put you under arrest," the captain replied.

He scarcely had finished speaking when an orderly rushed up with a written order for the immediate arrest of the entire party.

Meanwhile, the young ensign who had greeted the party with drawn revolver jumped aboard a trawler and ordered its machine guns trained on the party.

The hesitation of the gun crew gave the De Gaulle delegation time to reach the outer limits of the harbor, where they came under heavy fire from guns on the moles.

Destroyer Lost, Vichy Reveals.

VICHY, France, Oct. 2 (AP).—Loss of the French destroyer L'Audacieux, 2,569 tons, in last week's fighting at Dakar was announced today by the Petain government.

61,459 QUALIFY TO CAST VOTES ON PRESIDENCY

The election commissioners announced yesterday that 61,459 new names have been added to the registration lists since June 1 for the Presidential election of Nov. 5.

Registration was heavy thruout the day in the city's 139 fire stations and in the city hall. Tabulation of the registration of Tuesday showed that 7,975 women and 6,407 men added their names to the list during the day. Women have consistently outnumbered men in registering, sometimes as much as 35 per cent.

Couple Save Their Dimes and Pay for a Baby Boy

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 2 [Special].—A little more than a year ago Mr. and Mrs. James S. Povondra paid for their baby girl, June Ann, with 700 nickels they had saved for that purpose. Next time they wanted a son, so they began saving dimes. They left the hospital yesterday with James, born Sept. 22, paid for with 375 dimes.

Order Arrest of Nitti Gang's Jury Tamperer

The state struck on three fronts yesterday at gangster control of the Building Service Employés International union and the Chicago Bartenders' union, Local 278. The day's developments:

1. State's Attorney Courtney ordered the arrest of Ben Lynn, or Lind, named as the man who attempted to influence the grand jury before Monday's reported indictment of Frank [The Enforcer] Nitti and six others for piracy of the Bartenders' union.

2. The prosecutor disclosed that Frederick Evans, known as the financial genius of the Capone mob, also was indicted with Nitti on a charge of conspiracy to extort by threats.

3. George Scalise, ex-convict pander, was reported to have been named in a true bill voted by the grand jury, accusing him of embezzlement of $118,000 in union funds during his presidency of the Building Service Employés' International. Scalise is already under conviction in New York for stealing funds of the union, and is facing charges of evading the New York state income tax.

Tells of Phoning Juror.

Lynn, who is 38 years old, is accused of persuading a Milwaukeean, an officer of a concern employing one of the grand jurors, to phone the juror and ask him to refuse to vote an indictment against Nitti.

The Milwaukeean is Clifton Thatcher, assistant sales manager of A. & P. stores in that city. He admitted to Assistant State's Attorney Emmett Moynihan and Lieut. Thomas Kelly that he had made the phone call after Lynn had told him that the investigation was merely a Chicago political fight.

"He said it would do him some good with the Bartenders' union if I could get the juror to go along," said Thatcher. "I didn't realize the seriousness of the thing. I will do all possible to help locate Lynn."

Once a Café Bouncer.

Thatcher added that he had known Lynn since boyhood and that the man once had been a bouncer at the Granada café.

Evans, the other man sought, is understood to have been introduced into the society of Nitti, Murray Humphreys, and the late Mike Carrozzo, union czar, by no less a figure than Jack Guzik, ex-collector for the Capone gang.

This was when Guzik retired from the more robust of the Capone gang activities and became a gambler. Evans, described as a financial wizard, soon set up a discount corporation, handling commercial loans.

Evans traveled extensively with Scalise, accompanying him to the American Federation of Labor convention in Atlantic City, N. J., last spring according to Assistant State's Attorney William B. Crawford. Evans was present when Murray Humphreys, late of the Capone gang, informed George B. McLane, business agent of the bartenders' union, that Louis Romano was taking it over.

Takes Message for Humphreys.

At another time, when McLane was to meet Humphreys for a conference, Evans was there instead, Crawford said, and handed him Humphreys' message. It is understood that the grand jury also indicted Thomas Panton, assistant business agent of the union, along with Evans, Nitti, Humphreys, Louis [Little New York] Campagna, Paul Ricca, and Romano last Monday.

The true bill reported to have been voted yesterday against Scalise charges that he ordered subordinates in the building employés' union to pay $3,000 a month to him, but to carry it as being transferred to a vault account.

The alleged embezzlements were at the expense of 70,000 scrub women, window washers, janitors, and elevator operators who belong to the union.

BRITAIN SUSPENDS CHILD REFUGEES' FLIGHT OVERSEAS

LONDON, Oct. 2 (AP).—Abandonment "until further notice" of the plan to send British children overseas to escape falling bombs was announced tonight by the government.

Seventy-seven children were lost when the steamer City of Benares was sunk on Sept. 17 and the government's statement pointed to the loss to illustrate the dangers faced in crossing the sea, even under convoy, in stormy weather.

NEW DEAL TOYS WITH DEFENSE, WILLKIE WARNS

Its Foreign Policy Called Warlike.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland, O., Oct. 2.—National defense, the great subject upon which this Presidential campaign finally turns, was dealt with in a complete and realistic manner by the Republican Presidential nominee, Wendell L. Willkie, in an address at the Cleveland auditorium tonight.

He accused the Roosevelt administration of playing politics with national preparedness—and our safety—and said that he had little confidence that the present foreign policy "is calculated to preserve peace."

Willkie proposed that we "stop talking and get to work; set about making this nation in fact the greatest nation in the world."

Calls the Task Hard.

The task before us is grim and hard, he said, but he promised victory along the lines of America's genius for gigantic productive effort.

"We can still lead the world out of depression and disaster and despair and war," he said. "We can still lead the world toward prosperity and progress and peace and hope."

Willkie was given a mammoth reception. Every inch of the huge terminal station was packed when he arrived and Euclid avenue, where he led a parade of 65 cars to his hotel, was another mass of humanity in noisy welcome. The auditorium was packed for two hours before his arrival and the adjoining music hall was full to the top gallery. The capacity of both halls is 20,000.

Gov. John W. Bricker, Mayor Harold H. Burton, nominee for senator, and Joseph W. Martin Jr., chairman of the Republican national committee, addressed the rally before the arrival of Willkie.

Willkie entered the hall while the great audience was standing, waving flags and singing "America." He was given a deafening ovation. As he proceeded with his criticism of the administration's foreign policy, he was interrupted with applause at nearly every sentence.

Willkie's immediate subject of discussion was the latest pact between Germany, Italy, and Japan, a pact, he said, which shows that these countries are thinking of the United States in terms of war.

Links Roosevelt to Munich.

Until we have a strong defense system, Willkie declared, we cannot have a foreign policy that means anything. This was his first plank.

He reviewed the provocative and futile steps taken by this country to stop the aggressor nations on their path of blood and conquest, and renewed his charge that the President had a hand in the Munich pact which started Hitler on his march.

America, he said, is no longer a strong nation or a great nation, because of the failure to prepare the army, navy, and air force adequately. The largest equipped force we could put in the field today, he said, is only 75,000 men. He noted the requirements of an army of 750,000 men and said it would take from 13 to 27 months to get them.

The New Dealers, Willkie said, could see Hitler advancing but they did not get ready. He spoke of the war resources board report which was never made public. The inner circle of New Dealers were afraid, he said, to give away their powers, and thereby caused a nine month delay in preparedness.

Not Getting Prepared.

"The reason that we are unprepared is because the present administration has played politics with preparedness. It has played politics with our safety. We are not prepared and we are not getting prepared."

Referring to Japan's inclusion in the Rome-Berlin axis, a pact which he said was aimed directly at America, he declared:

"I want to ask this question: Where are we? How did we get into this position? What have we done, overtly or secretly, to cause the most ruthless states in the world to make this aggressive declaration?

"I say we must stop right where we are. We must stop and look about us and take stock of our affairs. Let us stop and think. Let us talk among ourselves. Let us reason. Let us find out what our foreign policy really is. Let us determine what it really ought to be.

"For my part I have little confidence that the policy of the last seven and a half years has been the policy best calculated to promote peace.

No Confidence in New Deal.

"I have still less confidence that the policy at the present time is calculated to preserve peace. And I have no confidence at all in the ability of the present administration to protect our peace with an adequate defense system.

"What the American people want above everything else is a defense system so strong that none of these nations will dare to strike at us, from whatever motives. And until the people have that defense system they don't want any more international incidents. They don't want any more dramatic gestures. They don't want any more swashbuckling words. Before talking any more they want to get down to business.

"They want to build themselves an army, a navy, and above all an air force. They want to make themselves strong.

Defense Comes First.

"That is what I stand for. I say that the first plank of our foreign policy is a defense system. I'll even go further than that. Until we get a defense system we cannot have a foreign policy that means anything at all.

"For many years the American people have been told that theirs is the greatest and most powerful country on earth. We did everything in a big way. We produced the most steel. We consumed the most rubber. We had the most gold. We had the tallest buildings and the longest concrete roads—more sedans and more radios than any other country. We were so great in these ways—so it was said—that one word from the United States to a foreign ruler would make him tremble in his boots.

"All that we had to do to maintain peace and protect our interest was to throw the 'weight of our influence in this direction or that.' Since that time we have told various countries not to do certain things of which we disapproved. We told Italy not to go into Ethiopia. Now, Italy hasn't as many skyscrapers and radios and hard surfaced roads as we have, but she disregarded our pleas.

Proud of Munich.

"We talked the nations into holding a conference at Munich in 1938—as the American white paper says, 'Mussolini's anguished pressure, seconded by the President's appeal, had been effective.' The administration was very proud of the results of that conference. The then secretary of war made a speech in which he declared that 'the cool mind, the skilled fingers of one man'—meaning Mr. Roosevelt—had resolved the war crisis.

"Yet every one knows how that crisis was really resolved. Not only was Czecho-Slovakia sacrificed to Hitler, but Europe was at war within a year.

"The fact is that in the eyes of ruthless foreign states we are neither a strong nation nor a great nation. Nothing we have to say is of any consequence to them. Because they see how ineffective we have become. Our vast strength has not been brought forth. It still is 'on order.'

Proposes We Get to Work.

"I propose, therefore, that we stop talking, I propose that we get to work. I propose to set about making this nation in fact the greatest nation in the world. That is the objective that I lay before you. To reach that objective our industries and our man power must be made effective. They must be made effective for domestic prosperity, and they must be made effective for defense.

"In recent weeks I have explained some of my ideas about domestic prosperity. Tonight I want to examine the problem of defense.

"The defense job that lies ahead of us is appalling in magnitude. We need an adequate army. Whatever the size this force should be, the fact is that the largest force we could put into the field today, completely equipped, is 75,000.

Our One-Ocean Navy.

"The navy that we have is a one-ocean navy which can only protect both oceans if the Panama canal is kept open. Yet the Panama canal is impossible to protect against the explosion of a ship inside one of the locks.

"In the light of European battle experience, all but a few hundred of our airplanes are obsolete.

"These are unpleasant facts. But if ever there was a time to face facts, now is the time. What must we do to change those facts? Let me give you just a few examples. Official testimony given to congress this spring shows that for an army of 750,000 men we require the following:

"We need 3,750 mortars, these are guns that can be quickly used to throw fire over a high place. It will take at least 13 months to get them, if we get going now.

"We need 120 105 millimeter guns. To get them will take 13 months, if we get going now.

"We need about 2,400 tanks. To get them will take 13 months, if we get going now.

"We need 1,400 antitank guns. To get them will take 21 months, if we get going now.

"We need 240,000 semi-automatic rifles. They are the rifles that can shoot faster and more accurately than the rifles of old war days. To get them will take 21 months. If we get going now.

"We need 300 90 millimeter anti-aircraft guns. These are the guns which shoot several miles up into the air and they are vital to the defense of our cities. We haven't got a single one of those guns. To get them, and the direction finders and height finders that go with them, will take 27 months, if we get going now.

"Having only a one-ocean navy we need to make the Panama canal safe by building two sets of locks, so that if one is destroyed we may use the other. To get those locks will take six years.

Navy Needs Seven Years.

"And, of course, eventually we need a two-ocean navy. But that objective will take seven years. And besides that, there are not even any paper plans available to local officials instructing them how to protect the public from air raid damage to water works, gas mains, or sewage. In those matters so vital to health and life we are as unprepared as if Adolf Hitler had never existed.

"That we should be exposed to air attacks may sound improbable, but my authority is the third-term candidate, who described the danger vividly some months ago in a radio talk.

Late and Confused.

"The plain fact is that we are late. We are terribly late. And when I consider how terribly late we are, how confused, how devoid of plan or accomplishment, I cannot believe that the American people will dare to entrust their welfare for another four years to the present administration. It is claimed on behalf of this administration that it saw more clearly than any one else what the course of events was to be. But if it saw it all so clearly why are we in this terrible plight?

"On the basis of the information that he gets from the state department and the army and navy, the present third-term candidate was able to predict the war a year ago last June, four months before it started. But three months later, in August, he had done nothing about it.

"At that time the acting secretaries of war and navy urged him to put into immediate operation detailed plans for the procurement of military supplies, especially powder, guns, and airplanes. They pointed out that some items took as long as one, two, or even three years to obtain, and that in many cases the capacity to produce them did not even exist.

The result of this pressure was the war resources board, with Edward Stettinius as chairman. Now this board corresponded closely with the type of board that the war department had planned for just such an emergency. That plan is not secret. It is called the industrial mobilization plan of 1939.

Result of 15 Year Study.

"That plan was the result of more than 15 years of study as required by the national defense act of 1920.

"It is safe to say that no democratic country in the world had made so much progress toward planning how to meet an emergency, as had the United States. The Stettinius board, which included some of the ablest men in the country, was itself an outgrowth of that plan. And the report that it submitted to the President very properly adhered closely to the plan.

"But what happened?

"The inner circle of New Dealers became alarmed lest, in our efforts to defend America, some of their arbitrary powers might be taken away from them. They set to work to sabotage the Stettinius board. And, in September, 1939, Americans were mystified to hear that the work of the board would be terminated.

Report Never Made Public.

"The mystification of the average citizen arose from the fact that the board was dismissed just after war had broken out in Europe. And to this day its report has never been made public. It has not even been made available to congress.

"The dismissal of the Stettinius board cost us a delay of nine months—nine long months while the other democracies were collapsing in Europe.

"My fellow Americans, before you dismiss that delay as inconsequential, think what nine months—nine extra months in which to prepare—would mean to Great Britain right now.

"I stand before you tonight and I say: We must become prepared. We must begin before anything else happens and before anything else is said. We must begin now. And I know where to begin. We must begin at the source of our former greatness, our former power. We must begin with American industry.

Assails Patchwork System.

"It is industry that once made us the greatest nation in the world, and it is industry that will do that again today. We have a genius for industrial production. In building a defense system we are in effect building a new industry—an armament industry. We must remember that. We cannot make ourselves strong by a patchwork method.

"We cannot take a little from this industry and a little from that industry; we cannot hope in that way to build anything that will frighten Adolf Hitler. We must unify industry with coöperation of every worker, manager, and owner in the United States.

"I can win that coöperation for you. I have confidence in the workers and managers of American industry. And they have confidence in me.

"As President of the United States I would not seek power. I would consider it my duty to protect the people's power, and to return to them any temporary powers that they might grant me for the purpose of defending them. The problem of American defense is a twofold problem. It is a problem of coördination and a problem of capacity.

Favors More Aid to Britain.

"I would continue my efforts to aid the heroic British people—the only people in the world today who are fighting with their lives for liberty. I would aid Britain even if it meant the sacrifice of some speed in building up our own airfleet. I would do so because the longer Britain holds out the more time we have in which to prepare ourselves.

"I favor, finally, taking intelligent steps to coördinate our defense program with that of Canada. And I favor economic coöperation with our neighbors in the south—not with New Deal schemes but on the basis of expanding private enterprise. I favor giving those neighbors every incentive to rid themselves of the German fifth column, which is active in many of them.

"We must hurry with these things. The time is short and the life we have to defend is exceedingly precious.

"The task before us is grim and hard. But we can still lead the world out of depression and disaster and despair and war. We can still lead the world toward prosperity and progress and peace and hope.

The Battle of America.

"I have called this the battle of America. The battle of America is a battle for liberty. It belongs right here at home. It is a battle to release once more the gigantic productive forces of our people, and to provide for their impregnable defense. It is a battle to create a society strong enough and effective enough to maintain itself in peace.

"In that battle I promise you victory. I promise you victory because I believe in victory. With all my heart, and all my soul, I believe in victory. And I promise you victory before it is too late."

WILLKIE INVADES 'TOUGH SPOTS' IN INDUSTRIAL OHIO

Finds Rural Areas Hold Deciding Vote.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

On Board Willkie Special Train, Oct. 2 [Special].—Wendell L. Willkie's reception in Ohio today, where he campaigned from Toledo to Cleveland, proved to him clearly the lines upon which this Presidential race is formed — the industrial sections against the business elements—with the farm and rural population in the deciding middle. All indications point to a close decision in this, the mother state of Presidents.

Willkie was well received in the smaller towns along the route of his train, but in the factory sections of Toledo he faced cool workers.

"Roosevelt forever," was the placard held up by one group as the Willkie motor caravan wound its way thru Toledo.

Courageous in "Tough Spots."

Willkie had his wish to visit all the "tough spots." This was politically tough for him, without doubt. He stood up in his open car, however, smiling and waving, ignoring boos, courageous in the face of it all.

Willkie's reception in downtown Toledo, however, was a hearty one, the streets packed with people, the air filled with confetti and streamers, the crowd welcoming him with cheers, bands and banners. In front of one big factory the office workers on one side of the street cheered for Willkie while a crowd of men in overalls across the street yelled for Roosevelt.

Gov. John W. Bricker, who is said to be leading Willkie in state polls, accompanied the nominee in his Ohio trip, giving him enthusiastic introductions in Toledo and other cities.

Burton Joins Party.

A strong delegation of Ohioans accompanied the Willkie party, including Mayor Harold H. Burton of Cleveland, Republican candidate for senator; State Chairman Ed D. Schorr, National Committeeman David S. Ingalls, and Katherine Kennedy Brown, national committeewoman.

Willkie devoted much of his speaking today to the foreign situation. He began at Adrian, Mich., with a discussion of the effect of the new three power agreement. He talked of this also in Toledo.

FIVE BOYS CONFESS THROWING EGGS AT WILLKIE IN MICHIGAN

Pontiac, Mich., Oct. 2 [Special].—Five high school boys admitted today they hurled eggs at Wendell Willkie, one of which spattered Mrs. Willkie's dress and hose, when Willkie was here on Monday.

The city council, the high school student council, the school superintendent, the mayor, the governor, and the President of the United States spoke out to denounce their act. Telegraphed protests came from as far away as San Francisco.

The eldest of the boys, Bruce Bragan, 17 years old, was arraigned in court and told to come back Oct. 21 for sentencing. The others, two of them 15 years old and two 16, were referred to juvenile authorities.

"It was a very foolish thing I did," said Bruce. "I didn't realize it at the time."

LEHMAN REPLIES TO CRITICISM IN WILLKIE SPEECH

Albany, N. Y., Oct 2 (AP).—Democratic Governor Lehman, answering Wendell L. Willkie's criticism of his assertion President Roosevelt's defeat would comfort world dictators, said today the real leadership of the Republican party is "having the effect of causing him to compromise his own best judgment" on foreign policy.

Lehman asserted the Republican Presidential nominee's interpretation of his statement, made in the keynote speech at the Democratic state convention in New York City on Monday, was "a complete distortion" and "does not in any way impugn Mr. Willkie's patriotism or his devotion to American democracy."

Willkie termed the original Lehman statement "false, malicious, and subversive" and demanded that he make clear "at once and without equivocation that he did not intend and does not intend to impute to me any other attitude than that of a defender of democracy."

Windsor Calls Specialist to Treat 'Bad, Painful' Corn

Miami, Fla., Oct. 2 (AP).—Dr. Harry H. Young, Miami chiropodist, went to Nassau by plane today to treat a "bad and painful corn" for the Duke of Windsor. Dr. Young said he had been summoned by the duke. He said he did not know whether surgery would be necessary.

JOHN W. DAVIS, '24 CANDIDATE, BACKS WILLKIE

Asked to confirm reports of his support, Davis replied with an emphatic "Yes!" Long an opponent of the New Deal and its policies, Davis said his statement needed no amplification. He indicated his pro-Willkie stand was foreshadowed by his statements on Sept. 19, when he appeared before a subcommittee of the senate and advocated a constitutional amendment limiting to one six year term the tenure of any President.

Davis declared the man had not been born "to whom I would entrust for more than eight years the vast, fateful powers of the Presidency."

SEEK VOLUNTEER G. O. P. SPEAKERS FOR STATE TOURS

Werner W. Schroeder, national Republican committeeman for Illinois, last night called for volunteer speakers who will be sent on tours thruout the state on Monday to urge voters to vote for Republican candidates.

During the last two weeks more than 150 volunteer speakers have been auditioned and trained at Republican headquarters in the Hotel La Salle. The auditions are held nightly.

Schroeder said speakers should call at the office of the Illinois Republican coördinating committee on the 16th floor at 69 West Washington street or telephone Central 5775.

UTAH IS COUNTED FOR ROOSEVELT, BECAUSE OF WAR

His Strength Credited to World Situation.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Salt Lake City, Utah, Oct. 2.—There is every indication that President Roosevelt will receive Utah's 4 electoral votes. The local Republican leaders think only some unforeseen circumstance can prevent it.

The testimony one gathers from Democratic as well as Republican leaders is that the Democrats are going to carry the state because Mr. Roosevelt is their nominee and that Mr. Roosevelt is going to carry it because of the menace of war. But for the war issue he could not hope to carry any state in this region, according to this opinion.

Among Democratic leaders one encounters profound gratitude for "Roosevelt luck," tinged with admiration for the shrewdness with which the President has exploited the war issue to blanket the domestic issues arising from the failures and fallacies of the New Deal. To be able to divert public attention from 10 million persons still unemployed after seven years of the New Deal is nothing short of political genius, from the viewpoint of the practical politicians.

Possible Boomerang Foreseen.

International developments in the last few days, however, have given the Democratic managers some concern. They realize that in seeking to capitalize on the war for this political purpose the President is playing with dynamite. There might be a boomerang in the power politics Mr. Roosevelt is playing.

This suggestion was generated by the action of Japan in joining the Berlin-Rome axis by way of bidding defiance to Mr. Roosevelt's threatening attitude in the Pacific. Any time Hitler and Mussolini choose to declare a state of war with the United States for supplying warships to Great Britain, Japan will be obligated to assist and is expected to take the Philippines. Then the United States would be in the war in earnest.

Popular opinion in this region has supported the President's policy of giving all aid to the British short of war. There was a flurry of criticism of the dictatorship involved in Mr. Roosevelt's making the destroyer deal without the sanction of congress, but the deal itself met general approval.

Embargo Also Popular.

The scrap iron embargo aimed at Japan is likewise popular, the only criticism being that it should have been imposed two years ago when the Pacific coast began demanding it.

Notwithstanding this attitude, popular sentiment here is generally judged to be 99 per cent against involvement in the war. If developments in the international situation before election day should spread the fear and suspicion that Mr. Roosevelt's policies are leading the country into a war that will speedily follow his election to a third term, the people will turn against the President at the ballot box, in the opinion of some Democratic, as well as most Republican, leaders.

It was the war that saved Mr. Roosevelt's political bacon, according to the testimony here. Last spring the Democrats were overwhelmingly opposed to a third term nomination for the President. There was widespread dissatisfaction with the New Deal panaceas.

Poll Shows Reversal.

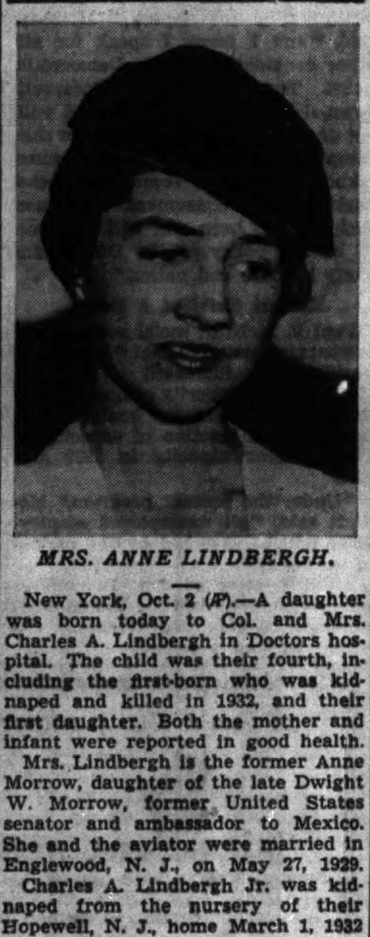
I heard from one man the story of a poll he made of public sentiment in the course of an automobile trip from the northern to the southern boundary of the state and back again on different routes. When he reached the Arizona border his tally was 75 per cent against a third term for Mr. Roosevelt. Before he started north again the Hitler war machine's drive into the Low Countries was in full blast. On the trip north his poll showed 80 per cent in favor of keeping Mr. Roosevelt in office.

"Better keep him on the job to deal with the war menace," was the purport of the reasons the voters gave.

There is some disaffection persisting in Democratic ranks over the third term candidacy, but it is mostly under cover. One hears gossip of county and precinct leaders privately counseling their followers to vote against Mr. Roosevelt. About the only Democrat of prominence who has come out openly against the third term is State Senator Lawrence E. Nelson, an extreme left wing New Dealer who was announced for the Democratic nomination for governor, but who later withdrew, saying he could not run on a third term ticket.

The real split in the Democratic party in this state is over patronage. It is a split so wide and so deep that the Republicans stand a good chance of electing their candidate for governor and the congressman in the 1st district.

Fourth Child Born



MRS. ANNE LINDBERGH.

New York, Oct. 2 (AP).—A daughter was born today to Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh in Doctors hospital. The child was their fourth, including the first-born who was kidnaped and killed in 1932, and their first daughter. Both the mother and infant were reported in good health.

Mrs. Lindbergh is the former Anne Morrow, daughter of the late Dwight W. Morrow, former United States senator and ambassador to Mexico. She and the aviator were married in Englewood, N. J., on May 27, 1929.

Charles A. Lindbergh Jr. was kidnaped from the nursery of their Hopewell, N. J., home March 1, 1932 and several weeks later was found dead. Bruno Richard Hauptmann subsequently was convicted of the crime and died in the electric chair at Trenton, N. J.

The Lindbergh's second child, Jon, was born Aug. 2, 1932 and their third, Land Morrow, on May 12, 1937.

VOLUNTEERS AID MOVE AGAINST FRAUD AT POLLS

Volunteer workers are joining in the movement to prevent vote frauds at the forthcoming election, it was announced yesterday by the Republican state central and Cook county committees. The committees are organizing the volunteers and precinct committeemen to fight against ballot stuffing, blank ballot stealing, chain voting, intimidation and other forms of election cheating. Ben L. Berve, Republican state chairman, said his party is determined that honesty shall prevail this year at the polls.

WOOSTER PREXY HITS THIRD TERM; BACKS WILLKIE

Confident He Will Bring Order Out of Chaos.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 2 [Special].—Wendell Willkie today received a letter from Charles F. Wishart, president of Wooster college, Wooster, O., in which the educator pledged his support and expressed alarm over the apparent apathy with which Americans are taking the New Deal's attempt to break the third term tradition.

Wishart, who is known for his independence in politics, said he voted for Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1936 but certainly would not again. Any administration, he declared, "collects a lot of barnacles in eight years and needs to be dry docked."

Becomes More Serious.

"With the tendency toward centralized government at Washington," he wrote, "the enormous increase in government bureaus, and the increasing millions practically on the government's payroll, this is a much more serious question than it would have been 50 years ago or even 25 years ago.

"Even in our grave defense emergency the old cliche against swapping horses while crossing the stream leaves me quite cold. Lincoln said that about a second term, not a third. It is a phrase drawn from the horse and buggy age which our President so scorns, but, even then, emergency express riders swap horses at every station. Even most blooded steeds become fagged on an eight year race."

Calls Willkie Masterful.

The college president said he was for Willkie because the Republican is a constructive liberal and has shown a complete mastery of all problems related to business organization on a large scale. He said he was confident Willkie would conserve the social and economic gains of the last decade while eliminating abuses, coördinating activities, and bringing order out of confusion.

"Impulsive, with a hair-trigger mind and with that amazing frankness of his," Wishart said, "he may, thru the campaign, say things that his friends will regret—and that he will regret. But I think most Americans will love him all the more, in comparison with the usual politician's technique of pompous platitudes and safe generalities."

New Deal Mired in Its Dismal Failures, Says Senator Taft

BY THORNTON SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 2.—Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio told a Wisconsin audience tonight that the government at Washington is in dismal confusion, a result of the incompetence of the New Deal and the Roosevelt government.

Senator Taft charged that President Roosevelt, having demonstrated lack of capacity to administer the government in times of peace, has attempted to create the fiction that he is the indispensable person to guide the nation thru a threat of war.

"If there ever was a government incompetent to be trusted with American defense," Senator Taft declared, "the Roosevelt administration is that government."

Senator Taft spoke at a Republican rally, the first stop on a long tour thru the midwestern states in behalf of the candidacy of Wendell L. Willkie. The audience exceeded the seating capacity of the hall and several hundred stood thruout the evening to hear Senator Taft and Fred H. Clausen, Republican candidate for the United States senate, who also spoke.

Takes Rap at La Follette.

Senator Taft will speak tomorrow night at Winona, Minn., and will be in Chicago Saturday for a speech. He came to Wisconsin in time to give added impetus to the wave of Willkie enthusiasm engendered by the appearance of the Presidential candidate in Madison, Wis., last Friday.

Senator Taft delivered a prepared address on "National Defense or National Confusion?" diverging from his formal lines long enough to comment on the acrobatic skill of United States Senator Robert M. La Follette, Progressive, who he said "is the senate's chief opponent to a third Presidential term, while at the same time advocating the election of a President running for a third term; an unfaltering isolationist advocating the reelection of a President who is leading the country into war."

Taft pictured Roosevelt as muddling and incompetent.

Rips Lack of Program.

"He is without a plan for financing the defense program and there is no evidence that he ever will have one," Senator Taft asserted. "The President simply is not interested in finance. His interest in tax laws is confined to laws having the purpose of punishing somebody or taking somebody's income away from him because the President thinks it is too big.

"There is no village council in this country that hasn't a greater sense of responsibility about money than the congress of the United States and more horse sense on the subject of spending it than the President of the United States."

No one in the government, the speaker declared, before last May had given a thought to the need of creating enough manufacturing capacity to supply the army and navy adequately. Nothing was done, he said, to restore the capacity to manufacture powder which has decreased constantly since he world war.

With all the need of production, the limitations and red tape imposed by the government have been so great that private companies have been willing to take government contracts only thru a sense of public duty, he said.

STOPS IN CHICAGO.

Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio paused in Chicago yesterday on his way to open a speaking tour in Milwaukee. He said the progress of the Willkie Presidential campaign in the last week has been "very favorable." Willkie, he added, is directing attention to domestic issues which will decide the votes of 75 per cent of those who go to the polls.

BOARD AWARDS $64,852 JOB TO PRINT BALLOTS

Contractors Consent to Submit Cost Figures.

Mrs. Mabel Reinecke, member of the board of election commissioners, announced yesterday that the contract for printing ballots for the Presidential election has been awarded jointly to the Lincoln Printing company and the George G. Renneker Printing company. These concerns will print 3,163,520 ballots at $20.50 per thousand, a total cost of $64,852.

The Lincoln and Renneker bids were the lowest except for that submitted by M. Kallis & Co., which originally offered to do the job at $6.87 per thousand—or about one-third the former figures. The Kallis company, however, withdrew its bid last Friday, asserting an error had been made in its estimates.

Explains High Costs.

The election board and County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki supervise elections. Mrs. Reinecke explained yesterday why they considered bids three times as high as the Kallis' bid.

Mrs. Reinecke said that the producing of ballots is more than a routine printing job. She explained that the presses have to be stopped every time a new ward and a new precinct is reached and that type has to be changed to carry the correct ward and precinct number. There are about 3,850 such changes necessary.

The presses must also be stopped and type reset whenever congressional and senatorial district lines cross ward and precinct lines. There are 1,280 such stops. Also, a rush advance job is necessary on absentee ballots, which have to be sent out prior to the election. Mrs. Reinecke said there will be more than the usual number of absentee ballots for this election because of the assignment of Illinois National Guard units for training outside the state.

Special Paper Costs $7,000.

Other elements complicating the printing of ballots are the contesting of nominating petitions and the possibility that candidates may be stricken from the sheets by court order. Such 11th hour actions would necessitate changing of type.

The cost of special watermarked paper for the ballots is $7,000 and the cost of changes is approximately $9,000. Both printing companies have agreed to make reductions in their contract price if the county board assures them of quick cash payment. They have also consented to submit all their cost figures and to reduce their price if the board believes they are making an unfair profit.

CONCEDES TRUTH OF LYONS EXPOSE ON PROPAGANDA

Democratic Chief Says Kits Are Free.

Mrs. J. C. Pryor, director of the women's division in midwest headquarters of the Democratic national committee, yesterday conceded the truth of charges made by Richard J. Lyons of Libertyville that for the last six years the women's division of the Democratic national committee had been functioning as a gigantic propaganda machine.

"The results of Mr. Lyons' intensive study of the last six weeks are correct," said Mrs. Pryor. "Our adult education reporter plan, as he revealed, has set up 2,000 discussion clubs in the United States."

Propaganda Floods Nation.

Lyons, a former state representative and Republican candidate for governor in 1936, recently disclosed that the Democratic women's division, under cover of a so-called reporter plan, has been flooding the country with New Deal literature, much of it prepared at government expense.

More than a third of this material, Lyons asserted, is turned out in the government printing office in Washington, D. C. Copies of speeches by Democratic legislators and appointees and bulletins in which New Deal agencies extol themselves have been distributed by the millions for purposes of "discussion."

Says Kits Are Free.

"The whole program of the women's division," Mrs. Pryor said, "is built upon the theory that, to be an intelligent voter, every person should study the records and achievements of the administration.

"We are so grateful to Mr. Lyons for calling our program to general attention that we would not suggest he tried to misrepresent the facts when he stated that these kits [folders stuffed with material assembled by the women's division] are being sold for 25 cents each. The literature is free to any one who calls for it at our offices. If it is sent by mail the 25 cent charge is made to cover handling and postage."

G. O. P. NOMINEES NAME THEIR ONLY FUND COMMITTEE

The Republican finance committee of Illinois was named the official fund raising organization in the state yesterday in a release from the state central committee. It was pointed out that no other organization or individual has been authorized to raise funds by those who signed the statement. They are: Ben L. Berve, chairman of the state central committee; John T. Dempsey, chairman of the Cook county central committee; Wayland Brooks, candidate for United States senator; Dwight H. Green, candidate for governor; Hugh Cross, candidate for lieutenant governor; Justus L. Johnson, candidate for secretary of state; Arthur Lueder, candidate for state auditor; Warren Wright, candidate for state treasurer; Stephen A. Day, candidate for congressman-at-large, and William H. Stratton, candidate for congressman-at-large.

Holland Fire Chief Marks 56th Anniversary on Job

Holland, Mich., Oct. 2 (AP).—Fire Chief Cornelius Blom Jr. celebrated his 56th anniversary with the Holland fire department yesterday. It also was his 74th birthday anniversary. He joined the department on Oct. 1, 1884, at the age of 18, when the equipment was a man drawn hose cart. Now the department has five motorized pieces of apparatus.

DEMOCRATS OIL RUSTY COGS IN STATE MACHINE

Primary Foes Are Pals at Chicago Session.

Campaigning was abandoned last night to give the Democratic machine a chance to brush up any slightly rusted parts at a harmony meeting in the Palmer House. More than 2,500 Democrats gathered at the banquet, ate, drank, and shed sweetness and light upon one another.

Lieut. Gov. John Stelle, who cried out against bossism and "Chicago Ed" Kelly in the primary campaign, was present at the speakers' table. He sat one chair removed from Mayor Kelly and chatted pleasantly with Harry B. Hershey, Democratic nominee for governor. In the primary Stelle had referred to Hershey as a "machine selected candidate." State's Attorney Courtney arrived a little late. When he entered Mayor Kelly rose, strode to Courtney's chair, and gave the state's attorney a pat on the back and a handshake.

Utilities Probe Echoed.

An echo of the presumed federal probe in Springfield of public utilities was heard in a last minute addition to Hershey's speech. The announced purpose of this grand jury investigation was to follow up disclosures before the Securities and Exchange commission concerning salaries paid allegedly to influence legislation, rates, and regulations.

In the spring primary United States Senator James M. Slattery's opposition mentioned public utilities in referring to the Slattery $25,000 strongbox scandal.

"Speaking for myself," Hershey said, "and I know I speak for all other candidates on this Democratic ticket from President Roosevelt down, I have not accepted—and will not accept—any contributions for this campaign from the utilities, because I know that money comes out of the pockets of the consumers. To refuse such aid has been and will continue to be the policy of the Democratic party in state and nation."

McNutt Tells of a Boom.

Paul V. McNutt, social security administrator, asserted that "legitimate business has increased to a point close to the prosperity of boom years, and industrial activity has mounted from a small fraction of capacity in 1933 to near capacity in 1939 and 1940."

"Under the present program," McNutt said, "all unemployed employables will be absorbed by the middle of next year."

JOHN ERICSSON LEAGUE OPENS WILLKIE OFFICE

The John Ericsson Republican League of America, said to be one of the oldest Swedish-American organizations in the United States, opened Wendell L. Willkie for President headquarters in the First National Bank building yesterday.

"Enthusiasm for the Willkie cause is gaining ground steadily among our Scandinavian-American citizens," said Frank Torrell, national organizer for the league. "Those peoples who have contributed so greatly to the building of the United States are solidly opposed to the third term idea. They believe in democratic processes. They are opposed to dictatorship or the threat of dictatorship."

Committees representing state and county Ericsson leagues in more than 20 states are coöperating, Torrell said, and contact is being established with all organizations representing Danish, Norwegian and Finnish-American groups in the Willkie drive.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

CORN BELT TURNS FROM ROOSEVELT TO G. O. P. TICKET

Democrats Pledge Votes for Entire Slate.

BY EDWARD WILSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Macomb, Ill., Oct. 2.—Three Republican campaigners hammered at the New Deal from the steps of the McDonough county courthouse here this afternoon. They directed their talks to a crowd of enthusiastic Republicans and Willkie Democrats in the elm shaded courthouse square.

Several hundred more listeners sat in cars which lined the curb around the square. The Wednesday afternoon marketing crowds had arrived. A block away, just out of earshot of the campaigners' portable loud speaker, it was quiet. In front of Democratic headquarters, four idlers rested in the pleasant afternoon air and watched and advised a lone street worker who was re-laying a small patch of bricks.

The campaigners were Hugh W. Cross, candidate for lieutenant governor; George Barrett, candidate for attorney general, and Justus L. Johnson, candidate for secretary of state. Local county candidates also spoke.

More Democrats for Willkie.

As has been the case elsewhere in the swing of this Republican caravan thru central western Illinois, the candidates heard more and more of Democrats who are swinging to Willkie.

Former State Senator William A. Compton is the leader of the Willkie Democrats in these parts. He says he is certain 1,000 will swing over on election day.

"Why, a third term would be the worst tragedy that could happen to the nation," the former senator declared.

Frances Allison, a farmer and committeeman of nearby Chalmers township, said: "Chalmers went Republican by three votes in 1938 and believe me that is going up to 30 in November. Those others will be Willkie Democrats voting the straight Republican ticket."

The entire corn belt county has 12,800 votes and in 1938 showed a Republican plurality of 2,027. John Burgard, the county chairman, who operates a gasoline station here, vows that plurality will go to 4,000 for Willkie.

Continues Elliott Attacks.

From the court house steps, Barrett renewed his attack against the recent appointment of Elliott Roosevelt, the President's son, to a captaincy in the air corps.

"Isn't it nice to think, folks," said Barrett, "that when your boys, the boys of Macomb and McDonough counties, are crowded into barracks or sleeping in cold pup tents and drilling in all kinds of weather, dear Elliott will be comfortable?

"In Europe, where it always has been the right of sons of nobility to be given officership, those sons at least had military training. Not for dear Elliott. No, without any such training he is going to sit in back of a mahogany desk and buy airplanes."

Cross turned a scathing attack on Senators Scott W. Lucas and James M. Slattery for devoting their time to politics and campaigning for the third term and not properly representing their people at Washington.

"These are times when critical legislation is being passed," he said. "But are the elected representatives of the people of Illinois watching our interests? They are not. They are trying to get their protector, the President, reëlected."

At the Arren county courthouse in Monmouth, the candidates addressed a night meeting of overflow proportions. Tomorrow the candidates are scheduled to make 14 stops in Rock Island county and will hold night meetings in Rock Island and Moline.

Miss Baker, who lives at 5648 Dorchester avenue, is a graduate of the university and is a secretary in the office of the Alumni council there. The marriage will be solemnized on Oct. 12 in Bond chapel at the university.

NELSON CHARGES COURTNEY WITH SHIELDING COUSIN

Dropped School Contract Case, He Says.

The charge that State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney failed to pursue a grand jury investigation of irregular Board of Education purchases in order to shield his cousin, was made last night by Judge Oscar F. Nelson in a radio talk.

The Republican candidate for state's attorney asserted that Courtney's cousin, John P. Moriarity, under the name of a dummy concern, obtained $272,352 in school board contracts from 1937 to 1939.

Kept from Grand Jury.

Evidence of "glaring, unusual irregularities" in the purchase of school board supplies and equipment was presented to Courtney in 1939 by O. C. Taubeneck, then executive secretary of the Chicago Principals' club, Nelson said.

"One outstanding item was the expenditure of $272,352 from June, 1937, to February, 1939, inclusive, to the Standard Grading and Construction company," Nelson said. "There was no such corporation in existence. But the grand jury never heard about it, because Tom Courtney would not let it get there.

Were Other Pets Shielded?

"John P. Moriarity, Courtney's cousin, did not have to explain to the grand jury. What other political pets were shielded by this failure of our state's attorney to do his duty? What other smelly deeds are going on elsewhere, because our state's attorney does not follow thru?"

Turning to Courtney's record, Nelson said that the present state's attorney never personally tried a lawsuit before or since he was elected.

FOUND HANGED IN HOME.

GREEN CALLS FOR G. O. P. DRIVE TO REGISTER VOTERS

Freeport, Ill., Oct. 2 [Special].—New Deal propagandists and precinct workers of the political machine, who are resorting to the defeatist psychology of Hitler and Goering in a last desperate attempt to prevent a popular upsurge of voters, form the real fifth column in America, Dwight H. Green charged in a speech here today. Green, who is Republican candidate for governor, made a direct appeal to all county chairmen and leaders of voter organizations to intensify their drive to register every citizen before the books close Monday night.

The strongest weapon of Hitler has been to spread among the people of other nations the conviction that resistance would be hopeless, Green said in his appeal for complete registration. The New Dealers have built their strength on the public apathy which comes from defeatism, Green said, and now they are trying to spread the impression that the Republicans have conceded defeat.

"Continued control by the New Deal and its corrupt political machines depends on continuance of that public apathy and feeling of hopelessness," Green asserted.

Grand Jury Clears Three Reds on Treason Charges

Pontiac, Ill., Oct. 2 [Special].—The Livingston county grand jury today refused to indict three communists on treason charges, returning no true bills against Gertrude Parker, Bernice Perdu, and Phillip Stewart, all of Chicago. They were arrested here July 28 while circulating petitions to put the communist party on the November ballot. They were bound over Aug 8 on the treason charge.

ARMY RED TAPE ENTANGLES ITS EXPANSION PLAN

Report on Progress Now 'Military Secret.'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 2.—With almost 8½ billion dollars in appropriations and contract authorizations to expend in building a land defensive force of two million men, the army high command today is entangled in red tape.

Organization of the force has not been fully defined, many vital items or equipment have not been designed and a definite program of development has not been adopted. All efforts are being bent toward bringing order out of the chaos the adoption of the vast expansion program has produced.

The army has surrounded all its operations with secrecy. Any attempt to learn what is going on meets with the stock statement that that particular phase of the defense program is a military secret.

Congress has received several progress reports, under a pledge of strict secrecy. These have not been encouraging, it has been learned.

Last Report Made in May.

The last definitive report on the army equipment program was given to congress and made public last May. At that time the army reported on material on hand and which it expected to get by July 1, 1941, under the program to build a mobilization day force of 600,000 men in the regular army and National Guard.

Shortly after this program was made public the German army broke thru Holland, Belgium, and France. The European events brought about drastic revision of the American program. Congress voted billions freely for the building and equipping of an army of two million men, as the land force essential for the security of the western hemisphere.

The army general staf immediately went to work planning what it needs and hopes to get for the 8½ billion dollars for the army of two million men. Altho great secrecy has shrouded this planning, it is possible to reveal estimates of the army materiel goal.

Table Shows Comparisons.

Maintenance Cost Unknown.

In the rush to build up the force of two million men, the army general staff has had no time to give thought to what it will cost the nation to maintain an army of such proportions. Members of congress have sought such information without avail.

The best estimate available to date is that maintenance of an army of two million strong will cost the taxpayers between 2½ and 3 billion dollars a year. The army has not prepared a break down of the cost of maintenance by such items as pay, food, clothing and the like.

It has been estimated that it costs at least $2,000 a year for every man in the army. Under the plan to have 1,200,000 men on active service, it would cost at least 2,400 millions a year to maintain the standing army. Present plans also call for 800,000 trained and equipped reserves to make up an M-day force of two million.

The most serious shortages at present in the army are planes, ammunition and fuses, tanks, antitank guns, mortars, antiaircraft weapons, new field artillery, signal equipment and military optical instruments.

A serious obstacle in the acquisition of new material is the fact that the army still is experimenting with many weapons. The army is considering the adoption of a weapon lighter than the Garand rifle or submachine gun—a sort of automatic pistol with a shoulder rest. Such a weapon has been used with great effect by German troops.

The army is without a satisfactory airplane cannon. Experiments in this direction have been proceeding for several years. The army also is seeking to develop a shoulder antitank gun.

The most serious bottlenecks in material procurement are in the aircraft industry. As in other equipment fields delays have resulted because the army has not, in some cases, made up its mind what it wants.

A factor which has retarded the procurement program is the manufacturers distrust of the New Deal. They are distrustful of New Deal social legislation which prevents production at full capacity and New Deal legislation which curbs profit and private control of business.

Join Free French

French Oceania, which is declared to be giving its allegiance to the De Gaulle Free France government.

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, Oct. 2 (AP).—Supporters of Gen. Charles de Gaulle, leader of the French who are continuing the war with Britain, are firmly in control of French Oceania, Premier Peter Fraser of New Zealand said today.

He said a government representative who visited the islands found the great bulk of the French and Polynesians supporting Edmond Mansad, the De Gaulle governor, at Papeete, chief town of Tahiti.

[Oceania consists of the Society Islands, the Marquezas Islands, the Tuamotu group, Leeward Islands, and the Gambier, Austral, and Rapa Islands. Save for the natives, the inhabitants are chiefly French.]

NOSES OF COPPER MAKE GERMANS' SHELLS DEADLIER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 2.—The Germans are using "copper noses" to make their armor piercing projectiles more deadly. Their machine and antitank guns now fire shells with copper alloy noses which are longer and more streamlined than those used previously on ammunition.

This nose is a sort of false front, for there is a space between it and the actual nose of the blunter armor piercing unit. On contact the copper nose crumples and "sticks" to the armor it has struck, preventing the shell from being deflected. As the inner unit drives thru it into the target the copper nose peels off.

The core carries a fuse which allows a split second for penetration after contact. On explosion the larger shells scatter an incendiary compound to set the interior of a tank on fire.

De Valera Says He'll Move for Peace if Chance Arises

DUBLIN, Ireland, Oct. 2 (AP).—Prime Minister Eamon de Valera, reopening the dail eireann [parliament] today, told the members that "if an opportunity, however small, presented itself to bring peace, the government of Eire [Ireland] would endeavor to avail itself of it." Ireland is neutral.

BIDDLE ACCUSED OF SCHEMING TO KILL NEWSPAPER

Senator Alleges Abuse of New Deal Office.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 2.—Senator H. Styles Bridges [R., N. H.] charged in the senate today that Francis Biddle, the New Deal solicitor general, twice abused his official position in attempts to destroy a Chattanooga newspaper when he was financially interested in opposition newspapers.

Senator Bridges.

Bridges made his accusations against Biddle in the course of a senate reply to the New Deal smear campaign against Wendell L. Willkie, Republican Presidential nominee. Senator George W. Norris, Nebraska radical, and other New Dealers have represented Willkie as the candidate of the "power trust" and charged that the Tennessee Electric Power company killed the Chattanooga News, a pro-New Deal public ownership newspaper.

Ranks Biddle with Ickes.

Bridges charged that Biddle was financially interested in the Chattanooga News at the time he used his authority as chief counsel for a congressional committee investigating the Tennessee Valley authority in attempts to destroy the competing Chattanooga Free Press. Biddle, said Senator Bridges, "takes rank with Harold Ickes [secretary of the interior] as a New Deal praying mantis worshiping at the altar of the freedom of the press."

Bridges described Biddle as a Paris born "tame millionaire" of the New Deal and said he was known among his classmates at Groton, the millionaire boys' school—"just a couple of forms below little Frankie Roosevelt"—as "Little Diddle Biddle."

Contemporary newspaper accounts telling of Biddle's efforts to wreck the Chattanooga Free Press were read into the Record by Senator Bridges.

Financial Interest Revealed.

Late in August, 1938, when the congressional committee was holding hearings in Knoxville, Biddle suddenly moved to Chattanooga, where it was revealed that he had obtained two investigators from other government agencies to "get something" on the Free Press. The investigators demanded data on the financial affairs and advertising rates of the newspaper, while the rival Chattanooga News featured the investigation of its competitor.

Biddle's financial interest in the News did not become known, Senator Bridges said, until a financial statement of the newspaper was published in October, 1939. Bridges quoted from an article in the Knoxville Journal of Oct. 18, which said the published statement of ownership of the Chattanooga paper had revealed Biddle's interest in it.

Tells of Foreclosure.

The Chattanooga News ceased publication on Dec. 16, 1939. Denying the charge that the power company put it out of business by withdrawing its advertising, Bridges revealed that the bondholders foreclosed and that the chief bondholders were the stepmother and half-sisters of George Fort Milton, publisher of the paper. Bridges intimated that Milton's own family "sold him out" because they had no confidence in his ability.

Milton later started another newspaper, the Chattanooga Tribune, with funds invested by Biddle, Senator Norris, and some 600 other stockholders, including many prominent New Dealers, Bridges recalled. This newspaper began publication last spring and folded up on Sept. 4.

"Rushing to the aid of his pal, fellow conspirator, and former and present co-partner, the solicitor general [Biddle] did a high diddle biddle with the grave responsibilities of his high office," Senator Bridges declared. "He sent another pair of snoopers—from his own department—to 'get something on the Free Press.'"

Trumped Charges Alleged.

Bridges said the investigators trumped up a charge that the Free Press sought to obtain "exclusive afternoon advertising contracts" at a time when it had no afternoon competitor and that the charges were so flimsy that even Biddle did not dare submit them to a grand jury.

Bridges also refuted the charge that the Tennessee subsidiary of the Commonwealth & Southern corporation, formerly headed by Willkie, killed the Chattanooga News by withdrawing its advertising. The New Dealers had alleged that the power company withdrew its advertising in order to influence a public ownership election on March 12, 1935. Bridges said the power company did not withdraw its advertising until after the election, that the contract amounted to only $8,182, and that the auditor's report disclosed that the paper was losing $40,000 a year.

Bridges asserted that effort of the New Deal to smear Willkie on the power issue would fail.

DUTCH WORKERS ORDERED OUT OF CROWDED FIELDS

Nazis Act to Cut Holland's Unemployment.

BY E. R. NODERER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 2.—Dutchmen in "overcrowded" professions or trades will have to look for work in other fields, Dr. Hans Fischboenk, Netherlands commissar general, announced today.

In another effort to reduce Dutch unemployment workers will be sent to Germany, where about 50,000 have found employment in the last four months. However, it is admitted that some of these have deserted their jobs without permission. Those apprehended have been compelled to return to work. It is understood that they will be punished after their jobs in Germany have been completed and they have returned to Holland.

All to Work for Relief.

Many Dutch workers are employed in Germany on airport construction. These workers will be surveyed to determine whether they could be employed more profitably in other fields.

All labor offices in Holland will be reorganized in an attempt to eliminate unemployment. "Special jobs" are promised for those who are "not eager to work." All persons getting relief will be compelled to work.

Industry to be "Coördinated."

Fischboenk said a main objective of the German policy in Holland is to assimilate the Dutch labor market to German conditions. To bring German and Dutch industry into the "proper coördination," conferences between industrialists in both countries will be held soon. Fischboenk suggested it would be advantageous for Dutch industrialists to take an interest in German enterprises.

He intimated that a sharp increase in taxation is imminent since revenue from customs has decreased since the occupation.

MUSSOLINI'S PAPER SAYS U. S. PEOPLE ARE 'MOST IGNORANT'

ROME, Italy, Oct. 2 (AP).—Premier Benito Mussolini's own newspaper criticized the people of the United States today as "the most ignorant of the white race" and hinted that Germany and Italy are counting on Spain to offset American and British influence in Latin America.

The paper also declared that any aerial or naval action taken by the United States against Japan "would be equivalent to hara-kiri [suicide] for the American fleet."

"North American people are the most ignorant of the white race," said Mario Appelius, commentator, in Mussolini's Il Popolo di Roma. "The present tragic isolation of the English speaking people comes precisely from their ignorance of the history of civilization."

Sees Better Relations.

TOKIO, Oct. 2 (AP).—The newspaper Yomiuri today predicted an early improvement of Russian-Japanese relations and said that an understanding between the United States and Russia seemed "impossible."

RUSSIA TO TRAIN BOYS FOR JOBS IN HER INDUSTRIES

MOSCOW, Russia, Oct. 3, Thursday (AP).—Russia today ordered technical training of 800,000 to 1,000,000 teen age boys a year. All will be required to work at state industrial jobs for four years following their period of instruction.

The first call provides for 350,000 to be mustered into railroad schools and 250,000 into other industrial classes, beginning Nov. 10. Boys of 14 and 15 are to be sent to the railroad schools, and those of 16 and 17 to the others.

When placed in jobs, they will be paid at the prevailing rate and for their four year stint will be exempt from military and naval service.

FINDS LONDONERS ADJUST LIVES TO ENDURE AIR SIEGE

But Seek Better Housing for Hard Winter.

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 2.—The air defense of London is improving. There are fewer intensive raids, less damage is inflicted and there is less thought of dashing to shelter when the sirens scream a warning. This may be caused by the prolonged lull in the enemy's offensive effort. At any rate, the general picture of life in this metropolis is considerably better than when I arrived here 20 days ago.

Many complaints still are heard from persons in the cellars, but some sources say these complaints are in line with a campaign to make the government double its efforts to make the living places underground more comfortable and to make all possible progress before winter comes.

The people seem fully aware of the fact that the war is just beginning and prefer to adjust themselves to a new kind of war life on the best available basis. Discomforts have been great for persons whose houses have been blown away and those compelled to flee from their beds to benches in cellars. The annoyance has been extreme even if the casualties have been few.

Damage a Relative Thing.

Property damage inflicted during the mass raids has been severe when viewed from the private owner's standpoint, but if viewed as the focus point of a major war attack it has been negligible, and if viewed from the sensational reports abroad that London is in ruins it is nothing.

Traffic quickly adjusts itself to the imposed changes, and stores knocked out a few days ago have signs saying "Business as Usual" stuck on their new artificial doors. Frequently the customers have to find their way around piles of rubbish, but trade continues.

Practically speaking, a great number of the buildings destroyed by bombs should have been demolished 50 years ago.

Transportation on the whole is functioning remarkably well. The subway, buses, street cars, and taxis carry on as usual. There have been some complaints about the trains running late, but this is no serious problem compared with the discomforts suffered by families in crowded cellars.

BOMBS HIT BOYS' SCHOOL

LONDON, Oct 3, Thursday (AP).—Incendiary bombs were dropped today on a famous English boys' school in southeastern England. A fire was started on the roof, but it was quickly extinguished and there were no casualties.

[Eton and Harrow are in southeast England, Eton near the king's Windsor castle.]

London had two separate raid alarms on the 26th night of the German air siege. The first was the shortest early night alarm of the war, but the Germans returned later, dodging in and out of the cloud banks to drop their bombs. They met heavy antiaircraft fire.

Six times up to nightfall great squadrons of German bombers and fighter planes swept in toward London; six times, said the air ministry, they were beaten back, "intercepted and broken up by our fighters."

Shrapnel Bombs Used.

Nearly all of coastal England was under intermittent bombardment and German shrapnel bombs were reported loosed, for the first time, on a southeast coast town. German batteries in France shelled Dover.

Flying into a whistling channel "northeaster," British bombers passed up German held "invasion ports" early today and headed inland to bomb Adolf Hitler's continental war stores.

This was a repetition of the Tuesday night foray in which it was reported British bombers raided Berlin and many German and German held objectives.

It was claimed a munitions factory and an electrical equipment plant were hit in northwest Berlin. Power plants were reported hit at Cologne and Duisburg; oil refineries at Cologne, Sterkade, and Duesseldorf; airplane plants at Amsterdam and Rotterdam, and railway yards, airdromes, and port facilities at a number of places.

EARLY ALARM IN BERLIN

BERLIN, Oct. 3, Thursday (AP).—Air raid sirens aroused Berliners early today and kept them in shelters for 1 hour and 12 minutes. Heavy antiaircraft fire could be heard in the industrial section on the northwest outskirts. A plane flew twice over the northwest section of the city, but authorities said the British raiders dropped no bombs.

It was reported that yesterday, besides ceaseless attacks on London, targets along the Thames river and across England to the Irish sea were attacked heavily. Oil tanks were reported fired at Weymouth, airports were bombed, harbor facilities at Swansea and New Quay were raided and warehouses burned.

CLAIM ARMS PLANT RUINED

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 2.—Special assault tactics have been evolved by order of Reichsmarshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering for the use of Germany's heaviest type bombs, which are believed to weigh up to three tons. Nazis declare that the effect of these superbombs is so devastating that a single well aimed missile can paralyze an entire armament works for weeks.

Planes carrying superbombs, instead of flying in closed formation, frequently attack alone. The absence of fighter plane protection necessitates a cloudy sky, obscuring the attacker until it is above its objective.

A war communique declared a British armament works in the Midlands was "destroyed" by a single hit of a superbomb in a low diving attack by First Lieutenant Von Buttlar. He reported that only on his seventh attempt was the weather such that he could reach his objective unmolested.

Von Buttlar broke thru the clouds at 2,000 feet, flew toward his target at top speed and placed a bomb in the center of the factory before British antiaircraft was able to fire, he reported. He zoomed to the protecting clouds and returned to his base by flying blind.

DOWNED PLANES REVEAL GERMAN AERIAL SECRETS

LONDON, Oct. 2 (AP).—British air experts reported today they have examined so many downed planes that they know virtually all Germany's aircraft secrets.

While they generally concluded the performance of British planes was superior, the experts said the German craft were of good materials, sound workmanship, and excellently finished. The fuel was up to standard, but some planes were built to use substitutes after being warmed up from a tank of high test fuel.

A Junkers 88 dive bomber downed on Aug. 7 indicated that the number of free machine guns on this type of ship is being increased from three to six. The Germans appear to be using more armament and armor to cut their losses.

French Ex-Envoy to Dutch Dies in London Blackout

LONDON, Oct. 3 (AP).—Baron D'Arnuald de Vitrolles, 60 years old, French minister to the Netherlands before the German invasion, was found dead in the blackout near Piccadilly last night. It is believed a bus ran over him.

CITE ARMY RULES IN DERIDING SOFT JOB FOR ELLIOTT

Congressmen Dwell on Unfitness for Post.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 2.—The army's own regulations were being quoted in congressional circles today in an attempt to show that Elliott Roosevelt, son of the President, is unqualified for the captaincy which was conferred on him last week by the army command. There was no official attempt by the war department to refute the charges or to explain the commissioning of young Roosevelt to a desk job in the air corps procurement division, where he will escape the draft.

One of the regulations dealing with the appointment of officers to the specialist reserves, of which the procurement division is a part, states:

"Original appointments will be made to fill specific vacancies in the procurement organization only after it has been found impracticable to secure qualified reserve officers commissioned in the appropriate arm of the service . . . and provided that the applicant's qualifications fully meet the requirements and job specifications of the proposed assignments."

His Qualifications Demanded.

Today Representative John C. Schafer [R., Wis.] demanded:

"What kind of a job is there in the army that Capt. Roosevelt has the qualifications for? He's been manager of a dude ranch and tried to mix in politics and talked over the radio. He's been an airport manager and vice president of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce. And he tried to peddle airplanes to Russia. Does that qualify him for the rank of captain in the army?"

Among other regulations noted by Schafer and some of his colleagues was this section:

"The specialist reserves includes not only officers highly specialized in some technical profession, but also those whose demonstrated ability and experience in civil life make it especially desirable that they may be commissioned for specific duties in the procurement organizations of the . . . service."

Commissioned in 24 Hours.

And this section:

"Original appointments will be made only where the applicant in civil life has demonstrated his outstanding ability to function in the specific assignment and in the grades for which he is recommended."

Congressional circles say it is obvious that no search was made for anyone in the regular army or the reserve corps to fill the job provided for young Roosevelt, or that much time was spent in weighing his qualifications. It was recalled that he was commissioned and sworn into the service 24 hours after he asked for the job.

Sources close to the war department have indicated that the generals are abashed at the unexpected storm of protests which exploded in their faces following the overnight commissioning of the President's son. It also is reported that administration leaders and political strategists of the Democratic party are complaining among themselves over young Roosevelt's avoidance of conscription.

Leahy Goes to Washington for Caribbean Conference

REVEAL DETAILS OF ENLISTMENTS FOR DRAFTEES

Army Will Push Drive for 3 Year Volunteers.

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 2.—The war department has prefected plans under which it will enlist, for one year, young men of draft age who prefer to put their service on a voluntary basis rather than await conscription.

Under the plan, men between the ages of 21 and 35 will be permitted to volunteer for service after the registration date, Oct. 16. Such men will advise their local draft boards that they intend to volunteer for induction in the army, regardless of the order in which their draft numbers were called.

The war department emphasized that the word "induction" is used advisedly, as the registrant will not be permitted to enlist immediately but only after conscription begins.

Goes on Priority List.

The registrant can merely express his intention to enlist and the local draft board will place him on a priority list, providing he is qualified for service.

The local boards are not expected to place on the priority list married men, men engaged in essential defense occupations or men who would not be placed high on the availability list if they had not signified their intention to volunteer.

The men who signify their intention to enlist will be given an opportunity to fill out forms to determine their availability status in advance of those summoned by the draft.

The program will have the effect of letting draftees choose the most convenient time to take their year's training and have it over with. Under this plan, for instance, a man of draft age who wished to settle into a career might take his year's training and return to civil life before he would be called under the conscription act.

Drawing Covers Classes Only.

Selective service officials emphasized that the lottery under the present conscription act is for the purpose of determining the order in which registrants shall be classified for service, rather than which registrants shall go first.

All numbers are to be drawn in the lottery. The various district boards will arrange the cards bearing the names of their registrants in the order in which the numbers are drawn at Washington.

However, the cards of volunteers will be placed ahead of their fellows. Then, when a district board is notified of its quota, the cards of the volunteers will be on top of the heap and they will be the first to go to service.

Then, if the quota is still unfilled, the boards will go thru the cards in the order in which they were drawn in the national lottery.

Weed Out the "Deferred."

If the first number drawn is available in a particular district, its owner will be sent to service. If not, the board will go thru the cards in order, weeding out married men and other deferred registrants, until the desired quota is filled.

The men who volunteer will not be permitted to choose any particular arm of the service. Because of the technical training required, one year enlistees cannot be assigned to the air corps, the armored corps, or various technical services.

The army plans to press its campaign for regular three year enlistments, because it is aware of the necessity of having a continuing force of trained and seasoned enlisted men, who will form the backbone of the army and aid in the training of the men gathered under the selective service act.

Island in Wacker Drive Named for Dearborn Hero

Designation of the triangular "island" in Wacker drive between State street and Wabash avenue as "Heald square" in honor of a hero of the Fort Dearborn massacre was voted by the city council yesterday. Capt. Nathan Heald was commander of the fort at the time of the massacre in 1812. The council also granted the Fort Dearborn Memorial commission authority to mark the outline of the walls of Fort Dearborn on sidewalks at the intersection of Michigan avenue and Wacker drive.

WAR VETS ASKED TO HELP ENROLL STATE DRAFTEES

15,000 Registrars to Be Needed in County.

BY HAROLD HUTCHINGS.

Paul G. Armstrong, state selective service director, yesterday asked state departments of the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars for volunteers to assist in registration of men of draft age on Oct. 16.

The request was made because some precinct election officials expect to get paid as registrars, Armstrong explained at draft headquarters in Springfield.

State Holiday Sought.

Armstrong said citizens would be asked to display flags on registration day and added that he is seeking to have the day declared a state holiday. He asked that employers allow employés time off for registration.

The Chicago board of election commissioners yesterday discussed the veterans' coöperation plan with Legion and V. F. W. officials. One plan discussed was the naming of a war veteran as chief registrar in each of the 355 elementary schools, 40 high schools, and 115 park field houses in which the Chicago registration will be conducted. County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki said 15,000 registrars would be required in Chicago.

Building List to be Announced.

County Clerk Michael J. Flynn is expected to announce today the public buildings to be used for registration in the parts of Cook county where the election machinery is under his supervision. Public buildings will be used thruout the state wherever necessary to comply with the rule that no business activity shall be under way in any building where registration is held.

Armstrong said he learned yesterday that his two assistants—one for Cook county and one for downstate—must be National Guard or reserve officers familiar with the selective service plan. He said he had asked Lieut. Col. Louis B. Hershey, temporary national director of the draft, for more instructions on choosing the assistants. Personnel of the 284 local draft boards of the state will be submitted to Gov. Henry Horner for approval next Tuesday or Wednesday, Armstrong said.

KNOX ADVOCATES U. S. WARSHIPS IN AUSTRALIAN AREA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 2.—Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox today said he favored sending American warships to Australia and New Zealand in view of the situation which has arisen in the far east since the conclusion of the German-Italian-Japanese alliance.

The secretary said he had heard unofficial talk of sending American warships to the principal British possessions in the Pacific. Altho he emphasized that nothing had been done about it, he asserted that it was "not a bad idea" in his opinion.

At the same time he disclosed that he would discuss the far eastern problem at a conference here with Admiral James O. Richardson, commander in chief of the United States fleet, next week.

WAR AND POWER TWIN ENEMIES, BROOKS ASSERTS

Decatur, Ill., Oct. 2 [Special].—Wayland Brooks, Republican candidate for United States senator, speaking here tonight in the high school auditorium, said that war and concentration of government power are the twin enemies of progress and liberty.

"Two things are tramping out human liberty across the face of the earth tonight," Brooks declared. "One is war and the other is the concentration of the power of government over the lives and liberties of men in a few arrogant hands. Wherever you find one, you will find the other. They are the twin enemies of progress and liberty."

Brooks is touring the state with Arthur C. Lueder, Republican candidate for state auditor, and William G. Stratton, Republican candidate for congressman at large. Earlier they spoke at meetings in Marshall, Casey, Meoga, Shelbyville, Sullivan, and spoke at a night meeting at Lincoln.

CONSCRIPT ARMY FUNDS APPROVED BY SENATE GROUP

Washington, D. C., Oct. 2 (AP).—A $1,482,693,636 appropriations bill to finance a conscript army—last of the national defense measures before congress—was approved today by the senate appropriations committee.

The committee also reported out a $199,418,728 supplemental civil functions money bill, clearing the way for senate action on both measures tomorrow. From the civil functions bill, the committee slashed $30,000,000 in cash and $50,000,000 in contract authority which the house had approved for starting a nation-wide airport construction program.

As recommended by the committee, the big defense bill carried funds to provide for food, clothes, pay, equipment, and training of a peacetime fighting force of 1,024,441 men, including conscripts, national guardsmen, and reserves, who would supplement the army's 375,000 regulars.

Gandhi Refuses to Allow Civil Disobedience Drive

BOMBAY, Oct. 3, Thursday (AP).—Mohandas K. Gandhi announced today there will be no civil disobedience campaign in India, direct or indirect, despite disagreement over the question of wartime freedom of speech. Indian Nationalists celebrated Gandhi's 71st birthday yesterday with cotton spinning competitions.

Carries Three Soldiers

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 2 (AP).—A midget combat car, capable of 60 miles an hour speed, underwent army tests here today preliminary to a 1,000 mile cross-country "torture" grind next week.

The tiny car, designed to carry three soldiers, a .30 caliber swivel mounted machine gun, and 3,000 rounds of ammunition, has an 80 inch wheelbase, oversized tractor tread tires, and four wheel drive. The compact four cylinder engine turns up 40 horsepower and its cubic inch displacement of 113 compares with approximately 215 cubic inches in popular low priced automobiles.

The "pilot" model is being run under every conceivable condition which may be encountered in service with troops. Officers at the army's Holabird motor transport depot here said the car was getting workouts to determine any weaknesses warranting a change in specification before the manufacturer begins production on a war department contract for 70 of the new, highly mobile weapons.

3,000 Political Prisoners Liberated by Bulgaria

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Oct. 2 (AP).—Three thousand political prisoners were freed today by a general amnesty commemorating the 22d anniversary of King Boris' ascension to the throne. The prisoners were chiefly communists and Macedonian terrorists.

LINK 2,000 ARMS PLANT WORKERS WITH NAZI BUND

Newark, N. J., Oct. 2 (AP).—A Dies subcommittee spokesman announced today that questioning of visitors to the German American bund's camp Nordland had disclosed hundreds of Nazi sympathizers employed in munitions, shipbuilding, and other national defense industries.

Chairman Joe Starnes [D., Ala.] declared "a cross section" of 2,000 visitors to the Andover bund camp were questioned and "without exception every witness was employed in defense work."

The inquiry unearthed evidence of sabotage, Starnes continued, remarking he did not chose to reveal incidents because that might hinder federal and local police inquiries.

Starnes asserted the "abundance of the testimony" showed the bund was an "agent of a foreign power whose sympathies and allegiance are to another government and its policies. There is no place in American life for such an organization."

ARMY OPPOSED TO CENSORSHIP, SAYS PRESS AID

New York, Oct. 2 (AP).—The war department's opposition to censorship was voiced today by Lieut. Col. Stanley J. Grogan of the general staff press section. The army, Col. Grogan declared, believes censorship "is very often worse than that which it attempts to prevent."

He praised American newspapers for "a magnificent service in the national defense effort," and said that military officials believed the press would coöperate voluntarily with authorities in such a way as to make censorship unnecessary.

REPORT 38,000 JAP SOLDIERS ENTER HAIPHONG

HONGKONG, Oct. 3 [Thursday] (AP).—The Chinese central news agency asserted today 38,000 Japanese troops with 60 tanks already had landed at Haiphong, French Indo-China. Japanese forces that entered the colony at Dongdang and Langson were marching in the direction of Hanoi, the capital, the agency added.

CANADA SHOWS HER INCREASING AIR WAR POWER

Tribune Writer Sees 40 Planes 'Fight.'

BY WAYNE THOMIS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[THIRD ARTICLE]

CAMP BORDEN, Ont., Oct. 2.—An air raid siren wailed a dismal warning off among the airplane hangars. Fire engines came charging out to park a safe distance from these obvious targets. Twenty-seven single seat fighter planes lined up on the apron with propellers idling, each turned and rolled along behind the leading craft.

The little, chunky "fighters"—actually North American Yale and Harvard trainers—took off in groups of three. From barracks streamed antiaircraft gun crews to the 3.75 inch cannon and to the Lewis and Bren machine gun emplacements, circular pits surrounded by sandbags with a gun mounting that allowed high angle fire of the guns.

"Here come the raiders," said Group Captain R. G. Cowley, commandant of the station, who stood with American and Canadian newspaper correspondents watching this "air raid" on the Canadian Royal Air force advanced flying field here. He pointed to the north.

Defense Guns Open Fire.

The cloudless sky was empty save for a few puffs of white smoke. As we looked, however, there were golden flashes that formed the heart of further puffs.

"Antiaircraft fire," said Capt. Crowley.

Above us circled the 27 gleaming all metal planes, climbing for altitude and gradually forming into elements of three ship "Vs." They had broken into two big formations, one with 15 ships, and the other with 12, and while one group circled to the south the other circled to the north.

"Keeping one group opposite the other so that no side of the field is ever left unprotected," the captain explained.

A glance to the north revealed six black specks at the center of the smoke puffs, and another group of six planes above the puffs. The enemy!

The fighters overhead gave no sign that the raiders were sighted. Still climbing for altitude, the defense formations stayed above the field. Second by second the raiders got larger, revealing themselves at last as one formation of Airspeed Oxford twin-engined trainers and one of bimotored Avro Ansons. Both types are used for bombing and navigational training.

As the bombers banked slightly and headed into gentle dives at the airport, the two groups of defending fighters swept down and intercepted them.

40 Ships Wheel Thru Air.

For a few moments the air was filled with more than 40 ships wheeling, diving or climbing at exaggerated angles. Then both groups pulled away just in time as two trailing enemy bombers—Northrop A-17 attack ships—howled down in a dive at the hangars. From both planes dropped a rain of flour bombs, hitting all the 12 hangars.

The show was not over, however. One of the Northrops wavered in its flight and smoke poured out of its engine. Low down and flying fast, the pilot turned downwind behind the hangars, apparently seeking a spot to land. While we anxiously watched to see whether the ship climbed again above the trees, Capt. Cowley grinned and said, "He told me he'd do that. I didn't think he'd fool you so completely. It was just part of the show."

At that moment a cloud of black smoke rolled up from a hillside toward which the "crippled" airplane had turned. The simulation of the crash was so complete that most of us insisted upon going over to the spot before we were convinced that the joke was at our expense. The smoke was from a chemical pot set off purposely.

Camp Borden, we were told, is only one of 32 airports in Canada where some 6,000 cadet pilots and an almost equal number of gunners and observers are training as part of the commonwealth air training plan. To these fields England and Australia, New Zealand and other dominions send flying recruits.

Nearly $700,000,000, shared about equally by England and Canada, has been allocated for the program.

26 Primary Schools.

Training of pilots begins in 26 primary schools, many of which are civilian administered like the primary schools of the United States army air corp. The course is seven weeks long. From these successful trainees go to 16 service flying training schools where they study seven weeks in the intermediate stage and seven more in the advanced flying squadrons. A final two weeks of training is spent at one of 10 bombing and gunnery schools. Gunners and observers take courses of 28 weeks at special schools.

When in full operation the scheme is expected to turn out 25,000 trained airmen annually. At this time only about 40 per cent of the program is finished, and the schedule for pilots is as follows:

By Jan. 1, 1941—204 pilots, 102 observers and 252 gunners in addition to existing squadrons overseas.

By April 1, 1941—850 pilots, 408 observers and 700 gunners.

By July 1, 1941—1,368 pilots, 950 observers and 1,550 air gunners.

The great obstacle to be overcome, we were told, is in instructors and in advanced flying equipment. England was expected to contribute to both these phases of the program, but requirements of her defense against the blitzkrieg prevented the sending of either pilots or airplanes.

The advanced trainers now in use are North American airplanes built at Inglewood, Cal., by the North American company. The Harvard is a 200 mile an hour fighter with retractible landing gear and a 600 horse power Wasp motor. The Yale is a lighter version.

Two weeks ago Canada obtained 50 Yales that were ordered by France before the French collapse, and more have been purchased.

Americans Instruct.

The instructor shortage is rapidly being met by training Canadian pilots and by hiring Americans. Among American pilots now in Canadian uniforms are Harold [Whitey] Dahl, who was Generalissimo Francisco Franco's prisoner in Spain for nearly two years after being shot down behind Loyalist lines in the Spanish war, and Capt. Homer Berry, who formerly flew from Chicago.

The training of service pilots has hardly commenced. Thirty new service pilots are graduated every seven weeks from Camp Borden, and this school is virtually the only one now actively operating.

Canadian factories are building hundreds of trainer craft, and contracts have been awarded for the construction of almost 100 bombers and 600 Hurricane fighters in Canada. The engines of the service craft will be fitted in England.

Flying to U.S.

Grand Duchess Charlotte.

New York, Oct. 2 (AP).—The Grand Duchess Charlotte Adelgonde of Luxemburg, who ruled her tiny country for 21 years before German invaders forced her to flee, will arrive here Friday on a Pan-American Clipper, airplane officials said today. Her Prince Consort Felix and their six children reached this country last July 25 aboard the United States cruiser Trenton and are living in the Long Island home of Joseph E. Davies, former United States ambassador to Belgium.

ONLY NAZIS WHO 'DO THEIR DUTY' TO GET PENSIONS

Base New Type Payments on Living Standard.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 2.—Only Germans who do their duty as "citizens of the greater German reich" will share in the new old age pensions, according to Dr. Robert Ley, German Labor Front leader.

Dr. Robert Ley.

Ley, who was entrusted by Fuehrer Adolf Hitler last Feb. 15 with drafting a new pension system, said those who "by their actions or attitudes place themselves outside of the German people" will be passed over when pension funds are distributed.

Where the pension money is coming from or how large pensions will be was not revealed, but it was said the payments will be sufficient to provide food, housing, and "a foundation for cultural life." Payments will depend upon the standard of living of the citizen before becoming eligible for a pension.

BULLET PIERCED BODY IS FOUND IN FOREST DISTRICT

The bullet pierced body of K. J. Tabor, 48 years old, 5750 Rogers avenue, was found yesterday in the Deer Grove section of the forest preserve, a mile off Dundee road, near Palatine. A .38 caliber pistol was near the body. Tabor had been shot in the chest and head. Garage attendants in Palatine told highway police of district 1 that Tabor had wrecked his car near the same spot Tuesday night.

After the machine was towed to Palatine, Tabor told Ralph Bartels, one of the attendants, that he feared fifth columnists. Then he disappeared.

The body was lying on an automobile robe, altho Tabor's auto robe was still in the wrecked car, authorities said. Physicians asserted it would have been possible for Tabor to have shot himself in the head if the bullet fired into his chest missed the heart. They were puzzled, however, by the fact that tho his shirt was pierced and powder burned there was no hole in his sweater, which was buttoned over the wound. A former tenant of Tabor's was sought for questioning.

REPORT U. S. BID FOR RETURN OF FRENCH PLANES

Washington, D. C., Oct. 2 (AP).—American efforts to recover more than 100 American built war planes lying idle on the French island of Martinique in the Caribbean were reported in diplomatic quarters today.

Usually well informed persons said they understood this was one of the principal topics discussed yesterday by President Roosevelt and the French ambassador, Henri Haye. The planes, bought by the former Anglo-French purchasing mission, were taken to the island aboard the French aircraft carrier Bearn about the time of the French-German armistice. British warships have prevented the removal since.

Return of the planes to the United States for use in its own defense program, diplomatic sources said, might help to improve relations generally between this country and the Vichy government and ease tension over the Martinique problem. The ambassador was said to have made no definite promises except to refer the matter to his government.

4,705 Vacancies in CCC for Illinois This Month

A total of 4,705 young men in Illinois can find employment in the Civilian Conservation corps during October, Leo M. Lyons, executive secretary of the Illinois emergency relief commission, announced yesterday. Of this total, employment is available to 1,909 in Cook county and the remaining 2,796 downstate.

NEW 2D ARMY CHIEF IS NAMED LIEUT. GENERAL

Maj. Gen. Ben Lear, new commander of the 6th corps area and the 2d army, yesterday was notified of his promotion to lieutenant general, a rank which he will retain during his command of the 2d army. Gen. Lear succeeds Lieut. Gen. Stanley H. Ford, who departed last week-end and who now is on leave awaiting retirement.

The 2d army area includes the 6th corps area, made up of Illinois, Michigan, and Wisconsin, and the 5th corps area, made up of Indiana, Ohio, Kentucky, and West Virginia. The commander of each of the four army areas into which the nation is organized has the rank of lieutenant general.

Gen. Lear came to Chicago from the Panama Canal Zone, where he was commander of the mobile force. He is living at Fort Sheridan.

FRENCH EX-MINISTER TO BE PUT ON TRIAL AS ARMY DESERTER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VICHY, France, Oct. 2.—Jean Zay, one time French minister of education and army officer, will be tried for desertion Friday before a military court at Clermont - Ferrand. Zay was among 25 or 30 members of the government and parliamentarians, including Edouard Daladier, former premier, who sailed June 19 from Bordeaux for Africa when there was disagreement over whether an armistice should be negotiated or war continued from the African colonies.

Jean Zay.

Seize Foes of Petain Régime.

VICHY, France, Oct. 2 (AP).—The government today announced that a number of persons accused of trying to stir up trouble for the Marshal Philippe Petain régime have been taken into custody. The action was based on a decree empowering the authorities to put under guard any person considered dangerous to the national defense and public order.

A radio broadcast from German occupied Paris today said the former French labor czar, Leon Jouhaux, had been arrested. The report could not be confirmed here.

TRUCK DRIVERS GET BAIL CARDS; DELAYS AVOIDED

Truck drivers employed by members of the Central Motor Freight association are being supplied with $150 bail bond cards good within the state of Illinois, it was disclosed yesterday. The association, which has its headquarters in Chicago, has about 600 member truck companies with offices in Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, Ohio, and Iowa.

When a truck driver is arrested on an Illinois highway he is taken to police headquarters where he is allowed to put up his bail card and go on his way. Previously, the truck driver usually had to supply his own bond, resulting in costly delay.

Four Retiring Town Hall Police Veterans Honored

Four veterans of the Town Hall police were honored last night with a farewell party in the banquet hall at 3239 North Clark street. They are Sergt. Michael Miniter, who retired Aug. 1; Policeman Thomas Sullivan, who retired Aug. 15; Policeman Michal Walsh, who retired Sept. 6, and Police Operator James Neary, who will retire Oct. 19. Five hundred friends attended the party, which was sponsored by the Town Hall club.

BOY OF 7 DARTS IN PATH OF BUS AND IS KILLED

Donald Treutelaar, 7 years old, 2957 North Long avenue, was killed yesterday by a Chicago Surface Lines bus at Diversey and Long avenues. Police said the boy, late for school, dashed across the street just as the bus started after halting to discharge passengers.

Ben Sliwinski, 18, died in St. James hospital at Chicago Heights of injuries suffered Monday in an automobile collision at Glenwood-Lansing road and Cottage avenue in Bloom township. Sliwinski, who lived at 183d street and Bolbrecht road in Bloom township, was the fourth to die as a result of the accident.

Mrs. Julia Kerekes, 79 years old, 11950 South Morgan street, a widow, died yesterday in Loretto hospital from injuries suffered Sept. 22 when she walked against the side of an automobile at 118th and Halsted streets. Charles Ernst, 4221 Oakenwald avenue, was the driver.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 648 persons had been killed in traffic accidents in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 478 were killed in Chicago, where 17,618 were injured during the same period.

Gets 10 Days for Driving Truck While Intoxicated

Carl Sands, 35 years old, 2144 North Clark street, a truck driver, was sentenced to 10 days in the county jail yesterday by Judge Joseph Hermes in Safety court on a charge of driving while intoxicated. His chauffeur's license was ordered suspended for six months. Sands was arrested Oct. 1 in the vicinity of Halsted street and Grand avenue.

TWO ARRESTED FOR NOISY AUTOS.

William Bourke, 8125 South Elizabeth street, and Donald Morrison, 4840 Ravenswood avenue, were arrested by traffic division police yesterday for failure to have mufflers on their cars.

FEDERAL AGENTS TO PROBE BOOST IN MILK PRICES

Leo F. Tierney, special assistant United States attorney general, said yesterday an investigation would be made by government agents to determine if there was any collusion by milk dealers in increasing retail milk prices in Chicago and suburbs.

The price boost was put into effect Tuesday, not only by the milk dealers employing union labor but by the cut rate concerns who do not use union help.

The prosecutor said any evidence found of collusion would lead to a grand jury investigation. Officials of the major unionized dairies assert the price raise was due to labor and production costs and the decision to stop selling milk at a loss in order to meet the competition of the cut rate concerns.

AGREE ON BILL TO ADD 200,000 TO CIVIL SERVICE

Washington, D. C., Oct. 2 (AP).—A joint house-senate committee agreed today on a compromise bill authorizing the President to bring under civil service more than 200,000 federal workers.

The agreement made possible final congressional action some time this week. House and senate previously had approved the measure in different forms.

The bill would give the President discretion to extend civil service classification to those employés of the so-called "temporary" government agencies who had "served with merit" for six months before their jobs were classified, had passed a noncompetitive examination and had been pronounced competent.

TODAY'S THE DAY IN SOUTH BEND; STARS ARRIVE

W-G-N to Broadcast Gala Rockne Week Banquet.

BY BRUCE DENNIS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 2—They're tenting tonight on the plaza near South Bend's union station. They're sleeping in automobiles and on park benches. These early birds, men, women, and children, are radio and motion picture enthusiasts making sure of a point of vantage for the arrival tomorrow of a trainload of Hollywood and airlane celebrities. The stars are coming here for the world première of the Warner Bros. motion picture, "Knute Rockne-All-American."

Tomorrow evening national Knute Rockne week, proclaimed by the governors of some 18 states, reaches its first climax. This will be the nationwide W-G-N and Mutual network broadcast from the dining hall on the Notre Dame university campus, from 7:30 to 8 o'clock.

Program Switched.

More than 1,000 persons will be gathered in the hall for the Rockne week banquet. For the broadcast, W-G-N is switching its weekly "In Chicago Tonight" program to this city Chicagoland's entertainment capital for the week.

At the microphone as master of ceremonies will be Bob Hope, film and radio comedian. Hope will call on Pat O'Brien, Chicago favorite, who plays the rôle of Rockne in the picture; Gale Page, who is cast as Mrs. Rockne; Ronald Reagan, Donald Crisp, other featured players.

Mrs. Bonnie Skiles Rockne, widow of the famous Notre Dame coach, will be introduced by the Most Rev. J. Hugh O'Donnell, president of the university.

Kate Smith, outstanding personality and songstress of radio, will be another of the guest stars on the air show. William A. Bacher, chief of programs and production at W-G-N, may incorporate other notables in the program. A special musical background, under the supervision of Harold Stokes, has been arranged.

The Hollywood stars will arrive in Chicago at 1:45 p. m. on the Super Chief, and will leave for South Bend at 2:15 from the La Salle street station. They are due here at 4 p. m.

Hold Première Friday.

The group will then go into a huddle with Bacher and the W-G-N staff for a final polishing of the broadcast program.

The "Knute Rockne, All-American" première will take place Friday in four South Bend theaters. Saturday comes a third high spot—Notre Dame opens the football season against A. A. Stagg's College of the Pacific.

ATTORNEY WINS G. O. P. SENATE RUNOFF IN UTAH

Salt Lake City, Utah, Oct. 2 (AP).—Philo T. Farnsworth Jr., Salt Lake city attorney, won the Republican senatorial nomination in a walk and qualified to oppose Representative Abe Murdock in the November election, returns from Utah's runoff primary showed tonight. Farnsworth swamped Oscar W. Carlson in 779 of 832 districts, polling 25,155 to Carlson's 15,080.

Murdock won the Democratic nomination in the first primary, defeating, among others, the veteran incumbent, William H. King.

Dr. Herbert B. Maw captured the Democratic gubernatorial nomination easily. Don B. Colton, former congressman, seemed to have edged out Reed Stevens, Salt Lake City business man, as the Republican entry for governor, on the basis of unofficial nose crumples and "sticks" to the returns, 21,550 to 21,047.

Neglected Bride

MRS. NANCY LEAF.

New York, Oct. 2 (AP).—Referee Edward J. Gavegan had under consideration today the plea for marriage annulment of Mrs. Nancy Leaf, formerly of Portland, Ore., who complained that her honeymoon with Earl H. Leaf of New York was just a transcontinental train ride.

Married last March 16 on the west coast, the blue-eyed, 25 year old bride said her husband treated her just like any other passenger. When the couple reached New York, Mrs. Leaf testified, Leaf said he had married her because she would be a social asset in his business as "financial representative of the Chinese government." Leaf was not represented at yesterday's hearing.

BRITISH SAY IRON GUARD KIDNAPED OIL FIRM CHIEF

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Oct. 2 (AP).—Director A. Miller of the British dominated Astra-Romana Oil company was carried away early today by four men at a suburban sports club maintained by the company. Official British circles, identifying the four as Iron Guardists, said Miller was kidnaped but there were other theories that he had been arrested by plainclothes police.

[The German radio said "details available indicate Miller was arrested on orders of Rumanian authorities, as were lately five other Englishmen who were suspected of sabotage activities in Rumanian oil fields."]

Astra-Romana's properties were confiscated by Rumania July 24. Britons expressed belief that charges by the pro-Nazi Iron Guard of a British plot to blow up oil tankers en route to Germany and to treat gasoline with chemicals to cripple German warplanes were involved. They said the men who took Miller apparently believed he might be able to supply information on the purported plot.

NAZIS BAR PHONES TO JEWS; TAKE UP COAL CARDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 2.—German authorities today admitted Jews are no longer allowed to have telephones. Only Jewish organizations such hospitals, doctors treating only Jews, and welfare organizations may have them. Jews who received cards allowing them to buy coal to heat their homes were ordered to return them and have received no substitutes. They also were compelled to return the "Berlin card" permitting them to buy special rations, such as an extra quarter pound of candy every few weeks and a special three ounce issue of coffee for October.

DRIVERS' ALIEN LEADER OUSTED BY COURT RULE

Minneapolis Union to Get Accounting.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 2 [Special].—A 20 months court battle to clean up the notorious General Drivers' union, local 544, was climaxed today by District Judge Paul S. Carroll ordering the removal of the organization's alien president, Carl Skoglund, and imposing numerous other reforms on the operation of the union.

Among changes the judge ordered were:

Repayment to the union of more than $6,000 by certain of its officers. The regular annual election of officers in December be conducted under the direction of a court appointed watchman. Union officers pay out no money, except for legitimate petty cash, without a proper voucher itemizing the demand. No sick or death benefits be paid until a uniform plan of payment is accepted by the membership.

Supporters of Communism.

Relative to testimony that sought to link officers of the union to the communist party, Judge Carroll said that altho he did not find officers to be members of that party, some are friendly to, and believers and followers of the Trotsky movement.

The long legal fight was started early in 1938 by four union members who petitioned for removal of the union officers and sought a court audit of the local's finances. They charged that officers misused the union's funds and resorted to force and coercion to increase the union's membership and perpetuate themselves in office.

Judge Carroll ordered removal of Skoglund, a native of Sweden, on the ground he is not an American citizen as is required by the union's by-laws. Skoglund admitted he had taken out only his first citizenship papers. Removal of any other officers was denied.

Acting President Named.

George Frosig, vice president, was directed to be acting president until the December election. The judge specifically forbade any special election to fill the office in the meantime.

In addition to the other requirements, Judge Carroll directed that a financial statement be presented in writing to the membership every quarter and that the union's secretary treasurer be bonded in a sum equal to the union's daily cash balance.

Reviewing the union's history of numerous strikes, the judge said he found that only once was a strike vote taken by the entire union membership. He said the officers' quickness in threatening to strike brought the union into disrepute.

ALDERMAN ASKS REDUCED FARES ON BUS ROUTES

Keenan Cites Coach Line's Valuation.

A resolution charging that the 10 cent fare now charged by the Chicago Motor Coach company is excessive and asking for an investigation of the company's physical assets with a view to reducing rates was introduced in the city council yesterday by Ald. Frank Keenan [49th].

The resolution stated that the company is seeking 10 million dollars for its properties in a proposed sale to a unified transit system, altho its properties are listed on its own books at "somewhat in excess of 5 million." Keenan charged the estimated assets are based on excessive rates.

Urges a 7 Cent Fare.

"It is high time the bus riders are given some protection," said Ald. Keenan. "They shouldn't have to pay more than 7 cents, and 8 cents should be the maximum." He also said the company has been using the streets without compensation to the city. "The buses have been ruining the streets," he charged.

The alderman said the Illinois Commerce commission was never called upon to place a valuation on the physical property of the bus company after it had issued a certificate of convenience and necessity. "It should take immediate action to appraise the company's property and then set rates accordingly," he asserted. "I am confident such action would result in a 2 or 3 cent fare reduction and show that the company is in a position to compensate the city for use of the streets."

Overcrowding Also Cited.

Ald Keenan said his attention also had been called to overcrowding of buses during the rush hours. "The least the company could do would be to make the bus riders comfortable," he said.

Investigation of bus rates was asked in a complaint filed yesterday with the commerce commission by Stanley J. Orlowski, president and general manager of the Famous Sausage company. The complaint charged that bus riders are paying excessive rates to the tune of $400,000 a year and that the company's earnings are more than 14 per cent on its invested capital and physical assets.

NAVY ORGANIZES NEW PATROL UNIT OF 125 SHIPS IN THE ATLANTIC

Washington, D. C., Oct. 2 (AP).—The United States navy, confronted with the mutual assistance pact signed recently by Germany, Italy, and Japan, plans to establish "a newly organized force" of more than 125 ships in the Atlantic ocean in addition to the present big fleet in the Pacific. This was announced late today by the navy in the following words:

"The navy department will establish, in the near future, a newly organized force in the Atlantic. This force will become an integral part of the United States fleet and will be designated as the patrol force, United States fleet. Rear Admiral Hayne Ellis, United States navy, will command this force.

"The new force will consist of the ships now in the Atlantic, some new ships as they are completed, recently recommissioned vessels, and vessels purchased and converted for naval use. The patrol force will include all types of vessels and aircraft and will number more than 125 ships. Having all the vessels in the Atlantic under one commander will result in increased efficiency in the operations of the vessels."

REPUBLICAN
Who Got Us in Midstream.

BY CARLISLE BARGERON.

(Assigned by Republican National Committee.)

"There has been a lot of talk about the danger of changing administrations in an emergency. The closer Mr. Roosevelt gets us to war, the more people say that we ought not to change horses in the middle of the stream. Well, for one thing, what are we doing in the middle of the stream? How did we get there? The man who got us in is not the right one to get us out."—Wendell Willkie, at Detroit.

Private advices from England agree that the beleaguered British feel very bitter toward us. Mr. Roosevelt, personally, is an idol, but we, the people, are a race of cowards, a race of slackers.

They say to the Americans over there: "You got us into this, when do you intend to do your part?"

This is true in every country in Europe which is not directly hostile to us. No country is friendly toward us. But in the stricken countries the disposition is to separate Mr. Roosevelt from the rest of us. He is doing his best to make good on his promises of assistance. He is doing his best to lead us into war. But the rest of us are cowardly stubborn and won't follow him.

This is undoubtedly what Gov. Lehman and the others are referring to when they say Hitler will be happy if Mr. Roosevelt is defeated. The only possible interpretation to put on such statements is that a Roosevelt victory means that we go in. A vote for Roosevelt is, therefore, a VOTE FOR WAR.

Now, we aren't complaining about the feeling against us in England and France. In view of the promises of Mr. Roosevelt and his ace ambassador, Bill Bullitt, it is justified. BUT WHAT SORT OF LEADERSHIP IS MR. ROOSEVELT GIVING THE AMERICAN PEOPLE, WHEN HE PUTS THEM IN THE LIGHT OF BEING SHIRKERS FROM THEIR SUPPOSED DUTY?

Indeed, what sort of leadership does the current set-to with Japan constitute. The Congressional Record will show that Republican leaders—particularly Senators Hiram Johnson, Arthur Vandenberg, and H. Styles Bridges—have advocated an embargo on scrap iron to Japan for at least two years. Mr. Roosevelt takes this action when more excitement will attach to it, when it can be advertised as an example of brilliant world leadership. And the response he gets is an alliance between Germany, Italy, and Japan.

DEMOCRATIC
Business Booms Under Roosevelt.

(Provided by the Democratic National Committee.)

Business and employment have made remarkable strides in the last seven years under the Roosevelt administration.

Under the Hoover administration in 1932, the national income slumped off to a point below 40 billion dollars, a dizzy drop of more than half in four years. Farm prices were at the lowest ebb in 300 years and the effect on industrial production and factory pay rolls was devastating.

The American people who listened to the glib campaign promises of two chickens in every pot, and two cars in every garage, had a rude awakening.

The aggregate income of workers and earners climbed steadily after Roosevelt got to the White House. It was greater than 70 billion dollars last year and the figure for 1940 will be even higher.

The index of factory production has advanced from 63 at the bottom of the depression until it has now climbed above 100. The volume of factory production is now greater than it was in 1929, the so-called peak year of the Hoover inflationary boom.

The evidences of better times are here for any citizen who cares to look about him. Factories are putting on more employés, retail sales are booming, and the volume of goods moving in trade is constantly expanding. It should be borne in mind that this upswing was in progress long before the present defense program got underway.

The corporations of the United States had a total loss of $5,500,000,000 for 1932. The corporations made more than $5,000,000,000 in 1937, the last year for which complete figures are available, and since then profits have increased.

How Will He Do It?

Wendell Willkie now promises to put an end to this period of continual "industrial depression." He has solemnly pledged himself to provide a job in private industry for every worker in America, without adding the smallest hint of how he proposes to do it. No man now living, or who ever lived, could fulfill such a promise.

At Coffeyville, Kas., he said he had no confidence in President Roosevelt's leadership because in seven years "he could not make one man a job." What are the facts?

The record shows that more than 8 million workers have found jobs since 1932.

From a Former Republican.

Candidate Willkie's promise to "give the United States back to the people" brought an ironic letter from a former Republican, who wrote:

"I invested $2,000 in a stock issue [Commonwealth and Southern] which they were unloading on 'we, the American people'. I paid $25 a share for it. It is worth now just $3 a share.

"I tried to sell it back to them, but they cleverly refused to buy. They showed better judgment than I did."

The stock was issued in the Hoover boom period. The promoters are solidly behind Willkie in this campaign. They know their man.

ONE ALDERMAN'S INCOME, WEIGHED, FOUND WANTING

Douglas Audits His Books for the Public.

An alderman's job is a losing proposition, Paul H. Douglas, professor of economics at the University of Chicago and alderman of the 5th ward, asserted yesterday. He cited a certified audit of his 1939 income showing that his public service cost him just $18.28.

Ald. Douglas.

Douglas' report showed his income under the "aldermanic" account totaled $3,522 from April, 1939, when he assumed office, to the end of the year. Against this income were tallied expenditures of $3,540, largely charitable contributions and expenses of office.

Publication of the account was made to fulfill a campaign promise to the voters of his ward, Douglas said, and not because of "priggishness" or any desire to cast reflections on his colleagues in office.

Cites Difficulties of Job.

"When I consider the difficulties which they [the colleagues] encounter,", Alderman Douglas said, "the temptations to which they are exposed, and the degree of public indifference upon such matters, I sometimes marvel they do as well as they do."

Douglas' income totaled $11,423 for the year, including salary and fees from the university, lecture fees, labor arbitration fees, and literary earnings.

"Financially, the alderman's job was a loss," he said, "but I had more fun than I've had during any period in my life. However, I don't know whether my wife and daughter would agree, since the job took up a lot of my time."

Itemizes His Expenditures.

Some of the expense items listed in the audit were "grass seed for barren lawns in ward $125;" "garbage cans for ward $46," "charitable and civic contributions and dues and subscriptions $699," and "payments on aldermanic campaign deficit assumed $659."

"All this raises the interesting question of what the public expects and wants from aldermen," Alderman Douglas stated. "We are elected to a job which, if well done, requires the 8 to 10 hours a day that I have put in. We are not able to save a cent from our salaries and therefore give our time for nothing. The public does not seem to care greatly if we do our work well, but it is very censorious if our feet slip.

"What can the people legitimately expect under such conditions?" he asked. "Personally, I have come to the conclusion that under present conditions the public is probably getting at least as good government as it deserves."

FEDERAL TAXES THREATEN RUIN, GEORGIANS WARN

Macon, Ga., Oct. 2 [Special].—A declaration that heavy federal taxes are destroying the ability of citizens to pay state, county, municipal and school taxes, and that "should the several states continue to increase taxes to match federal funds all will become bankrupt," was unanimously adopted today by the Georgia Democratic state convention.

The criticism was contained in the preamble to the Democratic state platform and was regarded as representing the views of Gov. Elect Eugene Talmadge, who was an arch critic of the New Deal administration during his two former terms as governor from 1932 to 1936.

The convention also called for "a curtailment of the nondefense extraordinary expenditures of the national government, however well merited they may have heretofore been."

This plank of the platform asserted that "there can be no economy now in the expenditures for national defense without endangering the safety of our country and our cherished liberties and institutions."

FERTILE SOURCE OF DEFENSE MONEY.

As late as the third week of May, killing time was the principal concern of the house committee which deals with taxation. Sentiment in the ways and means committee and in congress generally was against any new taxes in an election year. And to avoid even talk of new levies the committee was stringing along hearings on a measure which hadn't the slightest chance of being reported out favorably.

This dawdling was all right with the President, too, for about this time he indicated that all he wanted of congress was the appropriation bills and an early adjournment. But late in May mail poured in on congress urging it to stay in session as a safeguard against precipitate steps by the executive during adjournment which might plunge the country into war. And to stay on in Washington thru the deadly heat became the determination of a majority of both houses.

When our impetuous President was told that congress was in no mood to retire from the scene he was peeved. He called in the leaders of his party and told them that if they were going to hang around they could get busy and pass him some taxes.

That was almost no sooner said by the President than it was done by congress. On May 28 the first 1940 tax law was first talked about. Two weeks later the house had passed a bill. And within a month after Mr. Roosevelt asked for it a hit-and-run tax measure was delivered at the White House for his signature.

The law drastically boosted all income tax rates. It did that by increasing the surtaxes, particularly on middle-sized incomes, and cutting the exemption for single persons down to $800. On top of this it added a supertax of 10 per cent to whatever the tax bill would otherwise be. It raised corporation taxes, and as well a long list of excises.

That was a honey. It caught people who never were taxed, it raised specific rates, and then lifted everybody's bill another 10 per cent. It boosted the levies on corporations, and on the fellow who hasn't a corporation but just buys cigarets, a bottle of beer, and a pack of cards. Congress had outdone itself. But the worst was not yet seen.

Less than a week after the first 1940 tax measure was enacted the President sent a message to congress asking that it pass a second tax law basing it upon the excess profits of both individuals and corporations. This time it took longer, but the Democratic majority in congress would not fail its leader. On Aug. 28 the house passed the second 1940 tax measure. As approved by the lower branch of congress, it was described as the most amateurish bill ever to get by either house dealing with an important question. It authorized a corporation to pick the theory on which it should be taxed between two opposite theories. If one theory was picked existing tax rates should apply, but if the other theory was chosen the ordinary tax rate was boosted. And there were other provisions so involved that even their purpose was uncertain to persons long experienced in taxation methods.

The senate refused to approve the house bill and worked out a measure of its own which was harsh, but a great improvement technically over what had been approved by the house. Last Sunday a conference committee of the two houses reached an agreement on a bill which will now probably be approved.

The extra billion to be collected under the latest bill won't even make a dent in the deficit. But tho the billion won't do the government much good its loss to corporations will severely handicap them at a time when the need is for bigger plant equipment to turn out more products. The national administration can accomplish far more in finding defense money by cutting out its wasteful expenditures among nondefense activities than by any form of taxation it may adopt. Three billion dollars paid all the nondefense expenditures before Mr. Roosevelt took office, and he said in his speeches in 1932 that was too much. This year the nondefense expenditures amount to over 7 billion dollars. Now that every individual and every business is going to contribute toward rearmament costs until it hurts, the national administration ought to be willing to sacrifice say 2 billions a year of its political pelf.

ARM THE BASES.

Mr. Roosevelt claimed when he made the destroyer-naval base deal that the matter was too urgent to permit him to submit it to congress for ratification in the constitutional manner. If the situation was as gravely urgent as he maintained, it is strange that he has taken no steps to protect the Atlantic bases in the weeks that have passed since we acquired them.

There is not a single American soldier, sailor, or marine on guard at any of these bases. So far as the public has been informed, not a single American naval craft has made use of their harbors. No request has been made of congress for the funds, which would be voted readily, to fortify them.

It is conceded that the bases cannot be fortified over night. At the same time, their acquisition certainly did not catch the army and navy flatfooted. Their war plans divisions have been preparing programs for years to meet contingencies far more remote than our use of these Atlantic islands for national defense. Without doubt they knew, fairly accurately, what they wanted to do with each of the bases on the day that they were informed that we had them.

But no steps have been taken by the President to put these plans into execution. No program has been presented to congress. His failure to get started on the bases again highlights Mr. Roosevelt's outstanding weakness. He is long on talk but short on accomplishment.

MICHIGAN'S ROTTEN EGGS.

A Miss Doris La Roue of Detroit has been fired by President Roosevelt himself from her job as a stenographer for the Reconstruction Finance corporation. As the Willkie party passed below her hotel room she had tossed whatever she could lay her hands on out of the window. Fortunately the spittoon, the heavy ash trays, and a chair or two landed without injuring any one. The metal waste basket hit a young woman who was trying to get a Willkie autograph. The victim is in a hospital recovering from a brain concussion and a long scalp wound.

Miss La Roue appears to have been overstimulated and to have meant no harm. She was feeling swell and sought a means of expressing her exhilaration. There is no reason to suppose that her behavior has any serious significance.

But that cannot be said for other incidents of the Willkie campaign in the Michigan automobile towns. In one of his appearances in Detroit Mr. Willkie was greeted with a shower of overripe cantaloupes and tomatoes. In Pontiac rotten eggs were tossed at his automobile. They came close enough to spatter Mrs. Willkie.

That kind of rowdyism is unprecedented in a modern Presidential campaign and Mr. Roosevelt cannot escape his large share of responsibility for it. In a real sense, he planned it that way when he sided with the men of violence in the C. I. O. sitdown strikes in the motor industry. He and his favorite, Frank Murphy, who was governor of Michigan at the time, encouraged rioters to believe they were above the restraints of law and decent behavior provided they voted for the New Deal. The expectable consequences have occurred. There are a lot of rotten eggs in Michigan which the New Deal intends to throw at Mr. Willkie.

Mr. Willkie and the millions who are supporting him in this campaign may take a great deal of satisfaction from these incidents. They prove that the New Dealers in Michigan have no answer to the case presented by Mr. Willkie. For lack of a defense of the New Deal policies Mr. Roosevelt's partisans are obliged to toss tomatoes and rotten eggs. It is not likely that this kind of argument will attract many votes to Mr. Roosevelt, but it can hardly fail to win support for Mr. Willkie among fair-minded men and women.

THE TWO PER CENTERS AND THE DRAFT.

The estimate is that after the registration of Oct. 16 there will be 16 million names on the draft books. Some such number of American voters will be ready for the subsequent action of the draft boards from which 800,000 men in two batches will be selected for military training.

Each of the men who registers in October is to receive a letter from Mr. Roosevelt. The message has been prepared in the White House and is ready to go out. In part, it will say: "I wish I could personally talk to each one of you about your country's present need for a stronger defense and its vital meaning to you, your family, and the whole nation, and whether or not you will be among those selected, I welcome you as one whose name has been inscribed on the roll of honor of those Americans ready, if need be, to join in the common defense of all."

A mailing list of 16 million voters is something any politician would be pleased to have in his desk, if he could raise the postage. Needless to say, Capt. Elliott Roosevelt will not get one of his father's letters. But that's another matter.

Some one should tell the Tammany farmers, Joe Guffey of Pennsylvania, Alben Barkley of Kentucky, Paul V. McNutt and the 2 Per Centers of Indiana, and Mr. Nudelman and the Little Black Book Boys of Illinois that these registered men are not on a government pay roll.

The boys might make a mistake and follow up Mr. Roosevelt's letter with an assessment or a demand for voluntary contributions. The boys might get the draft confused with the WPA and think that the registered men should come across.

AMERICAN FASHIONS.

Ladies and their consorts who look to this department for intelligence respecting the fashions of the hour will not be disappointed. We have seen the fashion show at W-G-N, next door, and here we are writing about it.

Skepticism is this department's specialty. Accordingly, we expected that THE TRIBUNE'S contest for dress designs would produce a lot of amateurish efforts. It was a nice idea to attempt to find a substitute for Paris fashions in America and we hoped the outcome would not be too disheartening.

We sold America short. The simple truth, now known to every one who was lucky enough to see the collection, is that the American amateur designer is no amateur at all. Ladies whose judgment in such matters is beyond dispute assure us, tho no assurance was needed, that no series of Paris openings has ever produced so much that was so fresh and so good.

These designs came, among other places, from Terre Haute, El Paso, and the Utah hinterland. They disclose an astonishing and a widespread talent for costume which is an immense and largely unexploited asset of this country. The taste, the sense of refinement and elegance shown in the collection will go far to establish this country and this city as the fashion center of the world. Those are big words, but we know they are echoed by all who have seen the collection.

ROOSEVELT REFUTES WORDS OF LINCOLN.

[Bucyrus, O., Telegraph-Forum.]

President Roosevelt is trying to do what Lincoln so truthfully said could not be done—fool all of the people all of the time. The President, at his press conference Wednesday, announced that he is hopeful of finding time to "inspect" defenses in Pittsburgh area and also that he would "like very much to see what is going on in aviation in Ohio." No one is being fooled by such announcements. What the President wants to do, what he intends to do and what he will do is make a campaign tour to Pittsburgh and Ohio.

As for "inspecting" defenses, our army has plenty of officers far more capable of making such inspections than Franklin Roosevelt. In this same conference he explained anew that he does not want to get farther than a night's journey from Washington for fear he might get "caught off base" by developments abroad.

Here again he attempts to fool all of the people. The average high school student knows that wherever the President of the United States is he is surrounded by secretaries and private lines of communication which constitute a virtual executive mansion even if he is in a Pullman compartment.

WAKING UP WITH A GROUCH.

If the Cubs don't stop losing to the White Sox, we're gonna move to the south side. . . . If we catch another cold before March 1, we're gonna move to either Rapid City, S. D., Kalispell, Mont., Vernal, Utah, or Boulder, Colo. . . . If the book review magazines don't stop featuring dull thud tomes with a Marxian slant, they're gonna lose a customer. . . . If we burn one more hole in our pants by pipe smoking, we're gonna buy a suit of armor. . . . If the bus company doesn't hire some men to clean and ventilate its rolling stock at the end of every run, we're gonna holler for a law. . . . If we ever see another firstnighter light a match to read his program, we're gonna turn a fire extinguisher on him. . . . If our dog doesn't stop waking us up by barking at the laundryman, we're gonna carry the stuff out to the Chinaman on the corner. . . . If club life doesn't liven up o' nights, we're gonna take to catching the 5:53 for home and books. . . . If . . .

What's this? We draw 50 yard line tickets, practically in the royal box, to Northwestern's football games! "God's in his heaven, all's right with the world."

THE YEAR OF CHANGE.

In the long days to come,
We shall recall
How spring was late this year;
The leaves were small.

The simple face of things
Was still the same;
The violets went away,
And the roses came.

All that we saw was peace
Without a change;
All that we felt, dismay,
Fearful and strange.

No trump of doom, no sword
Of flame extended;
Yet in our hearts we knew
Our world had ended.

Chicago's Most Historic Alley.

John Calhoun, Chicago's first printer and newspaper publisher [see plaque unveiled Sept. 30 at the southwest corner of Clark street and Wacker drive] is also memorialized by Calhoun place, the alley running between Washington and Madison streets from State street to North Wacker drive [formerly Market street]. Few Chicagoans know that this and other alleys in the loop bear names.

For several years before his death in 1859 Calhoun lived on State street at the northwest corner of this alley or lane, and generally used it as a short cut in walking from his home to his office. In 1862 the city council named it after him.

Calhoun place figures in Chicago legends as Gamblers' alley, chiefly because Billy Boyle's chop house, located on it, was frequented by gamblers. In the early '90s it was called Whitechapel alley, after the Whitechapel club of Bohemian renown. The section between La Salle and Market streets was also called Newsboys' alley, because several newspapers loaded their circulation wagons there.

Calhoun started his newspaper, the Democrat, with 146 subscribers. Three years later [1836] he sold it to John Wentworth for $2,800. He later became an alderman and county treasurer.

When the Rains Came.

The editor of the Campbell [Neb.] Citizen, who proclaimed his rain gauge an eyesore and offered to sell it [Sept. 25] in a fit of dust bowl depression, has changed his mind. Here is his latest first page proclamation:

Strange as It May Seem.

"Yes, sir, it has rained. Monday morning our rain gauge, which we still have, showed that during the previous night a trifle over a half inch had fallen. It came down in slow drizzle and continued going down right where it lit. And again Tuesday morning, boys, that old rain gauge was sure a sight for sore eyes. Believe it or not, but there was over seven and one-half inches of rain water, pure and unadulterated, showing up in that gauge. We changed our mind, she's not for sale. Inch and a half all told."

AMERICAN WORD FOR IT.

The scholars call it Autumn, but to me it shall be Fall,
For Autumn is a somber word; it hovers like a pall
About a brilliant glowing world which has no gloom at all.

It is the time when falling things drift down thru mellow weather,
And from the midnight's darkest heights, two stars slip down together.

It is the time for homely things, when open fires call;
Its name should not be somber, for there is no gloom at all;

How to Avoid Rejection Slips.

Altho the Line may have temporarily run out of rejection slips, I am not concerned! In three years of contributions, good, bad, and awful, I have never received notice of one rejection. The secret is simply not to submit a return envelope. R. H. L.'s goat, Vangie, may be on a pension, but the official Line wastebasket does a perfect job of disposing of unworthy efforts. Quizzicuss.

On the Trail of Alan Sullivan.

You say you'd like to know more about Alan Sullivan, nature writer [Sept. 26]. In "An Outline of Canadian Literature," by Lorne Pierce [Louis Carrière & Co., Montreal and New York, 1927], I find this:

"Alan Sullivan: Sets his stories chiefly in the Gulf of St. Lawrence."

RELIEVING PELLAGRA WITH VITAMIN B.

PELLAGRA — first recognized in Spain more than two hundred years ago—now appears to be a rather common deficiency disease. It is not limited to alcoholics or to those who live on poor meals lacking in protein. There are numerous grades of the disorder, some manifesting digestive disturbances, nervous and mental symptoms and skin changes; while others will exhibit minor signs or but one of the characteristic symptoms.

With a better appreciation of foods and vitamins and the importance of nutrition, the rôle of B and its many fractions is now fairly well understood. For a time the malady was thought to be due to the consumption of spoiled corn, but in 1925 Goldberger and his co-workers discovered what is sometimes known as vitamin G, or the pellagra preventive factor of B. This is now recognized as B2, and occurs particularly in yeast and milk where it is combined with B1. Further investigation has shown that B2 is itself divisible into many parts—flavin or riboflavin, B6, and nicotinic acid. There are also certain unidentified portions.

The digestive tract is involved first. Then the skin thickens and toughens and becomes pigmented—losing its elasticity. Nervous symptoms include headache and irritability, followed by general listlessness and depression. Later memory is lost and mental dullness comes on. In severe seizures maniacal attacks are observed.

Treatment consists in administering vitamin B2, good nursing and a generous diet of fresh meat, milk, and vegetables. With some, yeast, wheat germ, and liver extracts are exceedingly helpful. If neuritis has complicated the picture, B1 or thiamin chloride may be given.

A puzzling case is reported of a 37 year old woman who had complained of indigestion and burning pains in the region of the stomach which were relieved only when she would take large quantities of soda. She slept poorly, suffered occasional attacks of vertigo, twitching of the eyelids, and a burning sensation over the chest, back, and head. The skin over the elbows and legs was thick and scaly, and a brownish-red blush developed in the region of the knees.

Following the use of nicotinic acid natural sleep returned and the burning sensations disappeared, whereupon she was placed on yeast and liver extract. Within three weeks the scaly appearance of the legs had practically disappeared.

A more acute manifestation occurred with a man of 28 who appeared to be a well nourished individual. However, a history of his case revealed that he had been eating erratically. A general eruption spread over the body and when broken, the blisters discharged a yellowish serum. His tongue was swollen and red, and the lips cracked. On the second day after entering the hospital the patient became delirious. The characteristic diarrhea of pellagra then appeared and the acute lesions on the skin became dark in hue. Nicotinic acid was injected into the muscles with prompt improvement. Within three or four weeks the epidermis was clear, altho some roughened areas remained.

The malady exists wherever normal balanced dietary demands are ignored or when alcohol replaces food over a long period. All cases will not exhibit every diagnostic sign because all fractions of B may not be lacking.

CANNING TOMATOES.

M. L. H. writes: Is it dangerous to cook tomatoes for canning in a galvanized vessel?

REPLY.

EATING FRUIT.

X. Y. Z. writes: I have heard that fruit is golden in the morning, silver at noon, and lead at night. Does this mean that it is harmful to eat an apple before going to bed?

REPLY.

The statement is a myth, the accuracy of which has been exploded. Fruit is healthful at almost any time. Midnight snacks, however, are unnecessary.

LET THE NEW DEAL DO IT.

Oak Park, Ill., Sept. 28.—Tell the lady who reports that woodpeckers are destroying her home not to worry. The government is standing by to protect her interests. All she has to do, if a registered voter who favors a third term and doesn't want to swap horses while crossing a stream, is to have a friend introduce her to the precinct captain, who in turn will report the case to the ward committeeman, who will advise the secretary of the district congressman, who will request the third assistant secretary of the bird life conservation department to notify the HOLC and urge them to demand an investigation by G-men who ultimately may be questioned by the Dies committee, particularly if the woodpeckers have been boring from within.

Of course, there are other ways of getting rid of the pests, but all involve direct action and no New Dealer favors such a policy, much preferring the report, survey, and report method. However, it might be interesting to the woodpecker sufferer to know that while all of our outmoded and over-age woodpecker destroyers have been traded to our good neighbor across the sea we have "on order" 16 billions of these devices which will be ready shortly after the woodpecker pecking season closes in 1950.

PHILBERT NUTT.

FEDERAL MONEY IN KANSAS.

Blue Mountain, Ark., Sept. 30.—We heard Henry Wallace speak in Topeka. He stressed the large amount of federal money that the Roosevelt administration has sent into Kansas. He said that if that money had not been distributed by the federal government it would probably be piled up in large eastern banks.

The policy of governmental help for the farmer and others was at first considered temporary. Today Mr. Wallace puts his campaign upon the basis of continuing that help, thereby admitting that the New Deal reform measures have failed to nurse our economy back to a healthy state of normalcy.

What causes money to pile up in large eastern banks? To what extent is such a piling up an unhealthy sign? If it is an unhealthy sign, just what measures could be expected to prevent it? These are questions that political expediency and group selfishness evade. But they must be faced by America if we hope to restore prosperity.

Imagine a doctor with a patient who has high blood pressure in the head and low blood pressure in the feet. Should the doctor consider the case solved because he succeeds in drawing off blood from the patient's head and injecting it into the patient's feet so as to temporarily relieve the distressing symptoms?

MARVIN FUCHS.

BLATANT PATRIOTISM.

Chicago, Sept. 30.—There seems to be something cheap and tawdry about these "God Bless America" banners that are used promiscuously in taverns, restaurants, smoke shops, private cars, and what have you. It's a good enough little song but it will never be given reverential respect as long as it bleats out from barroom jukeboxes.

Another irritant is the streamer "I Am an American." A good citizen need not advertise as long as he acts the part. Real patriotism is not blatantly articulate. The deeper the feeling the less is the tendency toward mouthing protestations of loyalty.

As a decoration, the American flag in all its simple beauty cannot be improved.

COMMENDS BUS EDITORIAL.

Chicago, Sept. 28.—Your editorial today is the best answer I have seen to the demand of the Chicago Motor Coach company that the city pay 10 million dollars for its properties. Indeed, had you not so ably disclosed the fallacy of the argument that the valuation should be based upon earning capacity of this public utility, I might have inflicted upon you one of those letters entitled "The Voice of the People."

I want to commend heartily such a disinterested and honest effort on the part of THE TRIBUNE to protect the interests of the public.

SUPPORT THE THIRD TERM.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 28.—In your issue of Sept. 24 you published a letter entitled "A Railroad Man's Creed," signed "John Grunau, Past President, 456, Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen."

On Oct. 1, 1919, Mr. Grunau was removed from office and banned from holding any further office in this brotherhood and he has not been a member of our organization since Jan. 26, 1920. His "creed" clearly reveals that he has long since forgotten the principles of this organization and the title he uses for political purposes shows that he has even forgotten the correct name of our organization.

Some one should advise Mr. Grunau that our second quadrennial convention at Cleveland, in May, 1939, unanimously adopted a resolution urging President Roosevelt to run for a third term. The brotherhood is enthusiastically supporting the reëlection of Mr. Roosevelt and, in fairness to our members and the reading public, I ask that you publish this letter to correct any false impression that might grow out of Mr. Grunau's rather sudden political recollection that he once was a member of this organization.

A. F. WHITNEY,
President, Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

VITALIZES OUR HISTORY.

Chicago, Sept. 28.—Your "Ode to Chicago" drama as printed in your issue of last Sunday is being used with considerable pleasure by our eighth grade. History takes on new meanings when dramatized and translated from the more formal academic language into everyday plain talk.

May we take this opportunity of thanking you for a vitalizing contribution to our study of Chicago? S. NOWINSON, Principal, Hayes Elementary School.

THE DUKE AND THE DUCHESS.

Joliet, Ill., Sept. 30.—How many of the well meaning, sentimental Americans who would risk American lives and property to evacuate British children from the war zone, noticed that the duke of Windsor and Wally came to Nassau with not even one child refugee from their homeland.

Upon arriving at the Bahamas their main concern seemed to be to secure passage from Europe of their former French maid and to secure a hair dresser from America.

NO TIME TO BE PARTISAN.

Chicago, Sept. 30.—The New Dealers' economic philosophy is a colossal error. But your attacks on the government's foreign policy is unfair. You know well that no fawning, cringing, cowering would have appeased the hungry mad dogs. You know that if Mahatma Ghandi were our President for the last eight years conditions would be no different. Is this the time to be partisan?

LANDLORD AND TENANT.

Chicago, Sept 19.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Please advise the proper procedure in compelling a landlord to place a defective furnace in working order. At present the furnace is in such a condition that the use of it would probably result in serious damage to the building. T. J.

Landlords are under no general obligation to clean or repair or to make alterations or to exterminate vermin. If the tenant desires such service, he should see that appropriate wording is in the lease.

"In the absence of fraud or concealment by the lessor of the condition of the property at the date of the lease, there is no implied warranty that the premises are tenantable or even reasonably suitable for occupation, and the rule of caveat emptor applies. . . . The exclusion of an implied covenant as to the condition of the premises is especially applicable when the lessee inspects them before executing the lease, or where the true condition of the rented premises can be readily observed. Where the lessor conceals defects in the premises which the lessee could not have discovered by reasonable diligence, it constitutes a fraud, and where the lessee is compelled to remove from the premises by reason of such defects, he can recover from the lessor the rent paid in advance and the loss occasioned by such removal." Test Your Horse Sense

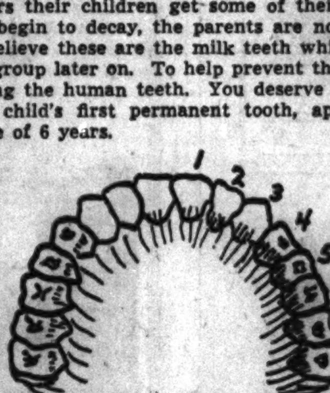
BY DR. GEORGE W. CRANE.

Select the answer which you consider best. The last problem counts five points. Then look for the correct answers on page 32.

1. Which of the following is a stone fruit Apple Pear Plum Grape.
2. The color of the blossom on cucumber vines is Yellow White Pink Pale Blue.
3. A gallon of maple syrup should weigh approximately 6 lbs. 9 lbs. 11 lbs. 15 lbs.
4. The woman suffrage amendment to the constitution was number XVI XVII XIX XX.
5. A senator's single term of office in the United States senate is 2 Years 4 Years 6 Years 8 Years.
6. American parents are woefully ignorant of the fact that at the age of 6 years their children get some of their permanent teeth. When these begin to decay, the parents are not alarmed for they mistakenly believe these are the milk teeth which will be replaced by a second group later on. To help prevent this common tragedy, I am depicting the human teeth. You deserve 5 points if you can identify the child's first permanent tooth, appearing usually at about the age of 6 years.



Score yourself as follows: 0-2, poor; 3-6, average; 7-8, superior; 9-10, very superior. [Note—The last question counts five points.]

Modern Kitchen Has Become Straight Line Production Unit

Beautiful and attractive surroundings and greater efficiency are the results of planning modern kitchens.

Within the last few years much study has been devoted to improving this workroom. The layout of the equipment, the lighting, the color scheme, and improved appliances can all be planned into a well ordered and attractive kitchen. The effect is a room where it is a pleasure to work.

From the industrial plants comes the idea of straight line production. Starting from the source of foods the planned kitchen carries them right along the line, thru the processing and cooking stages to the serving in the dining room, with a minimum of steps, delays, and inconveniences.

The electric refrigerator is the first in line in the planned kitchen because it is the storage place, hence the source of all the perishable foods. Next to the refrigerator should be the food preparation counter. The wall cabinets over this work surface, and the sink cabinets underneath should be equipped with all the necessary implements.

Next in the line is the sink and dishwashing center, so placed because most vegetables have to be washed and prepared for cooking and thus should not be more than two or three steps from the refrigerator. The modern dish washing center consists of an electric dishwasher and a sink with work surfaces on both sides.

The actual cooking of the food requires that the stove be next on the line. On the other side of the range, is the serving center. In the case of a flat top or table range it can itself be used. When the food is removed from the range it can be stored in this center and served directly into the dining room thru an adjacent entry.

In addition to the equipment being placed in a straight line for production purposes, the kitchen should have sufficient cabinets for the storage of proper utensils and for the storage of foods. Wall cabinets placed directly above the work surfaces usually contain serving dishes, extracts, and spices. In base cabinets, built underneath, are kept pots and pans, with drawers for knives and forks, etc.

The walls should be painted a color restful to the eyes, yet one that appeals to the housewife's conception of beauty and attractiveness. The color used should be suited to the lighting. The number of windows and geographical location may determine the shade of color used.

With a planned kitchen, new and modern equipment can be added systematically by periodic purchases when financial conditions do not permit an expenditure sufficient to buy the entire unit.

Engaged

Miss Elizabeth Faxon, whose engagement to Carl Kasten of Milwaukee, has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Faxon of Winnetka. The wedding will take place at 3:30 o'clock on Oct. 12 in the chapel of the Winnetka Congregational church.

New Type Clothes Dryer Useful in Variety of Ways

Gone are the days of the splintery clothes dryer that snags hose and lingerie. Smoothly finished and carefully constructed, a new dryer has been especially designed, not for the family wash, but for use in drying silk hosiery, silk underwear, baby clothes, and other garments of silk, rayon, linen, or wool. When in use the top is flat and may be used as an extra tray for beverages, sandwiches, sewing, or knitting bag on porch, terrace, or lawn. It is available in four sizes.

Furniture May Be Veneered and Be Good

"Is it veneered or solid?" This is a question asked many times, apparently prompted by the impression that veneered furniture is not so good as that made of solid wood. As a matter of fact, this distinction has little to do with quality, fine furniture and cheap furniture alike utilizing both veneers and solid wood. Merit rests largely in design and construction, and whether veneered or solid construction is employed depends on what the furniture is to be and how it is designed.

Veneers are a part of plywood, which consists of several layers of wood whose grains are alternated. Plywood may be three, five, or seven ply. In five ply construction, for example, there is a central core whose grain runs prpendicularly; on each side of the central core is a sheet of cross-banding with the grain running horizontally, and over each of these surfaces are the face veneers with the grain running perpendicularly.

The layers are held together with a glue that is actually stronger than the wood itself. It is practically impossible for the sheets to separate, and so well constructed plywood is not only fully as strong as solid wood but even stronger, while the alternating of the grains in the various layers prevents warping and splitting.

Whether a manufacturer uses veneer or solid construction, then, depends on the furniture to be constructed. Chairs, for example, are almost always made of solid wood.

Occasionally, when the back of a chair between the posts and the top rail is of delicate design, it is laminated for greater strength. If the design makes use of wood figures running in different directions, plywood is employed. In general, however, chairs in such styles as Chippendale, Hepplewhite, Sheraton, and Duncan Phyfe are made of solid mahogany.

In tables we find construction of various kinds in which solid wood and plywood are often combined. The supporting structure is, of course, made of solid wood. The top may be solid, but it may also be veneered, especially if it is made of some beautifully figured wood. Mahogany tables often have tops of solid wood, since this is one of the few varieties of cabinet woods in which it is possible to obtain a substantial supply of solid lumber with an interesting figure. On the other hand, if a specially matched figure is desired in a table top, crotch mahogany or swirls matched in a symmetrical design, plywood is used. Chests and sideboards usually have frames of solid wood, with plywood used for the larger surfaces.

In good furniture, all the exposed parts are made of the specified wood; in cheaper furniture, only the plywood surfaces. Good mahogany furniture, for instance, will be made entirely of mahogany, either solid or plywood. Cheaper furniture, often sold as mahogany, will be made of birch or gumwood stained mahogany color and combined with mahogany veneer. This furniture may be well constructed, but it is not genuine mahogany furniture.

It is clear, therefore, that one should not buy furniture merely on the basis of whether it is veneered or solid. Other considerations are equally important. When you buy furniture, you are buying a combination of materials, design, workmanship and finish. Those are the important ingredients, found in all furniture, but the furniture will be good or bad depending on the way the ingredients are mixed.

New Wall Papers Offer Limitless Decorating Scope

Dormers, bays, and alcoves offer interesting possibilities to the homemaker who is planning to redecorate.

For example: A room papered in a basic blue tint may display a dormer done in pale yellow wall paper. Or two harmonizing wall paper patterns with the same ground color may be selected for the room scheme.

With the great variety of colors and patterns offered by the new unitized wall papers [an identifying term applied to wall paper that is guaranteed to meet or exceed standards for style, hanging, fadeprofing, and washing, if so marked] such combinations are almost limitless.

Reasons Why Mahogany Is Ever Popular

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

During these fall days many home managers will be casting about for that extra chair or table or other item that is a bit of a luxury, perhaps, but that will give satisfaction and pleasure for many years to come. Naturally, the shopper will want to know what she's buying.

Here's information on one of the most popular of all furniture woods: mahogany. Did you know that it's less susceptible to shrinking and swelling than other woods? Insects that have riddled many fine museum pieces in other woods have passed up mahogany as unpalatable, doubtless due to the high tannin content of the wood.

Because of its tropical growth, mahogany has a depth and luster unsurpassed by any wood, and instead of fading and becoming flat with the passage of time it takes on a depth and richness of tone that is the despair of the imitator and the pride of the collector.

So-called Philippine mahogany is not true mahogany, and the shopper is told to beware of this misnomer. A piece of furniture may be constructed of several Philippine hard woods in no way related to mahogany, yet the finished product is dubbed "Philippine mahogany."

True mahogany comes from two principal sources and is of two principal kinds. Tropical America has for the longest time and in the largest amounts supplied the world's markets with mahogany. Two types are native to this area, which includes the West Indian islands, the tip of Florida, and Central America. One is slightly lighter than the other, with a mellower, straighter grain.

The other chief source of this furniture wood is Africa. Mahogany from Africa closely resembles the American species and is difficult for the expert to distinguish, especially in veneers or when finished.

During the 18th century Santo Domingo was a great source of supply for the cabinetmakers of Europe, and to this day no mahogany surpassing the quality from Santo Domingo has ever been found. Articles made in this tropical island hundreds of years ago are still in an excellent state of preservation and have acquired a beautiful patina with age.

A light colored Mexican wood, once called white mahogany, is now known as primavera. It is used in the manufacture of some modern furniture.

Rosewood, which was so popular during the days of our grandmothers and made many an early upright piano and a Victorian sofa, comes from both the East Indies and Brazil. East Indian rosewood has a reddish cast, while the Brazilian is brownish and shows a stripe figure.

These last named cabinet woods are not, of course, so popular as mahogany and walnut. Walnut is generally favored by many thousands of American families and is used for both traditional and modern furniture design. Maple, too, is a great favorite, supplying the wood for the huge amount of early American home furnishings that are sold in this country every year. Maple, like walnut, is a native wood. Northern hard maple and so-called rock maple are among the best types, being the sturdiest and capable of taking the best finishes.

French provincial styles call for beech, and when you see the label "fruitwood" you'll know that apple and pear are usually meant. Cherry is an excellent furniture wood, but due to scarcity of supply it is seldom seen today, altho in the days of the early 19th century it was used almost as much as mahogany and for the same types of tables, chairs, chests, and beds. Usually it was finished to resemble dark mahogany.

Thomas Sheraton Master of Classic Lines and Inlays

Thomas Sheraton has been called the master of cabinet making and inlay. He used very little carving and what he did was very dainty and strictly conventional. He followed straight classic lines, his best work being severe and simple.

On some of his furniture he did not use a single molding, but depended entirely upon inlay for ornamentation. He was the first designer to use satinwood to any extent and was famous for his veneered work.

Most of his chair backs were rectangular in form with slightly curved and broken top rails. He used a variety of straight legs, square, turned, tapered, and fluted, but never the cabriole leg. He favored all-over stuffed seats except where can was used, and seldom used under framing. Convex corners were almost exclusively used on sideboards and side tables. He was the first to design a kidney shaped table.

Here's an Entrance Hall to Be Used in the Colonial Home

Here is a room recipe for an entrance hall for a colonial type of home. If it is quite small, as colonial entrances often are, the lower part of the wall may be paneled with vertical boards painted a gleaming white, while the upper walls are coated a soft creamy yellow. This serves as a good background for colored prints, landscapes, old maps, and pictures of historical figures.

A pair of mahogany ladder back chairs and a Chippendale card table may be added. Above the table may be hung a mirrow framed in mahogany.

The woodwork and wooden spindles of the staircase may be painted white, while the handrail and newel post are stained a brown mahogany wood tone. The floor may be the color of a rich sherry mahogany wood, brightened by hand hooked rugs in which there are bright flower designs in vermilion, blue-green, and brown.

Mirror Back of Buffet Reflects All Its Beauty

The top of the buffet is usually the resting place of your choicest silver service, your prettiest candelabra or most beautiful flower bowl. Think of what an attractive picture a mirror would make, hung on the wall back of the buffet and reflecting the shimmering beauty of the silver, a colorful bowl of flowers under the flicker of candlelight or the tempting collations laid out for a buffet supper!

Public Demands Special Sizes in Mattresses

Manufacturers report a steady increase in the demand for sleeping equipment in special sizes. The greatest demand has been from tall persons who want longer than standard springs and mattresses so that they may stretch out to their full length. The standard mattress is 6 feet 3 inches long. Sleep authorities recommend that the mattress be 5 inches longer than the sleeper.

New and Smart Sofa Beds and Studio Couches

Modern homes are short on space but long on hospitality. They're limited as to a furnishings budget, but rich in the good taste that goes into selecting the furnishings. For such homes the newest sofa beds and studio couches, which combine the smartness of well made living room furniture with the comfort of good beds, are ideal.

Many of the late model auxiliary beds are just as fabric and color conscious in upholstery as any other fine furniture. Most popular of the upholstery materials being used for both divan beds and studio couches are cotton damasks, brocatelles, friezes, and cotton tapestries.

The brocatelles, made of quilted silk and rayon, are particularly effective on the Tuxedo and Chippendale style of sofas, while the crisp woolen nap of the friezes is often used on the Lawson and London lounge types. The cotton damasks have a rich sheen that sets off the more formal 18th century sofas to advantage, and the quaint floral patterns in tapestries are perfect for early American styles.

So-called "tone" colors that blend subtly with other room colors are innovation this fall in auxiliary sleeping equipment. Soft gray-blue, mulberry, chartreuse, sage green, and apricot, both alone and in combination, have replaced the forthright reds, dark greens, and rusts that were once the hall mark of all dual purpose couches.

Only a shopper with an X-ray eye could tell the difference between the newest convertible divans and ordinary sofas. Not only are the upholstery fabrics as rich and varied, but the lines as trim and graceful, and the "sitting" comfort as excellent.

New sofa beds come in styles representative of every important furniture period. Perhaps the most versatile of all the styles is the Lawson, with its simple, clean-cut lines that permit it to be combined as well with modern interiors as traditional 18th cenutry ones.

The Tuxedo style that has high, flared sides looks well with modern, Empire, or Regency furnishings. Another favorite is the Chippendale sofa bed that has the same strong curve to the back so characteristic of Chippendale furniture. It has comfortably upholstered arms finished with a decorative nail-head trim.

Identical styles also are being shown in dual purpose love seats that pull out into three-quarter beds.

Most of the new sofa beds are opened from the front. By lifting the bottom of the divan up and out, a full size innerspring mattress is unfolded. An advantage of this kind is that the bed can be kept made up and ready for immediate service since the mattress is concealed inside the sofa and plays no part in the comfort of the sofa in its daytime guise.

Some of the new divans, called "click" sofas, are opened by drawing the seat of the sofa up, causing the back to swing down. Then the seat is lowered level with the back and a double bed is thus formed.

All of these new sofa beds have spring-filled backs and seat cushions which make them as comfortable to sit on as they are to sleep on.

While most of the new studio couches are not as highly styled as the sofa beds, they can be found in upholstery fabrics, colors, and styles that are decorative additions to any room. Generally speaking, they differ in appearance from the auxiliary sofas only in that they do not have overstuffed arms, and the pillows making the back usually rest against a metal frame.

One of the smartest of the new studios is built with high sides to resemble an Empire sofa. It is covered in an attractive mulberry and blue striped damask, and can be opened into either a double or twin beds.

The most recent additions to the studio couch family do not have to be moved away from the wall to be opened, and they make up into beds that are regulation bed-height off the floor. They open effortlessly and are equipped with innerspring mattresses comparable in comfort to those for regular beds.

With one of the new sofas or studio couches almost every room in the house can be a potential guest room. The period sofas are as at home in formally decorated living rooms as the studios are in every other room from the sewing room and den to the upstairs hall.

Universal Day—A tendency to spend more than prudence dictates and there isn't a lasting quality to new things acquired today.

October—If you are in a nine-year, this month and next bring the end instead of the beginning of many things. Try to finish out this year as philosophically as possible, not bucking the stream of events which seem to break up all your plans. These changes are bringing about new conditions with which you start your new year. Much of the responsibility you have been carrying should also fall from your shoulders and you should feel relieved rather than alarmed.

Here Are Few Ways to Avoid Fires in Home

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Resolutions—and good ones!—are in order, tho next week isn't the start of a new year.

Instead, it is the start of Fire Prevention week, and we will see a huge peace time army assembled to press action against our national fire toll, reduce fire losses, and to point out with renewed emphasis all manner of common home fire dangers.

It's so often little things which put the match to our killing fires. A host of common, preventable causes are responsible for much of the havoc wrought by flames . . . for the fact that each year fire attacks one house out of every sixty . . . that a house fire starts somewhere in this country every two minutes . . . that property damage amounts to some $300,000,000 a year . . . and that outbreaks of residential fires have been definitely on the increase for the last decade and more.

All this by way of showing that it's just good common sense to take some tips from national fire protection experts and examine our houses and apartments—and also our habits—for those sundry causes which can sound the siren's wail.

If you are building a new home and would eliminate some potential fire breeders, have fire control written in your blue prints.

Have your boiler or furnace cleaned and put in top shape at least once a year, and your chimney checked by an able expert for any flaws or cracks. Make sure all automatic controls are in working order. A high per cent of fires start from chimneys, defective boilers, furnaces, and pipes.

Don't let rubbish or trash accumulate in attic or cellar—or anywhere about the house. Spontaneous combustion isn't confined to hay on the farm. You'd be surprised at the ease with which fires can start when just the right atmosphere and just the proper vegetable or animal oils get together, and on too friendly terms.

Keep ashes, oil mops, dust rags and so on in metal containers, and make it a rule, if you haven't done so already, to keep matches out of the reach of children. Don't forget that paints and turpentine and linseed oil should be kept out of the reach of the sun's rays, and avoid the use of explosive materials, gasoline and its ilk, as you'd avoid the plague.

Cultivate careful smoking habits. See that your cigaret is out before you leave it on a tray or toss it away. Enjoy a good pipe if you like, but don't scatter live ashes about. And if you've the habit of smoking in bed break it.. It's too easy to fall asleep unexpectedly.

If some pipe freezes around your house in a zero snap next winter, don't try to thaw it out with a blow torch, or some lighted paper. Try cloths soaked in hot water, and if they don't help, call in a good plumber.

Guard against overfuse of electric circuit and overload of line. Don't call in an amateur to "modernize" your house wiring. When old age creeps on your extension cords get rid of them. And don't use a household appliance which you know is defective.

Such everyday hazards as towels dried too near a stove, curtains blown over an open flame, and electric irons left "on and forgotten" start too many fires. Indeed it makes one sit up and think—checking over the innumerable SMALL causes of BIG fires, which could have been prevented with just a little caution or effort, or both!

Children Are Sensitive to Our Criticism

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.
[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Children aren't very articulate about their feelings. Any mother who has heard her boys and girls talk about the emotions they used to have about this or that "when I was little" realize this fact very well. She gets many a surprise and sometimes a jolt when they get talking.

She may hear: "I used to be so afraid of the dark," or, "I used to dream we were back in the nice old house in B—— street and that granny was alive again," or, "I never knew dad loved me until I had that operation. Gosh, I remember how happy I was when he came to see me twice a day." Sometimes emotions are causing them suffering we have no inkling of. Children rarely tell their inmost feelings, and rarely show them. But don't let that fool you.

Our small ones that are just beginning to run around have to be directed and watched, and they take it as a matter of course. And when the next few years come along, to be corrected a larger part of the time is still part of the picture, and they accept it.

But then comes a time when boys and girls begin to react differently to criticism and to scolding, too.

And as they become still more mature and get into their teens they are still more sensitive to correction.

And if they have enough adverse criticism and fault finding they soon come to feel resentful of it; to feel that they're misunderstood; to feel that nobody loves them; that they're "put upon." Or, worst of all, that their parents really are disappointed in them.

They can get very "low" about these things and begin to lose confidence in themselves. "I guess I'm not much good," one boy's mother heard him say to himself one day after a scolding.

Painter Visitor.

Man Ray, famous painter and photographer, inventor of the lenseless photograph and who has lived in Paris for 19 years, has been in Chicago for the last few days seeing Chicago sights for the first time, looking at pictures in museums and private collections, lunching at the Arts club with his long time friend, Miss Alice Roullier, and answering questions as to the whereabouts of other French artists.

Man Ray was in Paris until the end of July, during the early weeks of German occupation. He played chess daily with Marcoussis at the Café Flore after the Germans entered Paris.

"There wasn't much else to do," he said.

The tone of Paris is now a leaden gray, not the silvery, transparent tone that always has characterized the city, Man Ray said. The automobiles and taxies have been painted gray, he added, a dull, heavy gray. Most of the Paris restaurants are open and they, like the automobiles, are filled with German officers. Food was not scarce when he left.

Picasso, he said, is in the south of France, as are Bracque and Leger. He did not know of the whereabouts of Derain. Brancusi is still in Paris. Pictures selected for a Museum of Modern Art in Paris, that included a painting of Man Ray's and a Brancusi, "Bird in Flight," similar to the one at the Arts club, have been sent to Vichy and are housed in a château there, he said.

Man Ray will spend a month in Hollywood and later expects to get his work together for an exhibition in America.

A little colored window washer walked into a record shop on the south side while a patron, Z. H. Klawaus, was listening to a recording.

"That's Milstein playing the Tschaikowsky Concerto in D Major, isn't it?" he asked.

Christy Walsh, Babe Ruth's manager during his swatting days, recently arranged an interview with him for a writer from a press association. The interview was set for 8:30 at the Ruth home in New York. Miss Elizabeth Greenleaf of Chicago happened to be at the Ruths' at the time and she and Mrs. Ruth chatted in another room while the interview took place and later were joined by the Babe. Walsh wanted to know why he had set the date for the interview so late.

"Is your golf making your dinner hour later than usual?" he asked.

"No, we had dinner at 6:30 o'clock as usual," said Ruth, "but no correspondent in here when the Lone Ranger is on the air!"

Sound of Ram's Horn Ushers in Jew's New Year

To all members of the Jewish faith there sounded at sundown last night the trump of shofar, the ram's horn blown in token of the summons of all created things to appear in the presence of their Creator. It ushered in the feast of Rosh Hashanah for the Hebrew New Year of 5701 and prefaced the greeting, "May you be inscribed and sealed for a good year."

Congregations and synagogues thruout the city observed the feast with services celebrating the high holiday with festival music and foreshadowing the 10 days of penitence which immediately begin and culminate in Yom Kippur, the day of atonement.

Preachers generally upheld the symbolism of the shofar in still summoning man to face the eternal verities as of yore it summoned the prophets who visioned a world of justice, peace, and righteousness.

"How different is the world today and how tragic," said Rabbi G. George Fox of South Shore temple. "But place your faith in the God of mankind, and strive for and die, if necessary, as did your sires for the preservation of democracy under our flag."

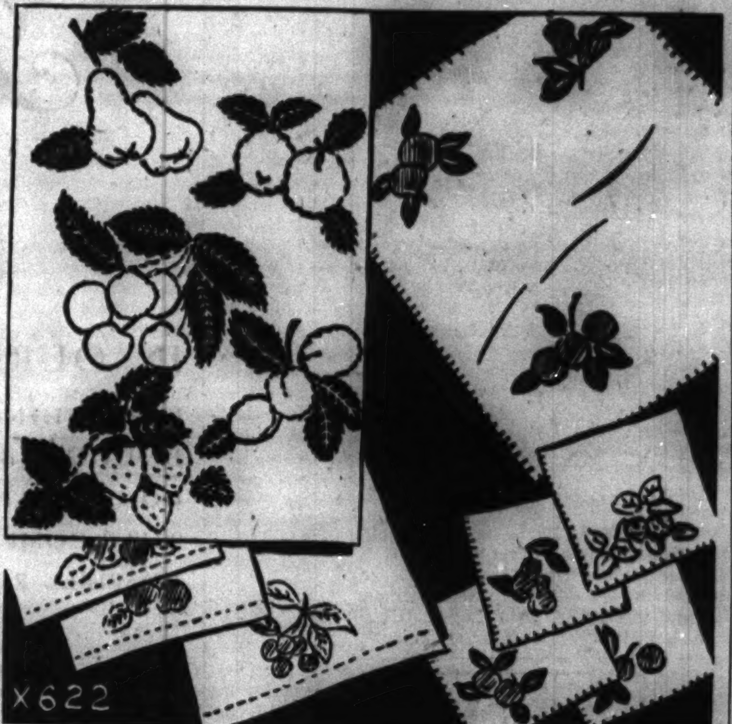
Rabbi Louis Binstock at Temple Sholom, preaching on the text "What Still Abides," said that for Americans there are five things that abide—the country with its constitution intact and unimpaired, confidence in America's power and purpose, convictions on the value and permanence of democracy, our character as people preserving our integrity and self respect, and America's courage to save the country from disaster.

Dr. Louis L. Mann, preaching to a congregation of 2,200 at Sinai temple, affirmed that "as ye sow, that also shall ye reap" was the immutable consequence of God's moral law; that man would always worship, if not God, then something else—the state, for example.

"But the deification of the state leads to the desecration of God and the degradation of man," said Rabbi Mann. "Humanity is faced with the alternative—religion or ruin. Only in a world where religion is blotted out and atheism rampant can totalitarianism succeed."

Rabbi Solomon Goldman, spiritual leader of Anshe Emet congregation, stated that the brightest hope for the new year was that the slanderers of the Jewish race were in a minority.

Fruit Motifs for Towels



BY NANCY CABOT.

Fruit motifs for tea towels are ideal to look at when some of our favorite fruits are unavailable. Summer is the time to preserve them, and winter is the time to view their luscious beauty in the embroidery form. These motifs vary in size, depending upon the fruit. They range from two by four to six by six inches and may be used for towels, luncheon sets, 2 by 4 inches to 6 by 6 inches and may be used for towels, luncheon sets, apron decorations, or color touches on pillows. The hot iron transfer pattern includes five motifs, detailed instructions, and illustrated color chart.

For the hot iron transfer pattern of the fruit for towels, No. X-622, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Thru the LOOKING GLASS

Jewels, as you probably know, are back in their own as the important costume accent. So maybe it was logical, but it's also true, that it's a little inspired of one of the makeup authorities to key her new makeups to jewel shades. And they're lovely!

Real or synthetic, we'll all be wearing jewelry this winter. Clips, rings, bracelets, hair ornaments—all these are on the fashion calendar. If the sapphires, amethysts or rubies are real you're one of the lucky ones. But the simulated jewels are just as chunky, almost as sparkling—and almost as effective as dramatizers. In any case your jewel tones, can be echoed by your makeup.

The powder shade, with these jewel tone accents, must be one that gives the skin a pearly luster. One of the most exciting of the six new tones is ruby—a glowing rouge, lipstick and nail enamel. Beautiful with black, as you can imagine.

Amethyst lipstick isn't actually amethyst in tone, but it's the name of a shade of lip rouge, cheek rouge, and nail enamel that combine to make one of the richest makeups imaginable.

There are four others, all keyed to jewel shades: Topaz [brown notes in this], aquamarine, emerald, and sapphire. All of these are in the present day trend—the effects they achieve are soft rather than harsh and extremely rich and flattering.

The nail enamels in these new makeups deserve special mention. They're a beautiful consistency, with a high, lasting luster and a great richness of color. The color remains true and the enamel itself is remarkably lasting.

Even women who don't pretend to be cooks like to make cakes. Some men do, too. And youngsters who frequent the kitchen mostly as consumers turn producer now and then when they come across a good cake recipe.

Nobody, to my knowledge, has enough recipes for good cakes, so I have a feeling that these rather unusual cakes will find a welcome in several thousand homes.

Mocha Honey Cake.
[Two 9-inch Layers.]

½ cup butter
⅔ cup honey
⅓ cup sugar
3 eggs, separated
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup finely chopped nuts
1¾ cups sifted cake flour
⅓ cup sifted cocoa
½ teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
⅔ cup cold, strong coffee

Cream butter thoroly and add honey and sugar. Beat well. Add beaten egg yolks, vanilla and chopped nuts. Sift dry ingredients together several times and add to creamed mixture alternately with coffee. Fold in beaten egg whites last. Pour into two greased layer pans and bake at 350 degrees for 35 minutes. Remove from oven, cool 5 minutes on cake racks, then turn out and cool thoroly. Put together and frost with boiled icing, mocha confectioners' sugar icing, or other frosting.

Thistle Cake.
[Three 9-inch Layers.]

¾ cup butter or other shortening
2 cups brown sugar
3 eggs
1½ teaspoons vanilla
2¾ cups sifted cake flour
2½ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
¾ cup strong, freshly made coffee [cold]

Cream shortening thoroly and add sugar gradually, creaming until light and fluffy. Add unbeaten eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Add flavoring. Sift flour, baking powder, and salt together several times and add in alternate portions with cold, double strength coffee, beating batter smooth after each addition. Bake in greased layer pans 20-25 minutes in 350 degree oven, cool, and put together with coffee flavored filling and frosting.

Caramel Rum Cake.
[Nine by 15-inch Loaf.]

½ cup butter or other shortening
1½ cups sugar
3 eggs, separated
½ cup water
⅓ cup milk
2¾ cups sifted cake flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 tablespoon caramel sirup
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ teaspoon rum flavoring

Cream butter and sugar together until very light and fluffy. Add beaten egg yolks and beat thoroly. Sift flour with baking powder several times and add in alternate portions with milk and water, combined. Add caramel, vanilla and rum flavoring, and fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake at 350 degrees about 50 minutes. Frost with caramel icing.

CARAMEL SIRUP: Melt 1 cup sugar in a heavy skillet over low heat and, when it is golden, add ½ cup hot water. Stir and cook to a rather heavy sirup. Cool and store in a covered jar to be used as needed.

Tribune Show Sets American Dress Styles

Only the most superlative designs—and in their first public showing yesterday they fulfilled this description—were considered worthy of inclusion in the show, which fashion arbiters predict will set new standards of elegance in American design.

Distinguished and perceptive audiences, audiences who know fashion, viewed the three shows. Many persons came from as far as New York and Utah. Fashion writers, fashion authorities, fashion creators all were there, as well as social leaders and art students.

All acclaimed it as reaching a new pinnacle in fashion. They commented on the fact that the 48 creations had elegance without pomposity, that they had extreme simplicity yet exquisite detail, that they had distinction without theatrical tawdriness.

They commented on the beautiful grooming which was a counterpart of each costume, on the meticulous care with which accessories were selected—the subtle use of oxblood sandals with a classical black dinner dress, of a scarlet bag and dark green gloves and pumps with a gray jersey street dress, of a single ruby clip on a captivating evening dress of white slipper satin with cap sleeves and flaring peplum of starched black lace, of very short gloves with dinner dresses. All this was the work of Mrs. Pickering and Rea Seeger, fashion editor of THE TRIBUNE, who spent weeks accumulating proper accessories.

In the fashions themselves, many new notes were evident. Skirts for daytime wear were short, yet in general had sufficient flare or width for America's leggy activities.

Shoulders were normally squared, designed to emphasize the allure of the American woman rather than to cover it up. Dresses were fitted and waistlines accented. Cocktail costumes were brilliant and sleek, with long tight skirts, often slit at the side or center.

Bright, daring colors were used for daytime wear, rather than the ultraconventional black. Many of the designs obviously were intended to portray youth rather than the jaded sophisticate.

There were new and lovely combinations of fabrics and color:

Much black was shown for evening wear, but often in unusual color combinations. Black velvet was combined with silver lamé, usually a very Theda Bara combination, to make a romantic Renaissance party dress for a young girl, high necked and demure, with a tiny velvet cap with silver Mercury wings.

Judges for the contest came from three fields of life and fashion. Lady Mendl, long a connoisseur of international fashion, was voted the best dressed woman in the world in 1935. Mrs. Howard Linn, social and artistic leader of Chicago, often has been named as one of America's best dressed women. Gail Patrick, the actress, has been called the best dressed woman in Hollywood.

Yet they had difficulty picking the winners.

"All were so good, so wonderful," Lady Mendl said. "It is no surprise to me, however, that American designers are wonderful. Five years ago, when I came over from Paris, I took back all sorts of things, especially beach and sports clothes. This is the American dressmakers' opportunity."

Travis Banton, Hollywood designer, served as commentator for the show, both for the studio audiences and for the radio audience, from 9:30 to 10 p. m. over the Mutual coast to coast network.

Three shows were given, at 1:45, 4, and 8:30 p. m., and all to packed, enthusiastic houses, ardent and lavish in applause. In everything they found ground for comment—from the $500,000 worth of jewelry lent by Chicago jewelers affiliated with the American Gem society to the navy evening cape lined with scarlet taffeta which drew its inspiration from an American admiral's boat cloak.

Three Judges Give Reasons for Selections

The 48 finalist designs in the American Fashions contest had such uniform merit and beauty that Lady Mendl, Gail Patrick, and Mrs. Howard Linn, who served as judges, felt it necessary to issue a statement detailing the reasons for their selections. Their statement follows:

"The judges have found it an extraordinarily difficult, almost unsolvable, problem to pick the first five dresses.

"The prize money dropped so suddenly into a bracket where 20 dresses were awarded the same prize that we feel many dresses in this bracket should have been among the first five.

"The judges hope that you will bear this difficulty in mind in the following announcements:

"The first prize has been awarded to No. 34 [designed by Kathryn Bill] because the judges consider it most inventive to have created what they call a four-in-one costume. The practicability of traveling with such a dress, which will fit into a small suitcase and which serves so many different occasions, is amazing. The simple black dress in itself is perfection. With the gold added it becomes dramatic. It also is obvious that the gold skirt can be used as an evening cape.

"It is adaptable to different types of figures and of personalities, and can be executed in almost any two color combination. It can be adapted to a woman's mood, be it conservative or dramatic.

"The second prize has been awarded to No. 37 [designed by Patrick]—a bouffant dress of tulle, fresh and youthful, and with great originality in its trimming of ermine tails. The accessories, the ermine cape and tiny muff, the black velvet bow in the hair, are all exquisite with this costume. The cape, of course, can be used for other costumes in a woman's wardrobe.

"The third prize goes to No. 9 [designed by Nancy Layton]—a street ensemble of gray wool, chic, useful, and well bred. The military touch is not too aggressive, and does not detract from its femininity. The absence of fur trimming enhances its simple elegance.

"The fourth prize goes to No. 41 [designed by Donald C. Frist]—a dancing dress of coarse pink net, whose tailored bodice, with high covered neckline is surprisingly successful in combination with its glamorous and romantic skirt, which is hung with great pink roses of mousseline de soie, dropping in an unusually smart diagonal line across the front of the dress to a mass of the same roses on the back of the skirt. How can a dress manage to be so lovely and distinguished with such simple ingredients—only one color thruout and two ingredients?

"The fifth prize is awarded to No. 29 [designed by Emmet Joyce]—a dress with a draped black jersey bodice and a full skirt of starched white lace. This gown is very striking, yet very wearable for many occasions. The swathed bodice is most flattering to the torso. The hoop in the hem, which makes the skirt swing as the wearer walks, is most original and charming.

8	1	18	47	23
19	25	26	4	10
22	3	12	11	5

"Of these 20 the judges particularly admired the following six:

"No. 45 [designed by Chumasero McAvoy]—a lovely green chartreuse taffeta robe de style, with a black lace mantilla forming the bodice and small apron drapery on the skirt.

"No. 48 [designed by Ruth Lang]—the patriotic red, white, and blue dress, so striking and yet not "fancy dress." Its crisp, bouffant taffeta skirt sets off a strapless, low cut bodice of red and blue oblongs of taffeta, separated by narrow white strips of embroidered stars.

"No. 8 [designed by Isabelle Flint]—the red coat dress, with its becoming low waisted line in the back. The huge crossed lapel held with one astrakhan button across the front and the beautifully made muff of gathered astrakhan carried with it."

Winning Designers in Tribune Contest

Mrs. Kathryn Bill of Arcadia, Cal., and Patrick, of New York, who received the $3,000 grand prize and $2,000 second prize, respectively, in the Tribune's American fashions competition yesterday.

Gorgeous, Ingenious Four in One Dinner Suit Wins $3,000 Grand Prize in Fashion Contest

BY MARCIA WINN.

The grand prize of $3,000 in the American Fashions show went to Kathryn Bill's four-in-one dinner suit which for inventiveness outranked the other 12,490 entries in the contest.

This is a design of exquisite workmanship and detail. It consists of three pieces, but at first casual glance it looks like a sweeping evening coat of black and gold with delicate gold herons embroidered across the hips.

The basic garment, however, is a classic black crêpe evening gown, svelte and clinging, with a low decolletage and a skirt expertly draped to give front fullness.

With it is worn a long-sleeved fitted jacket of black cut in simple, rounded lines, the bills of the gold herons meeting at the waistline to form a fastening. An outer skirt, a beautiful, voluminous sweep of shimmering cloth of gold, then is attached beneath the jacket skirt to form an outer skirt.

The ensemble thus may be worn as four complete costumes: [1] A simple black evening dress; [2] the black dress with the black jacket; [3] the black dress with the cloth of gold overskirt; [4] the dress, jacket and overskirt, or [5] the black dress with the cloth of gold skirt thrown around the shoulders as a flowing evening cape.

Patrick's fresh and delicate evening dress of bouffant white tulle, awarded $2,000 and second place, which he entered as a companion piece to his moyen age bridal costume, is as modern as a new Jefferson nickel. The skirt is of layers of snowy tulle, the bodice a mere band with off-the-shoulder decolletage. The shoulder decolletage and skirt alike are accented with dozens of little ermine tails.

With it the model, piquant and brunette Gay Hayden, wore a beautiful short ermine cape and carried a minute muff of ermine tails. A black velvet bow on the top of her head enhanced the youthful effect.

Nancy Layton's street ensemble of Quaker gray wool, which received third prize of $500, consists of a fitted topcoat and dress, both cut on rather swaggering military lines.

Rolled bands of the gray wool form frog fastenings on both dress and coat, and the matching gray turban is an interesting version of the world war overseas cap. The ensemble is trim, subtle and perhaps discreet. It was worn with green gloves and bag.

Donald Frist's lovely, romantic evening gown of pale pink net over pink taffeta [fourth place and $500] combines two unusual features. The bodice is made along severely tailored lines, with a high neck and cap sleeves, while the skirt is dreamily nostalgic of a full moon beside a mirrored pool. The skirt is bouffant and sprinkled delicately over it, in a dashing horizontal line from hip to hem, are myriads of huge pink pond lilies, made also of the net and taffeta.

Emmet Joyce combined two unusual fabrics, black jersey and heavy white cotton lace, for the sophisticated evening gown which won him fifth place and $500. The black jersey bodice is swathed and revealing, with sleeves ending slightly below the elbow, while the skirt, worn over a hooped underskirt, flares out like an opening lily. Betty Hayden, modeling it, wore black gloves lined with emerald green and emerald green satin sandals.

The winners of the twenty $50 prizes are:

CHUMASERO McAVOY, 1200 Lake Shore drive, for a bouffant, lime green, taffeta evening gown that might have been worn by a Spanish ballerina. Black, mantilla lace covers the straight bodice and falls over the lap in a graceful apron.

VICTOR PINCUS, New York City, for a black, net evening gown delicately appliquéd in heavy, black velvet lotus flowers. Fitted in princess lines to the waist, the skirt swirls extravagantly. The dress is complimented with a scarf of flame net.

MRS. M. PICK, 6868 Constance avenue, for a cocktail costume of madonna blue wool. The tailored jacket of the gown is long and lavishly embroidered with blue sequins. The jacket, skirt, and sequin skull cap are piped with a fine line of scarlet and white.

RUTH LANG, Ridgefield Park, N. J., for a Miss America taffeta evening gown in the true flag colors. A snug fitting bodice of alternate red and blue is crisscrossed with stripes of white and silver stars. The skirt stands to attention. The gown is worn with a military blue cape lined in red.

ISABELLE FLINT, Fresno, Cal., for a daytime coat dress of lipstick red wool. A curved, deep yolk belt in back and a single, huge Persian lamb button as its single front fastening are original details. With it, the model carried a Persian lamb muff, highlighted in lipstick wool and black gloves.

MRS. SOPHIE GIMBEL, New York City, for a gold cocktail costume of thin wool. The jacket is severely tailored like a suit. The dress beneath it, however, is of fine gold, silk jersey that clings to the figure. A sable neckpiece, muff and toque make it a costume of elegance.

LUCIE BYRNE, New York City, for a stunning dinner dress of black crêpe. With an extremely high neckline, the silhouette is softened by sleeves that are mere folds over the shoulders. Long jet tassels, applied in V lines, are its only trimming.

BILL BLASS, Fort Wayne, Ind., for a long sleeved, scarlet dinner dress, intricately shirred and cross shirred to reveal the figure. For trimming there is only superb working of line and shirring. An exotic turban of matching jersey completes the ensemble.

JON MERRITT, Los Angeles, Cal., for an all black dinner dress of satin-backed crêpe, Spartan in its simplicity and grace. A short bolero jacket fastens in a fold high on the left shoulder. Mr. Merritt captured another $50 prize for a dinner dress of pure white crêpe, classic in its simplicity and draping. It was complemented only by oxblood red sandals and pull-on gloves.

PEARL ALEXANDER, New York City, for a coat and dress ensemble of dull copper wool and leopard, very Russian in influence. The dress has a swinging skirt and a leopard waistcoat. The full length topcoat has wide leopard lapels and cuffs. The flaring skirt of the coat has back pleats that fold into a back waistline belt. Finishing touches to the costume are a pancake leopard hat, a spruce green satin scarf at the neck, spruce suede gloves and brown suede pumps and bag.

HOPE HENDLER, New York City, for an afternoon ensemble that has the lucky name of the "Six of Diamonds." Of gray green, the dress is of jersey fitted at the waist with diamond inserts of scarlet and purple. A long tailored tweed coat repeats the diamond note at the beltline and has red and purple, horizontally banded lining.

VIRGINIA LOEB, 25 East Delaware place, for a sport coat to warm the heart and hands of any college girl. Of fleecy, beige wool, the coat boasts a parka of fox lined with quilted red silk. It is also lined completely with quilted red flannel as are diagonally slit pockets, a foot square. The pockets contain expertly installed heating units. The coat is worn with a green and red wool shirtwaist dress and knee-length red wool sox.

HELEN HAUGHTON, 58 East Cedar street, for an afternoon dress of dull green, rust, and white plaid, cut on the bias. Made with an apparently endless double seam, it creates a ladder of plaid from the wrist of the sleeve to the hem. The double seam is outlined with a narrow band of rust wool. An otter cape brings it out into chilly autumn air with comfort.

LEONE AVEY, Los Angeles, Cal., for a soft, olive green wool dress whose novelty note is a gold necklace and chain, which anchors matching gloves to the hands.

JULIE KOLB, 1127 North Dearborn street, for a town costume of mustard and black wool. Simulating a jacket and skirt, the dress is topped with the mustard whose only trim is an appliquéd scroll of black wool. The skirt is black and pencil slim.

NIKI, 23 East 55th street, for a black velvet dinner suit, aristocratic in its simplicity. When the hip-length jacket is removed, a classic evening gown is revealed. A deep-V neckline is defined with diamond lacing which comes to a bow knot at the bosom.

MARY MAUDE SPRAGUE, New York City, for a cocktail costume of soft raspberry and cadet blue wool. Elegance and harmony are combined in the long, fitted jacket of blue and the slender, flowing skirt of raspberry. The jacket's covered buttons are the only decoration. A military cape of cadet blue swirls around the shoulders.

ROBERT E. FINNEY, El Paso, Tex., for a coat dress of ebony black wool and Persian lamb. A tiny Persian lamb collar ties into a bow at the neck and inserts of russet wool on the bodice pretend to be pockets.

Women Acclaim Style Show as 'Startlingly Beautiful'

BY INDIA MOFFETT.

The most beautiful collection of clothes ever shown in Chicago, is the way this veteran society editor would describe the American Fashion show given in the W-G-N audience studio yesterday.

We have covered dozens of charity fashion displays and as many professional ones. Some have been good, even superlatively good, but none has been as uniformly excellent and in such good taste as the one we saw yesterday in the beautiful radio theater adjoining THE TRIBUNE. Practically every gown was wearable, in high style, spectacular but characterized by the restraint and exquisite taste that women of breeding demand in their clothes.

The designs, the fabrics, the workmanship, the accessories, all details were perfect. The women in the three audiences agreed that it was superlative and many asserted it was the best they ever had seen.

"It's a perfectly wonderful show," said Mrs. Frank Hibbard, well known social leader and credited with being the originator of the St. Luke's fashion show which has been THE fashion show of each winter since the first one was given 13 years ago. "The W-G-N theater is such a perfect setting; the lighting is superb; the mannequins are so beautiful; it is truly a wonderful show," she added.

"It is beautiful," said Mrs. Robert M. Adams, another St. Luke's board member. "There wasn't a false move or note," added her companion and fellow St. Luke's board member, Mrs. Gordon Lang. "It is one of the most beautiful shows I've ever seen," enthused Mrs. Edwin W. Ryerson, the fourth of this particular St. Luke's group.

"I never dreamed the fashions in this competition would be so good," said Miss Helen Wells, head of the Fashion Group in Chicago, a noncommercial organization of women in the fashion business. "The daytime clothes especially are incomparable—marvelous. The designs are executed magnificently, the gowns fit so marvelously, every detail and accessory is right."

Mrs. John R. Winterbotham, noted as one of Chicago's best dressed women, remarked how glad she was that she had returned in time to see the show. She just came home on Tuesday from her summer home in Bermuda. "The show is so distinctive and dignified," she said, "and the models are so beautiful and walk so gracefully." "Yes," added her companion, Mrs. Winterbotham Badger, "it is such a relief to see professionals instead of wabbly girls."

Mrs. James H. Winston agreed with the judges long before their verdict had been announced, for, as she left she said, "I simply adored them all, but particularly the black one with the gold embroidery [the first prize winner] and the pink one with the water lilies [one of the three that won third place in the list of awards]."

Mr. and Mrs. LeRay Berdeau of Palm Beach, both of whom are in a position to compare the show with Parisian affairs, for they have a home in France, were enthusiastic onlookers. "It's a delightful show and so beautifully executed," said Mrs. Berdeau, formerly Mrs. Charles H. Chadwick of Chicago. "The sports clothes have all the imagination that we used to associate with the French and yet they're designed to meet our needs."

"It's a grand show," said pretty and young Mrs. Paul Butler, who wouldn't leave long enough to call her car and was becoming desperate because the shop at which she had parked it closed at 5:30. "I can't miss one of these," she wailed, "can't some one call and ask to have my car sent here? I just won't leave until the finish." Some one called, so Mrs. Butler was able to stay and see the final gown, the red, white, and blue one that was awarded one of the fifty dollar prizes.

Mrs. John W. Gary, president of the woman's board of St. Luke's hospital and general chairman of the fashion show committee, commented that the show was delightful and that she hoped St. Luke's would be as creditable. "Yours is beautifully put on, sparkling and wonderful," she added.

"Magnificent," "startlingly beautiful," "perfectly wonderful," chorused the women as they left each showing. Some of those in the chorus were Mrs. Henry Field, Mrs. Loyal Davis, Mrs. Winfield Ellis, Mrs. Walter B. Wolf, another St. Luke's member and designer of one of the gowns displayed; Miss Sally Perry, just back from a trip to Manila; Mrs. Walter R. Kirk, Mrs. Thomas Miller, and Miss Lucy Miller; Mrs. Earl Kribben, Mrs. David Peck, Mrs. Robbins Isaacs, Mrs. Cyrus H. Adams III., Mrs. Louis Boysen, Mrs. Gilbert Hill Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Swift, Mrs. Paul Walker, Mrs. John Donald Black, Mrs. Watson McLallen, Mrs. Henry Hooper, Mrs. Ralph Richardson, and Mrs. Frank P. Nixon.

New on the Radio: a Bow by Bow Fashion Account

Listeners heard something new in radio fare last night when W-G-N and the Mutual system broadcast a half hour of the American Fashions competition. The broadcast was in decided contrast to another classic competition, the world series, aired exclusively, too, yesterday over W-G-N and Mutual. The latter was reported play by play; the fashion contest step by step and turn by turn with Travis Banton, the style expert of Twentieth Century-Fox studios, as the commentator.

After an explanation of the origin and purpose of the competition by John Weigel, Mr. Banton described various creations in the fifth and final section, including dinner gowns and the bridal outfit. Listeners learned that an expert on fashions can give a graphic account of a display of beautiful gowns and manikins without once using the word chic.

From Mr. Banton's tongue, busy for six hours thru three shows yesterday, rolled such phrases as "molded torso," "pointed bodice," "harem effects," and other descriptive terms unknown in the reporting of any other radio competitions.

The Borrowed Cottage

By Alice Campbell

[Copyright: 1940: By Alice Campbell.]

SYNOPSIS.

Rowan Wilde, an American girl, goes to the isolated cottage of Hazel Fordyce in England to do some studying. Arriving at night, she enters the house and is frightened by footsteps. Investigating, she opens a closet door and a dead man falls out. As she rushes from the house she runs into 32 year old Stephen Smedley, a member of a publishing firm, who because of ill health, has come to the country for a rest. He lives near by in an old chapel. Rowan tells Stephen her story and he goes off to get his car. When he fails to return Rowan starts out to search for him and stumbles upon him prostrate. Helping him into the house, he collapsed upon the sofa. Rowan leaves him and goes to her bedroom for a nap, but is awakened by Stephen entering her room holding a butcher knife. A sharp command from her makes him drop the knife and retreat. The next morning he seems to remember nothing of the knife episode, and the dead man has disappared. Mrs. Faithful, the housekeeper, fails to show up, but has sent Mrs. Yalilee, mother of Egbert, the caretaker, to get Rowan's breakfast. Rowan has found a brief case with a manuscript about Russia in it and is hiding it with her bloody skirt and a gun she has also found, just as the Rev. Bogge and Lord Romrytch arrive at her cottage searching for the vicar's brother Bertram, whom they say has been allowed to study in the cottage. From their conversation Rowan gathers that Bertram had assaulted the vicar's servant girl, who was engaged to Egbert. Stephen admits to Rowan the dead man was Bertram and that Bertram had tried to interest Stephen in a book he had written. Romrytch and his wife invite Rowan to lunch.

BERTRAM'S ROOM.
INSTALMENT XVI.

"Hear that?" whispered Rowan. "It was exactly the same during the night."

"Well! Some one's got the thing, that's certain. You may after all be obliged to tell your story to the police." He said it lightly, but his expression belied his tone.

"Not," she murmured, "if the body isn't found. In that case no one will be in danger of arrest. Where could it have been taken? Let's poke along these back terraces."

In the path between house and hillside they met Mrs. Yalilee, complete with bonnet and string bag.

"I'm off, miss, thanking you kindly. Marning, sir." She ave Stephen a sly glance. "Six you said, didn't you, miss?"

"That's right. I'll get my own tea."

"She knows something!" exploded Rowan. "I'll swear she does. If it wasn't for the awfulness of being here alone——"

"Alone? Out of the question! There's only the one thing for you to do. Get back to town—now."

His change of attitude took her breath. "But didn't you yourself say I ought to stop here?"

"That was when we had a corpse on our hands. Now it's spirited away God alone knows where I—I think you'll be wise to clear right out."

"Maybe," she said coolly. "I think, tho, I'll stick on another day and just see. What about those woods up the hill?

He stood at the fence bordering the far side of the drive, staring thoughtfully down into the wild tangle of a ravine.

"Woods—yes. That high point's called Devil's Leap—and it's a devil of a way to lug a heavy body. I couldn't manage it, not even by dragging."

Toiling to the summit they pried amongst blackberry bushes and cooled off in the breeze that blew sharp and cleansing thru a grove of dark pines. A path wound downward in the face of the cliff. They made a scrambling descent, reaching the road by means of a gap in the hedge.

He stopped, pulling his watch into view. "Chuck it for now. Let's get along to the Dorset Arms and have a beer."

In the small potroom there was cool gloom, damp sawdust and a landlord with a welcoming eye. As the noontide rush had not begun the latter had talk to bestow.

"This 'ere gentleman of mine," he opened tentatively. "Not seen him, I take it?"

"Who, Mr. Bogge?" Stephen raised an indifferent eyebrow. "No. Is it a fact he's failed to turn up?"

"Not since yesterday morning." The landlord rubbed his chin. "Vicar come around. Thowt as 'ow maybe them two had patched it up, but seems I was mistook. Arsked a lot of questions about young Yalilee."

"O, you mean the dark, goodlooking lad who—?"

"Just so." A discreet wink. "Vicar's got the wind up proper, that's easy to see. 'Taint no case of blood being thicker than water. O, no!"

Stephen began to load up a pipe.

"See here, Tonks, how does this guest of yours strike you?"

The publican met the challenge unperturbedly. "I speak as I find," he said largely. "This 'ere party's pleasanter-tongued than some I might mention. It's bin a rare treat hearing him carry on abaht foreign parts and big doings. Puts a spell on you, like; but I dessay you've heard him?"

Stephen said that he had.

"Mind you," pursued Mr. Tonks, wiping down the stained table, "I won't say he's all you might wish for in the way of 'abits. You should 'a' seen the muck the missus cleared out of his room this morning. Screwed up papers, cigar ends and worse—nigh on a barrel. And before we was well shut of it, around comes vicar and rakes it all over, yes, him in his nice gray suit, up to his elbows in dirt! I'll say 'twasn't so much as a shaving-paper he missed; but it's all shipshape now. Like to see?"

Mounting six shallow steps Mr. Tonks threw open a door. Politely following, Stephen and Rowan glanced into a low-ceilinged bedroom, still stuffy with stale cigar smoke since its latticed casement was hermetically closed.

"Nice and tidy now, ain't it?"

"O, very nice!" said Rowan and stepped inside.

The bed had a spotless if sleazy counterpane. Against an equally virgin toilet cover a set of ivory brushes showed grimly yellow, bristles matted with black hair dye and grease. There was a gold snuff box ornamented with a crown and what seemed to be a Russian eagle, and beside it a small antique ikon and a German trench helmet of modern design. Books, some 20 volumes, had been propped upright on a red-covered table. Rowan saw works in French, Russian, Italian, and German, conspicuous among them an original edition of Mein Kampf.

"O, yes! One evening rig wot the missus 'as cleaned spots off of, one long-tailed black coat like wot he was wearing, and striped trousers to go with it. O, well! We'll be having word of him soon. Not likely he'll stroll off leaving ruby studs and wot not behind. Got 'em locked in the till. Seemed safer, some'ow."

"Let's go," begged Rowan suddenly, and pulled Stephen's sleeve. "How horrible that was!" she shuddered as they found the sunlight of the road.

"Those things. It's queer, but they seemed to give me almost a clear picture of the man. Oily, sensual, semivagrant, but at the same time with breeding and an odd sort of brilliance that could fascinate. You know?"

"You've just about hit the mark."

She thought he was going to add something, but he had closed his lips and seemed disinclined to pursue the topic. In the drive again they paused by the Tudor porch.

"No," declared Rowan decisively. "I don't see why I should give up my nice house just when I've settled into it. If he is found, how will they know he wasn't killed and hidden hours before I came along?"

"That's nothing to do with it. The point is——"

"O, gosh, is it really one o'clock? Here's Lord Romrytch, tooting up to collect me. I must fly."

"Romrytch!" Stephen watched the big car backing for a turn into the drive, and his lip curled wryly. "Fine company you're picking. So he's taking you home to lunch!"

"God forbid! And I don't want to."—He dodged for the cinder path.

Her eyes darted sparks. "O, no, you don't!" Firmly she hauled him back. "I met you in London," she muttered. "Understand? Now play up."

One-Man Show Is Opened by Julius Moessel

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

A brilliant exhibit of decorative paintings by Julius Moessel opened yesterday at the Chicago galleries, 215 North Michigan avenue. Mr. Moessel has just completed a group of 17 murals for the Field Museum of Natural History and a suggestion of this work is found in his one man show.

The murals deal with the distribution and marketing of the world's foods. The painter has illustrated in them how various countries grow, gather, and sell their crops. He has combined authentic description with fine painting, and the murals are one of the most distinguished assets that have recently enriched Chicago.

A country scene from south Mexico recalls the murals in the Chicago galleries' exhibition, but in addition to this there are a score of stunning, typical Moessel paintings of birds, beasts, and flowers that are worth more than casual study. Mr. Moessel has always been fond of monkeys and his several paintings of these are fascinating. The pictures of tropical birds are colorful and beautifully finished and the group of imaginative pictures are intriguing.

A group of water colors by Frances Farrand Dodge completes the show and are a foil to the more brilliant oils by Moessel. Mrs. Dodge paints in a sober fashion, but here and there one can find an effort of more than average merit.

A most delightful exhibit of portrait studies in pastel by Shirley Friend is on view at the O'Brien galleries, 824 Tower court. Mrs. Friend is repeating her success of last fall. The portraits are charming in color and simplicity of pose; the young generation which she portrays is rich in good looks. The other half of the exhibit gives us the painter's impression of Chicago street children, types from our sidewalks, and the newsboy, bootblack, little Chinese or Negro youngster makes interesting material for her fluent brush.

An exhibit of water colors by Emil Nolde opened Monday at the Katharine Kuh gallery, 540 North Michigan avenue. These are velvety in texture and mild in content. Nolde is the first of the German expressionists, but his modern work seems flat today; it is like a scarecrow minus straw. There is no fight left in it.

20 Year File of Tribune Is Presented to Library

An unbroken file of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE for the 20 year period from 1919 to 1938 has been received by the Chicago public library as a gift from A. J. Horlick of Racine, Wis., in memory of his brother, the late William Horlick Jr., it was announced yesterday. The newspaper file comprises 300 volumes, each substantially bound in half leather. Library officials described the gift as a bibliographical find of rarity and value, particularly because of the rapid deterioration of the files which have been in use.

Chicago to Get Streamlined Revival Nov. 17

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

The 1940 edition of the streamlined religious revival of four years ago will reach Chicago on Nov. 17 and continue for four days. This was disclosed at the first union ministers' meeting of the fall season where plans were outlined to the pastors by officers of the Chicago Church federation, under whose auspices the revival will be held. The ministers' meeting was at the Central Y. M. C. A., 19 South La Salle street.

Chicago will be one of 20 greater cities where the team of Federal Council of Churches' preachers will concentrate their efforts. Similar to the former streamlined revival, called the national preaching mission, the effects of the leadership will reach to towns and cities within a 100 mile or more radius, according to the Rev. Clarence R. Diercks of Euclid Avenue Methodist church, chairman of the federation's department of evangelism.

Dr. Diercks told the pastors that the team will consist of a dozen eminent clergymen. The Rev. Dr. E. Stanley Jones of India again will lead the mission. Under Dr. Jones' leadership, the mission calls for a series of three union ministers' meetings, in addition to men's meetings, conferences, and sectional meetings. Other members of the national team include Dr. Paul Scherer, New York Lutheran pastor; Dr. Oscar Blackwelder, Washington, D. C., Lutheran pastor; Dr. Richard Roberts of Toronto, former moderator of the United Church of Canada, and Dr. Adolph Keller of Geneva, Switzerland, head of the European office for interchurch aid.

The first massmeeting of the four day campaign will be restricted to women, when Muriel Lester, founder of Kingsley hall, London, will be the speaker. As on the former occasion, a men's mass luncheon, to be addressed again by Dr. Jones, will be held at the Hotel Sherman.

Community meetings will be held in Austin, Berwyn, Woodlawn, Hyde Park, Roseland, stockyards district, Lake View, Rogers Park, Irving Park, and in several other districts to be announced. Clifford W. Barnes announced that the Sunday Evening club will devote its meeting of Nov. 17 to the mission, with Dr. Jones the preacher. More than 70,000 persons attended the sessions of the mission in 1936. Notable gains in church membership and attendance were reported by many denominations as a result of the revival.

Time's at Hand for Invasion of Lecturers

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE lecture season is on, there's no doubt about that, for every mail brings announcements of talks that will be given during the next few weeks or months, most of them to benefit some organization as well as the lecturer.

Every inveterate lecture-goer knows, to her sorrow, that not all lecturers who sound interesting in advance brochures live up to their reputations, but there are enough who do to make one willing to keep on going.

Yesterday it was announced that Clifton Fadiman, literary critic and master of ceremonies on "Information, Please," would talk on "The Inside of Radio" Friday evening, Oct. 25, in Orchestra hall. The Hollins College Alumnae club of Chicago is sponsoring the talk to raise money for its scholarship fund. Mrs. Howell B. Erminger Jr., a trustee of the college, will entertain the benefit committee at tea on Saturday at her home, 199 Lake Shore drive.

Mrs. Mary Lee Talbot Is President of Club.

Mrs. Mary Lee Talbot is president of the Hollins club. Among those working with her and Mrs. Erminger on the committee are Mrs. Lewis Baker, Mrs. John Hall Woods, Mrs. Elmer Freytag, and Mrs. Walter Otto. Miss Jeanne Bailey, who is a graduate of the New Trier High school, has the club's scholarship to Hollins now.

Paul Leyssac, author and raconteur, will appear before members of the Chicago Drama league and their guests at 2:30 o'clock next Thursday afternoon in the Crystal ballroom of the Blackstone to present "Dramatic Interpretations of Scandinavian Literature including Hans Andersen's Stories." Elliott Nugent and members of "The Male Animal" company will be guests at tea after the program.

Mr. Leyssac was for many years with Eva LeGallienne's company. He first heard the Andersen tales from his mother, who knew the great Andersen in Denmark. Mr. Leyssac uses his own translations from the tales, thus retaining the original irony and colloquial rhythm of these famous stories.

Daughter Is Born to Alexander Chartis Bells.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Chartis Bell, the former Catharine ReQua Johnson of Lake Forest, are receiving congratulations on the birth of their first child, a girl, on Monday at the Evanston hospital. The baby is the first grandchild of the Allen C. Bells, and a great-grandchild of Mrs. Charles H. ReQua. Her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Stewart Johnson, is on her way from California.

A daughter was born in the Alice Home hospital at Lake Forest last night to Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Hodges of 771 North Green Bay road, Lake Forest. Mrs. Hodges is the former Sarah Brewster, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Brewster.

Mrs. John L. Irving is entertaining at tea at the Racquet club tomorrow for the women who are assisting her in helping Mr. Irving collect used overcoats for the antiparachute patrols in England. The idea of gathering warm apparel for the patrols was originated by Lady Felsdon, whose husband is an old friend of Mr. Irving. Lady Felsdon and her two children are in New York for the duration and she is head of the overcoat-gathering forces, a function that is being executed with the sanction of the British War Relief society. Some of those who will meet with Mrs. Irving are her mother, Mrs. George A. Kelly, Mrs. Rolly Cain, Mrs. Cyrus H. Adams III., Mrs. Aldis J. Browne Jr., and Mrs. Joseph Stein. Others who have been asked to help in finding coats are Miss Judy Butler, Mrs. John Prosser, Mrs. Donald McGibeny, Miss Margot Atkin, Miss Mary Louise Laird, Mrs. Gerald V. Hollins Jr., and Mrs. John Dern.

Cliff Dwellers to Have Art Fund Benefit Party.

The Cliff Dwellers are having a party on Saturday night to benefit their art fund. There will be a musical program that will include the performance of two quartets especially written for the occasion by members Rossetter Cole and David Van Vactor. The artists responsible for the exhibit now hanging in the club have donated their paintings to be sold for the benefit. There also will be a cabaret entertainment, dancing, and refreshments.

Mrs. Herbert E. Hyde of 112 Church road, Winnetka, has cards out for a series of fireside teas. The first will be given next Wednesday from 3 to 6 and Mrs. Andrew Templeton and her son's wife, Mrs. Alec Templeton, will be the especial guests. The other teas will be on Thursday, Oct. 17, and the following Thursday, Oct. 24.

Mrs. Warren W. Shoemaker, president of the Garden club of Illinois; Mrs. G. McStay Jackson, Miss Elizabeth Howland, Mrs. George Berry Jr., Mrs. Raymond Knotts, Mrs. J. Wilson McAllister, Mrs. Charles Walgreen, and Mrs. O. W. Dynes are some of those who will be going to French Lick Springs, Ind., next week to the semiannual meeting of the National Council of State Garden Clubs. The meeting will be held from Monday thru Wednesday, with John Baker, national president of the Audubon society, as principal speaker. The semiannual meeting of the Garden Club of Illinois will be held at Danville on Oct. 14.

Dinner Club Announces First Party of Season.

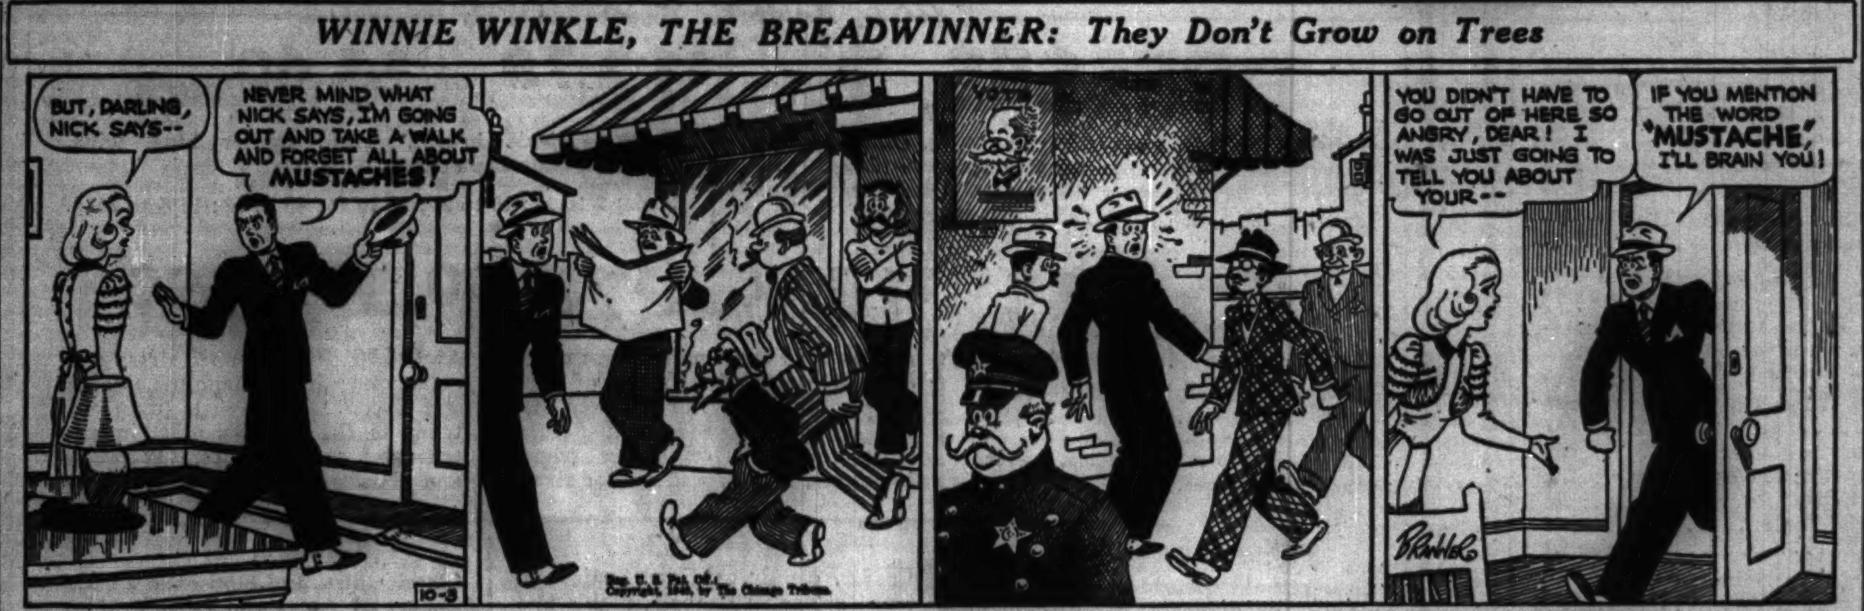
The first party of the season of the Dinner club, which meets at the Saddle and Cycle club, will be on Saturday night, Nov. 2. Mrs. Roger Faherty is chairman of the committee of mothers arranging the series of dances. Among those working with her are Mrs. Homer Hargrave, Mrs. William M. Spencer, Mrs. Sangston Hettler, and Mrs. Theodore W. Robinson Jr.

As Smith college students have but one free day at Thanksgiving time, the Harold Ambergs won't see their debutante daughter before Dec. 21, when she arrives for the Christmas holidays. Miss Amberg's debut will be a dinner-dance at the Racquet club on Dec. 23.

Mrs. Robert Gregory was the speaker at the opening meeting yesterday of the Christ Church guild held at the Christ church parish house in Winnetka. She delighted her audience with her "Amusing Experiences of an Octogenarian Author." Mrs. D. Bligh Grassett is president of the guild, which is busy preparing for its annual fall rummage sale to be held on Oct. 17 at the parish house. Mrs. Theodore Butz is chairman of one of the guild's year around functions, fine sewing done on order. The parish house is a center for Red Cross sewing, British relief, and bundles for Britain.

GASOLINE ALLEY—HIND SIGHT

WINNIE WINKLE, THE BREADWINNER: They Don't Grow on Trees



According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1940: By Ely Culbertson.]

Let me again remind readers of this column that there still is time to enter the 1940 self-rating bridge examination. If you missed the first five questions, obtain back copies of the paper and copy the questions that appeared Monday, Tuesday, and yesterday.

TODAY'S QUESTIONS.

The answer will be given next Thursday.

Question 6: You are West, declarer at a contract of six spades. North opens the deuce of hearts. Your hand and dummy are as follows:

West [You]	East [Dummy]
♠ A K J 10 9	♠ Q 4 3 2
♥ A K Q	♥ 6 5 4
♦ A Q 9	♦ 7 6 3 2
♣ A K	♣ 7 5

The missing trumps are divided 2-2. How do you play the hand? [No long explanation is required. One sentence can bring out the vital point.]

Question 7: Only East-West vulnerable. The bidding proceeds:

North	East	South	West
1 diamond	1 spade	?

You are South, and hold:
♠ A J 9 7 ♥ Q 10 4 ♦ J 6 ♣ K 10 8 3

What call do you make?

Today's Hand

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.
Rubber bridge.

NORTH
♠ K Q 6 5 4 3
♥ None
♦ K J 10 2
♣ 8 7 6

WEST
♠ A J 10 2
♥ A 9 4
♦ 9 5 3

EAST
♠ 9 8 7
♥ J 10 8 7 6 3
♦ 4

SOUTH
♠ None
♥ K Q 5 2
♦ A Q 8 7 6
♣ A Q 3 2

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 diamond	Pass	1 spade	Pass
3 hearts	Pass	3 spades	Pass
4 clubs	Pass	5 diamonds	Pass
6 diamonds	Double	Pass	Pass
Pass

According to reports, this hand was played at a prominent club in Los Angeles. As may be seen, South was the sort of player whose main joy in life is bidding slams. His three heart bid, particularly, was anything but conservative.

Yet, with the indispensable help of West, the bold contract was fulfilled. The deal is a virtually perfect illustration of an unwise opening lead wrecking the defense. With control of three suits, West should have confined his efforts to one thing: Retaining control! To that end, he should have opened the one safe suit, trumps. Actually, he led the heart ace. Dummy ruffed and, after that, a complete cross-ruff, plus the cashing of the K-Q of hearts and the club ace, gave declarer every trick. The lead of the spade ace would have produced the same result.

A trump opening would have made a two trick difference. No matter how declarer maneuvered, he would have had to go down one trick.

Tomorrow's Hand

South, dealer.
East-West vulnerable.

NORTH
♥ A Q 5
♦ 7 5
♣ K 10 5 4

Ideal Club Luncheon.

The Chicago Women's Ideal club will open its 18th season with a luncheon and musical today in the Crystal ballroom of the Blackstone hotel. Mrs. Fredric Wellmann is president.

Two Distinctive Dresses

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESSES.

These two dresses for afternoon and informal evening wear are casually but distinctively styled for the loveliest of the autumn fabrics. Their paneling does wonders for figure problems, and simplicity is the rule.

Style No. 3481 is designed for sizes 12, 14, and 16, and 36, 38, and 40 inch bust measurements. Size 16 requires 3½ yards of 39 inch material.

Style No. 3453 is designed for sizes 14 and 16, and 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, and 48 inch bust measurements. Size 36 requires 3⅞ yards of 39 inch material.

Each pattern costs 10 cents.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central annex, NEW YORK CITY, including 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

Stock Is Home from Vacation for Jubilee

Rested and in good spirits after his summer vacation, Frederick Stock yesterday sat himself down in an office in Orchestra hall and dealt with a barrage of questions on music and kindred matters. The interview was ostensibly given in connection with the Chicago Symphony orchestra's golden jubilee season, the first concert of which Mr. Stock will conduct a week from tonight, but it turned out to be concerned mostly with matters of even wider interest.

Dr. Stock.

Asked whether he did not fear that the spreading war might destroy the art of music entirely, the veteran conductor declared music has survived many wars in the past and that it will certainly survive this one. He did not go so far as to assert that music's development could remain unaffected by the tremendous ordeal thru which the world is going. "You must understand," he said, "that music always mirrors the times in which it is created. In times of turmoil we will have tumultuous music."

In response to a question as to the reason for the greatly increased attendance which major concert series are enjoying, Mr. Stock asserted that in very serious times people support very serious projects. He believes that this is a better explanation than the obvious one—that people seek out music merely as a means of distracting them from the terrible realities of the day.

He also spoke of this matter of increased public interest in music when he was answering a question as to the most significant development which has taken place during the 50 years and more of his musical life. Without equivocation, he declared for the growth of music appreciation among the people as a whole. Credit for this growth, he believes, must go to the phonograph, the radio, and to the increased awareness in the schools of the importance of musical training.

The interview was not given over entirely to such grave matters. Asked what he thought of jazz, Mr. Stock replied enthusiastically, "I like jazz. I like it very much!" He thinks that the speed, brilliance, and cleverness characteristic of the best jazz show to good advantage even in the products of America's serious composers. He believes that jazz is an important factor in American music.

It was announced yesterday that on next Wednesday evening the Junior Association of Commerce would give a banquet in the Blackstone hotel in celebration of the Chicago Symphony orchestra's golden jubilee season. Four hundred civic leaders will attend. Among the speakers will be Edward L. Ryerson Jr., president of the Orchestra association, Mrs. Bartholomay Osborne, head of the orchestra's woman's committee, and Robert L. Jones, vice president of the civic committee of the Junior Association of Commerce.

Looking at Hollywood

By John Chapman

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 2.—When more colossal gags are thought up, Carole Lombard and Clark Gable will probably be the thinkers. Having heard that you can feed an elephant for as little as it would cost to nourish a Great Dane, Miss Lombard is arranging to give an elephant, not to Gable this time, but to a friend—and just before he starts for New York. For Gable she has discovered at the Pomona fair a life-size dummy likeness of her husband, which plays a guitar, jerks its neck and bats its eyes—at another dummy likeness of Hedy Lamarr. The figures have been one of the features of a big agricultural exhibit. Carole is buying Gable only, not Lamarr. . . . Dick Powell was recently quoted here as quipping, "There's a gal who manages to keep a lot busier than she really is." Myra Tammilehto advises from the Bronx that Chaucer had this one in the prologue of his Canterbury tales, thus: "Nowher so bisy a man as he ther n'as, and yet he seemed bisier than he was." Six hundred years ago to the year, too.

"Western Union," which is being filmed by Twentieth-Fox, comes from the pen of a writer who, in his lifetime, earned more than $20,000,000 for Hollywood studios—and a neat bit for himself. He was the late Zane Grey. According to Harry Joe Brown, associate producer of "Western Union," 113 movies have been made from Zane Grey stories and not one of them lost a cent. Some made as high as $1,000,000 net for their makers, including "The Thundering Herd," and Brown says their average is $250,000.

"Many of these films lacked star names but were star makers," according to the producer. "They established Gary Cooper, Jack Holt, Tom Mix, Fred Thompson. Most of those in 'Western Union' got their start in Grey westerns. Dean Jagger was in 'Wanderers of the Wasteland.' Randy Scott got a long term contract out of 'Wild Horse Mesa.'"

And how much did Grey get from Hollywood? A guess puts it at half a million dollars. "Western Union," finished just before the author's death, was purchased for $25,000.

Frank Lloyd, who will film "The Flying Yorkshireman" after the first of the year, bought the story long ago for Will Fyffe, London comic. But a "name" is needed, hence the talk of Charles Laughton. This is the yarn which will be scripted by radio's Arch Oboler. . . . Rene Clair will get $50,000 for directing Marlene Dietrich's "The Lady from New Orleans." . . . Geraldine Fitzgerald will go on loan from Warners to James Roosevelt for "Martin Eden." . . . Claude Rains, who is playing David Belasco in "The Lady with Red Hair," never met Belasco, altho he was in New York with the Theater guild during the latter years of the producer's life. . . . A property man scouting in Virginia for authentic furniture for Paramount's "Virginia" found two benches which were exactly what he was looking for—but he couldn't use them because they came from a locally notorious dive. . . . James M. Cain, who wrote "The Postman Always Rings Twice" and "Serenade," reports he has finished a new book. . . . Mark Hellinger has a honey of a title for his next George Raft picture: "The Dealer's Name Was George." . . . The house warming party tossed by Dorothy Parker and Alan Campbell was the talk of the neighbors on Palm drive. . . . Include among the Hollywoodians eastward bound for the world series George Raft and William Frawley. Frawley gives Detroit the edge. . . . A lad named David Leslie Cole, in a New York hospital, wrote Pat O'Brien asking for the original Knute Rockne helmet Pat uses in the Warner film. O'Brien sent it and two other helmets he used in the picture. . . . Jean Arthur and husband, Frank Ross, are back after holidaying for two months on Puget sound. . . . Yesterday was Baby Dumpling Larry Simms' sixth birthday—and, contrary to a trade paper report, he is not all washed up. He has a seven year contract—if you don't count the options. . . . Producer Bob Sparks of the "Blondie" series has given Blondie Penny Singleton a large diamond for third finger, left hand.

Your Stars ★ Today ★

By WYNN

Thursday, Oct. 3.

Here's a day with more than the usual opposition in the atmosphere; resolve in advance to see all sides of everything, if possible—and not to take steps that would have to be retraced. Avoid causes of struggle, contests, law.

Your Year Ahead.

Your year ahead, if born on this date, continue shifts, changes in emotional life, with some past errors to be corrected. From June 13 on seek opportunity concerning distance, education. Danger: Oct. 8-27, Feb. 26-March 5, July 4-22, 1941.

Tomorrow.

Stay in the groove in business hours; improving later.

Do you want an individual interpretation for your own personal date? Send 10c for your 1941 horoscope (or 5c for balance of 1940 horoscope—15c for both) to WYNN, Tribune Astrologer, 286 Fifth Avenue, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, date of birth, and address.

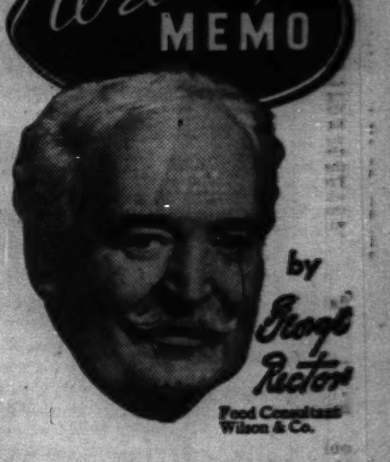
WILSON'S Weekly MEMO



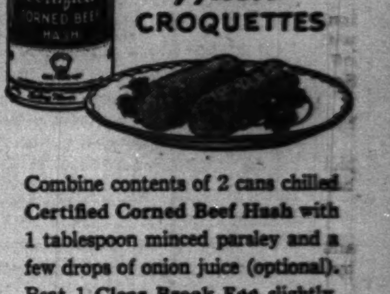
by George Rector
Food Consultant Wilson & Co.

SINCE the start of this column, almost two years ago, I have given you over two hundred original recipes for use with Wilson products. If you have saved these recipes—and I hope you have—you should have by now a neat little library of meat cookery. But the end is not in sight! I have only to look at any assortment of Wilson's quality products to be inspired to new culinary heights.

Try buying Wilson's Certified Canadian Style Bacon by the piece as well as sliced. Delicious baked or steamed. Or here's an idea for a square meal:

Canadian Cabobs

Cut ½-inch slices of Wilson's Certified Canadian Bacon in 1-inch squares. Arrange alternately on 6-inch skewers, mushroom caps, bacon squares, and small cubes of peeled cucumbers. Begin and end with a mushroom cap. Brush with melted Clear Brook Butter and broil under moderate heat for 10 minutes, turning and basting. Arrange skewers in wheel design on platter with broiled tomatoes between the "spokes."



Corned Beef Hash CROQUETTES

Combine contents of 2 cans chilled Certified Corned Beef Hash with 1 tablespoon minced parsley and a few drops of onion juice (optional). Beat 1 Clear Brook Egg slightly, with 2 tablespoons water. Shape hash into balls, patties or croquettes. Roll in dry bread crumbs, dip in egg mixture, then roll in crumbs again. Fry in Wilson's Certified Lard (390° F.) until a rich golden brown, about 3 minutes. Serve with brown mushroom sauce. Makes 10.

Maple Cup Custards

4 Clear Brook Eggs
4 cups milk
½ cup brown sugar
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon vanilla extract
½ teaspoon almond extract
Nutmeg
¼ cup pure maple syrup

Scald milk with sugar and salt. Combine with eggs, beaten lightly. Add extracts. Strain into greased custard cups with 1 tablespoon maple syrup in bottom of each. Grate nutmeg on top. Set cups in pie tin on 4 thicknesses of waxed paper. Pour 1 cup cold water around cups. Cook in low oven (300° F.) until knife blade inserted comes out clean. Cool. Then chill. Chopped nuts may be sprinkled over top after unmolding.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The Cubs, encouraged by a suprisingly lenient enemy, were able to tie up the city series with the White Sox yesterday in Wrigley field. The National leaguers did some hitting, at least enough to make Thornton [Lefty] Lee regret that he reported for work. But the potent items in the second battle of the municipal set were fielding blunders by the American league contingent. Five glaring miscues, as well as some mental lapses were tossed into the party by James Dykes' boys, who thus helped to punch their own chins by the somewhat lopsided score of 8 to 2.

The bats of the Sox also were more impotent than usual, a condition caused by the presence of Vern Olsen, the Cubs' kid lefty. The Sox reached him for seven hits, but he was never seriously threatened until his lead was so healthy that he had nothing to worry about except whether he'd have a steak or chops for dinner.

Kennedy Makes Three Errors.

What with errors and hits showing up with painful frequency, Lee's job was cut down to five innings, a term in which he was pelted for eight hits and five runs. But all the runs couldn't be charged against his pitching. He was embarrassed by two blunders by Bob Kennedy, one by Luke Appling, and just to prove that he was good natured about the whole thing, Thornton made one himself. After Lee had been dismissed, Pete Appleton was placed in charge and Kennedy erred for the third time in the sixth, the bobble aiding the Cubs in the production of their last three runs.

The Cubs had Billy Herman with them at the start, but not at the finish. While he was touring the bases in the fifth, an inning in which the Sox mixed two of their errors, as well as a wild pitch by Lee, Capt. Billy pulled a muscle in his left leg. He went into retirement, but whether he'll reappear tonight when the series is turned over to the Comiskey park lighting system depends on the magic of Trainer Andy Lotshaw's liniments.

Sox Miss First Inning Chance.

Skeeter Webb opened the game with a single over Olsen's head, and Mike Tresh grounded to Herman, who, while close to the bag, attempted a short pass to Mattick for a force play. The throw was wild and the Sox had two on with none out, but confusion by the Sox eased the pressure on Olsen. Kuhel bounced high in front of the plate and was thrown out at first by Todd. Tresh, under the impression Kuhel had popped out, turned back on his way to second and was doubled on Rus-

In the Wake of the News

BY ARCH WARD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 2.—There can't be anything to the law of averages. . . . Otherwise the National league representative occasionally would win a world series game. . . . The Tigers' 7 to 2 victory over the Reds this afternoon was the 10th straight triumph for the American league. . . . The Nationals' last success in post season competition was the Giants' 7 to 4 victory over the Yankees on Oct. 9, 1937, when Carl Hubbell outpitched Bump Hadley for his team's only success of the series. . . . The Yankees took four in a row from the Cubs in 1938 and repeated against the Reds a year ago. . . . It will be up to Bucky Walters, whose season's record was 22 victories and 10 defeats, to stop the Tigers tomorrow. . . . His mound opponent will be Schoolboy Rowe, who celebrated his comeback as a major leaguer by winning 16 of his 19 contests. . . . Seldom has the opening game of a world series been played under better climatic conditions. . . . The temperature was in the low 70's, the sun was beaming brightly and everybody was happy except the Cincinnati Reds and most of the highly partisan crowd of 31,793.

You won't find his name in the box score. . . . In fact, he didn't even get mention in the program. . . . But Floyd Giebel, rookie pitcher who clinched the American league pennant for the Tigers by shutting out the Indians, 2 to 0, last Friday, doesn't have to worry. . . . W. O. Briggs, millionaire owner of the club, volunteered to pay him the difference between the small cut he was voted and a full share in the world series coin. . . . Giebel, who served as a warmup pitcher in batting practice today, joined the Tigers too late to be eligible for the title play. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Clark Griffith of the Washington Senators and Connie Mack, manager of the Athletics, were guests of President and Mrs. William Harridge in a box near the Tigers' dugout. . . . Commissioner K. M. Landis and Mrs. Landis were in an adjoining box. . . . Barney McCosky, 22 years old, was the baby of the Tigers' starting lineup. . . . Charley Gehringer, 36 year old second baseman, was the oldest. . . . Frank McCormick, first baseman, and Mike McCormick, outfielder of the Reds, are not related. . . . Rumor sleuths were trying to run down the latest one to the effect that Manager Leo Durocher and General Manager Larry MacPhail of the Dodgers aren't getting along amicably. . . . Some of the scriveners went so far as to predict that Leo might not lead the Flatbush boys to spring training in 1941. . . .

Fame is fleeting. . . . Last spring Hal Newhouser, Tiger pitcher, was hailed as the rookie of the year. . . . Today his name was misspelled in the program. . . . Souvenir baseball hunters got a break. . . . There was no batting cage during the practice drills and several fouls sailed into the stands. . . . The working press box accommodations were the best in the memory of the oldest author. . . . The Warner brothers' influence was rampant thruout the preliminary workouts. . . . At any rate, the band kept playing the Notre Dame victory march almost continually. . . . The only interruption occurred when Detroit took the field the first time when the musicians struck up "Hold That Tiger." . . . Pie Traynor, former Pirate manager, says Lou Novikoff, the Cubs' new outfielder from Los Angeles, has a chance to become the greatest right hand hitter in the history of baseball, provided he can stay in the lineup. . . . Traynor thinks there is much room for improvement in his fielding. . . . Al Schacht, baseball comic who has been entertaining world series and All-Star game crowds for years, is commuting between Detroit, where he is appearing in a night club, and Crosley field. He flies to Cincinnati immediately after his last show in Detroit. . . .

Joe E. Brown of Hollywood came to the game with Edward Hughes, Illinois secretary of state, and Ed Fleming, Chicago coal merchant. . . . Unable to get hotel accommodations, they stayed overnight in the private railroad car of John Davin. . . . George Raft and the Ritz brothers found overnight accommodations in the suite of Leo Durocher. . . . Among the observers of the opening game was Frankie Frisch, leader of the Pirates, whose 1934 St. Louis Cardinals were the last National league team to win the world series. . . . Those were the days of Dean, Dean, Dean, and Dean. . . . Frisch has played in more world series games than any other man in baseball. . . . Sid Mercer of New York, president of the Baseball Writers' association, served as speaker of the house, as far as the official scoring was concerned. . . . He let Harry Salsinger of Detroit and Lou Smith of Cincinnati do the work. . . . James Farley, former postmaster general, was pulling for the Tigers. . . . The fact that he soon may become a club executive in the American league had nothing to do with his partisanship, of course. . . . There was a former National league veteran in the starting infield of the Tigers—Dick Bartell, one time Cub, Philly, and Giant. . . . His knowledge of opponents' weaknesses was offset by the presence in the Cincinnati lineup of Bill Werber, third baseman who had been with the Yankees, Red Sox, and Athletics. . . .

Only four of the eight who supported Derringer in the opening game of the 1939 world series were behind him today. . . . The newcomers were Mike McCormick, Jim Ripple, Jimmy Wilson, and Eddie Joost. . . . Clarence Rowland was the only representative of the Cubs in the stands. . . . The others were engrossed in the Chicago city series. . . . Billy Sullivan, who was a first baseman at Notre Dame and came up to the White Sox as a third baseman, fought off assignment as a catcher as long as he could. . . . However, everywhere he went he was encouraged to follow his illustrious father's footsteps and work behind the bat. . . . So today he was the catcher in world series competition just as his dad had been in 1906. . . . It took only 10 minutes to complete the first inning, which was concluded by McCosky's spectacular catch of Frank McCormick's fly off the center field wall, 383 feet from home plate. . . . Hank Greenberg had a hard time back tracking after singling in the second. . . . He started to stretch it into a double, but got back to first just ahead of the relay throw from Myers. . . . He tried to advance to third on York's single, but changed his mind about halfway to the bag and raced back to second. . . .

The Reds this morning received a good luck telegram signed by 1,000 Tampa fans. . . . Tampa is the spring training base of the Cincinnati club. . . . Johnny VanderMeer, Red pitcher, will marry his school day sweetheart, Miss Lois Stewart of Scranton, Pa., three weeks after the

WILDCATS LEAVE TONIGHT TO OPEN WITH SYRACUSE

N. U. Wants Victory Over Coach's Alma Mater.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Coach Lynn Waldorf and the Northwestern university football players will leave at 10:15 o'clock tonight from the La Salle Street station for Syracuse, N. Y., where on Saturday the Wildcats will open their season against Syracuse university, Waldorf's alma mater. The squad will arrive in Syracuse at noon tomorrow for final drill.

Waldorf hasn't seen a football game at Syracuse since he played in his last contest 16 years ago. Waldorf was an outstanding lineman in 1922, 1923, and 1924 while playing under Coach Chick Meehan.

Get Poor Start in 1939.

Perhaps Waldorf was thinking of his own playing days and how he scarcely could have foreseen he would return to Syracuse as head coach of a major university squad when he said yesterday: "We really want to win this game, of course." It may be suspected, however, that Waldorf also was thinking of Northwestern's inauspicious start last fall. Oklahoma university, then defending Big Six champion, walloped the highly publicized Wildcats, 23 to 0, and Ohio State followed with a 13 to 0 triumph. [Ohio State again opens Northwestern's conference season a week from Saturday.]

Ossie Solem, Syracuse coach, who went east in 1937 after long service at Drake university and Iowa, undoubtedly has a keen desire to win this game and from reports by Maury Kent, who scouted the Syracuse-Clarkson game last week, Syracuse seems to have an excellent chance.

"Syracuse is stronger than a year ago," Waldorf said emphatically. "Clarkson was beaten, 33 to 0, Saturday. The score of this game a year ago was 12 to 0.

N. U. Loses 16 Players.

"Solem's boys are as big, if not bigger than ours," Waldorf continued. "The team is as fast. Our only advantage is that competition in the Western conference is more difficult than Syracuse gets, and our veterans, on this assumption, have more experience. Actually, Syracuse lost only 6 players of the 28 used in the final games in 1939. Northwestern lost 16 of 33 varsity men."

Northwestern still labors under one serious handicap in preparing for its difficult eight game schedule. The primary problem has been to develop a line. Since no sophomore has risen to the demands of service in the varsity line, it follows that last year's substitutes, in general, must be this year's regulars. Burt Ingwersen, line coach, expects to have one fairly capable line before long. The Syracuse game will show whether this goal has been reached. Reserve line material is a problem.

De Correvont Will Play.

Another problem has developed since Sept. 10 when practice started. The Wildcats have been plagued with numerous minor injuries, each preventing necessary contact drills.

"Since the second day of practice," Waldorf told us, "the varsity never has had the same back field. Dick Richard, Paul Soper, Floyd Chambers, and Don Kruger have suffered pulled muscles. Bill De Correvont has had to be careful in practice because of the appendectomy he underwent. Bill, however, is as well conditioned now as any of the backs. He will play against Syracuse."

Sarah Palfrey Becomes Bride of Elwood Cooke

New York, Oct. 2 (AP).—Sarah Palfrey, Boston tennis star, was married today to Elwood Cooke of Portland, Ore., also a high ranking tennis player, in a ceremony in the Sherry-Netherland hotel. Mr. and Mrs. Cooke will be members of the team of American lawn tennis players who will sail on the steamship Brazil for Buenos Aires Saturday. The team will be headed by Donald McNeill of Oklahoma City, national singles champion.

Hank Starts It—and the Tigers Can Smile!

It's a case of "no, you did it" as Rudy York (left) and Bruce Campbell argue in the dressing room over which was the slugging hero of yesterday's victory. York hit a triple and Campbell a home run.

Baker Exults Over Hitting of His 'Old Men'

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 2 (AP).—The vicious Tigers, from Buck Newsom down to the newest rookie, held a sneaking suspicion tonight that they have the Indian sign on the Cincinnati Reds and would win the world's championship for sure.

Newsom individually was the only Tiger brave enough to make the prediction that they might win four straight.

"Yes, sir," beamed the plus six foot pitcher, "If we hit as we did today we may win it in four straight. I don't think we'll come back to this ball park after we get thru with the Reds in Detroit."

There was a total absence of explosive atmosphere in the Tigers' dressing room. They seemed to be emotionally spent and took their victory merely as another game.

Baker Jubilant, but Cautious.

"Nice going, fellows," he yelled. "That's the big one and we want three more. Tomorrow is another day. Let's battle 'em. It's a hell of a thing to be on a winner, ain't it?"

Baker refused to share the confidence expressed by Newsom.

"No use to be quoted, but we're going to win just as quickly as we can," he said. "If we can win in four that will be just swell. It may take six, it may take seven, but we're going to win.

"Those old men of mine certainly did hit, didn't they? That's what we've got to do. If we can hit, we can win.

Rowe Asks for Seven Runs.

"I hope they give old Schooley seven runs tomorrow," he said.

Newsom praised the Cincinnati batters, declaring they never were licked and that he had to watch every pitch.

There was a silent, but firm air of "tomorrow is another day" in the beaten Reds' clubhouse. Manager Bill McKechnie stoutly defended the work of big Paul Derringer, whom the Tigers knocked out in the second inning.

"Those boys hit some mighty good pitches," McKechnie declared. "Paul had as much stuff as he ever had, but they just got onto it."

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 2—"Tomorrow will be another day, and Bucky Walters can beat 'em." This was the soothing philosophy of Cincinnati and other National league partisans tonight as they sought to shake off the shock of the Detroit Tigers' 7 to 2 victory over Cincinnati's Reds in this afternoon's world series opener.

Taking heart in the fact the Reds played the Tigers even except for an explosive five run, five hit second inning in which the Tigers drove Paul Derringer to shelter, the worshipers of the vanquished pointed with hope to Walters' record of 22 victories in the National league in making prophecies of a comeback tomorrow. The Reds have to do just that, as tomorrow night they move up to Detroit, there to resume the series before Detroit's riotous baseball populace Friday afternoon.

Walters Draws a Skillful Foe.

Throwing a shadow on this bubbling Cincinnati optimism was Schoolboy Rowe, winner of 16 games and loser of only three during the American league season. Detroiters who became convinced today they have the Reds on the run expected Rowe, on his record, to pitch as craftily, or more skillfully than Walters. They also counted on the Tigers' power, present but spasmodic today, to be more consistent after the excitement of the series opener.

Today's game, with all the anticlimax aspects after the Tigers' second inning outburst, was interestingly played to a capacity crowd of 31,793 in a perfect weather setting. It was, of course, largely an Ohio crowd, and pretty solemn, until the game was over and those hopes for tomorrow began to rise.

Moore and Riddle Fan Nine.

These hopes found foundation in the confidence in Walters' talents. Beyond that it was not difficult to perceive how the Tigers could be quieted. That comfort was supplied by Lloyd ["Whitey"] Moore and Elmer Riddle, successors to Derringer, who accomplished nine strikeouts, without sparing the Tigers' greatest power boys. Moore replaced Derringer with one out in the second and held the Tigers to two runs, produced in the fifth when Rudy York and Bruce Campbell successively knocked a triple and a homer, the only long range firing of the day.

Buck Newsom, making his first appearance in a world series match, breezed along easily and without ostentation after being so handsomely fortified at the start of the contest. The Reds' first run was scored in the fourth inning on a double by Ival Goodman and a single by Jimmy Ripple and their other counter was produced in the eighth on Bill Werber's double and a single by Goodman.

Almost Everybody Hits.

In the knockout second, the Tigers did none of their long range firing. They proceeded with short but persistent stuff, the attack including singles by Hank Greenberg, York, Frank Higgins, Dick Bartell and Barney McCosky. Mixed in with this smacking was an error on Campbell's sacrifice, which loaded the bases, and a walk to Billy Sullivan, which reload-

CHAMPIONS

Baseball fans are flocking to the World Series because they like to see champions perform. For the same reason, followers of the popular column, In the Wake of the News, are hustling to the newsstands to get copies of the new 1940 Wake book. They know it's packed with the work of champions at writing humor and verse.

ed the bases after the first two Tigers runs had been driven in on Higgins' single. Bartell's single drove in the third and fourth Tiger runs and the fifth, which marked Derringer's demise, went home on McCosky's single.

The Tigers also made five hits off Moore and none off Elmer Riddle, who pitched the ninth. Derringer walked one and Moore four. Derringer struck out one, Moore seven and Riddle two. Greenberg and Bartell fanned twice, but didn't mind, perhaps, because each had a big part in the early wrecking of Derringer's hope to effect his first victory in six world series appearances.

Buck Walks Only One.

Newsom, who allowed eight hits including three doubles, had fine control. He walked only one, and that slip didn't cause him the slightest anxiety. Unlike Moore and Riddle, he did not make extensive use of the strikeout technique, altho the Buck is a strikeout specialist. He fanned only four—Mike McCormick in the third, Billy Myers and Moore in the fifth, and Pinch Batter Lew Riggs in the seventh.

We hope it isn't boring in too much on Detroit's glory to point out that four former Chicago players worked, and starred thruout, for the Tigers. There was Newsom, the former Cub, Bartell, a Cub last year, and Campbell and Sullivan, who started their major league careers with the White Sox. Moreover, Bartell, Campbell, and Sullivan are native Chicagoans.

That Big Second Inning.

A quiet first inning gave no hint that the Tigers would come out for their second time at bat and put to rout the man who had held the Yankees to a 2 to 1 victory in the first game of the 1939 series. Here is that bombastic second inning and the other scoring incidents:

The Tiger romp in the second inning was started by Greenberg. Hank lined one along the left foul line. It looked like a double, but after rounding first and going half way to second, Hank turned back. York lined a single to right center and again Greenberg went into reverse after rounding second twenty feet. Campbell sacrificed and the bases were loaded when Werber made a high throw to Frank McCormick. Higgins singled to center, scoring Greenberg and York, after which Sullivan walked, again loading the bases. Newsom bounced to Frank McCormick, who threw to Wilson, forcing Campbell at the plate. Bartell singled to center, scoring Higgins and Sullivan. McCosky singled to right, scoring Newsom. Moore replaced Derringer and Gehringer popped to Werber. Greenberg, up the second time, was thrown out by Werber.

Reds Finally Score.

Cincinnati partisans recovered their voices in the fourth. Goodman opened with a double to center, held on while Frank McCormick popped to Gehringer, and scored on Ripple's line single to right center. The cheering subsided when Wilson hit into a double play.

After Greenberg had fanned at the start of the fifth, York tripled off the right field screen. Campbell then socked his homer, a shot which came down in the middle of the sixth row of the big right field bleacher. Higgins flied to Ripple and Sullivan struck out.

In the eighth the Reds broke thru with their second run. After Harry Craft, batting for Moore, had fouled to Greenberg, Werber doubled to center, took third on Mike McCormick's out, and scored on Goodman's single to center. Frank McCormick flied to McCosky.

Rivals Make Sparkling Plays.

Superlative defense play and tight pitching by both clubs prevented runs in other innings. The first hit of the game was made by young Mike McCormick, who doubled in the first and failed to score only because Barney McCosky went way, way back for Frank McCormick's drive.

Bartell walked and went to third on McCosky's single in the fourth, but two were out, after which Gehringer rolled out. Moore had more trouble in the Detroit seventh. Gehringer walked and after Greenberg had executed his second successive strikeout, York and Campbell walked. But Higgins popped out and Goodman went to the screen for a tremendous drive by Sullivan. There was a one-handed leaping catch by Greenberg of Joost's liner in the seventh. Bartell was involved in another Tiger threat that failed in the eighth. He singled with one out and after McCosky lined to Mike McCormick, stole second, continuing to third when Baker, who had replaced Wilson at the start of the inning, threw the ball into center field. Again Gehringer supplied a third out.

GREENSKEEPERS HOLD MEETING AND TOURNAMENT

The Midwest Greenkeepers association held its annual tournament and meeting yesterday at Medinah, an entry of 125 members competing in an 18 hole round over the No. 3 course. Dr. John Monteith of Washington, D. C., a member of the department of agriculture and greens expert of the United States Golf association, was the principal speaker at the dinner.

M. J. Warnecke, with a net score of 87—18—69, won the association trophy because of his lower handicap over Robert Duguid, who had 94—25—69. Charles Shiley was the other net winner with a card of 90—20—70.

Ed Maschiochi led the field in gross play with 39—37—76. Other gross winners among the regulars were W. H. Stupple, 42—39—81, and Stanley Arndt, 1939 champion, 44—38—82.

Attention, Mr. Stagg.

While A. A. Stagg is leading his College of the Pacific against Notre Dame, I suppose we may expect a broadcast like this from the Midway: "The man on Economics II. team was just touched on the wrist. . . . The ball became disengaged from his hands. . . . It is falling toward the turf. . . . It is bouncing. . . . When it ceases it will be in possession of Appreciation of Music Team III. . . . If I do appear to be impartial, it is not my intention. . . . However, the latter group has displayed a most superior touch and movements of the players have been executed most harmoniously thus far. . . . During the recess from play I desire to announce that after each Saturday afternoon's play period, spectators and participants are invited to tea."

Newark Whips Louisville in Opener, 10 to 3

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 2 (AP).—Blasting three Louisville pitchers for 15 hits behind the six hit hurling of lanky George Washburn, Newark won the opening game of the little world series tonight, 10 to 3, before a crowd of 7,700. The teams won post season playoffs, Newark in the International league and Louisville in the American Association.

Steve Peek is scheduled to hurl for Newark tomorrow night in the second game and Big Jim Weaver for Louisville. Both are righthanders. The series goes to the first winner of four games. Score:

Illini Score 2 Touchdowns on Freshmen

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 2 [Special].—After limiting the freshmen to a single touchdown in a half hour pass defense scrimmage against Bradley aerial formations, Illinois' varsity scored twice in short order today. The Illini meet the Peorians here Saturday. Tony Butkovich, impersonating Bradley's Ken Olsen, connected with Isaiah Owens, Gary, Ind., end, for the freshmen score on a play that netted ten yards.

BACK AS GOPHER CENTER.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 2 [Special].—After serving as alternate to Bob Kolliner at center, Co-Capt. Bob Bjorklund was moved back into the top spot as Coach Bernie Bierman made efforts to build up Minnesota's reserve strength today for the game with Nebraska Saturday.

Bierman apparently is anxious to get more weight and height into the Gopher secondary. Height is lacking with Kolliner at center, and this may have contributed to some of the Gophers' difficulties in pass defense. Bjorklund weighs 215 pounds and stands six feet, three inches.

Lillis Is Lost to Notre Dame; Nose Broken

Notre Dame, Ind., Oct. 2 [Special].—Right tackle, apparently the least pregnable spot on the Notre Dame squad when practice opened, suffered a second blow when Paul Lillis, junior letter man and starter, received a broken nose early in today's scrimmage.

Walt Ziemba, Chicago sophomore, No. 3 man, was injured a week ago and neither will be able to face College of the Pacific in Saturday's opener. Lillis should be ready for Georgia Tech next week wearing a special headgear.

The two injuries moved Cliff Brosey, 234 pound junior letter man, and Bob Neff, 236 pound sophomore, the two largest men on the squad, up to the first and second teams, respectively, from the second and fourth.

PRACTICE IN ARIZONA.

Another practice session is scheduled tomorrow in Newton, Kas.

MICHIGAN SEEKS PUNCH.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 2 [Special].—Still not satisfied with the offensive play which overwhelmed California, 41 to 0, Michigan coaches concentrated on developing the varsity attack in today's scrimmage session. Clarence Munn, line coach, said the films of the California game showed up technical weaknesses which had the staff worried with the Michigan State contest here only three days away.

Also worrying coaches is the reported strength of the Spartans, who are said to be faster than Michigan. Consequently Munn has been holding relay races among the linemen. The backs also are being called on for speed.

SPARTAN STAR LIMPS.

Lansing, Mich., Oct. 2 [Special].—The Michigan State camp was upset today as Wy Davis, the Spartans' chief ground gainer, limped around the field. Davis was injured in scrimmage yesterday afternoon and concern is felt over his condition for the Michigan game Saturday. With Davis out of the lineup the back field job would fall to Mike Selb, junior from Allegan.

Kenosha Cardinals Rout Brown Bombers, 35 to 0

Kenosha, Wis., Oct. 2 [Special].—The Kenosha Cardinals made it three straight in handing the Chicago Brown Bombers their first setback of the season, 35 to 0, tonight. Al Christianson of Knox, and Dolan, Montana, each tallied two touchdowns, the former going 76 yards for his first score. Lundberg, Montana, scored the other touchdown.

BUD SEELINGER, SOPH LEFT HALF, LOST TO BADGERS

Injury Costs Wisconsin 5th Prospective Regular.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 2 [Special].—Len [Bud] Seelinger, sophomore left half back from Great Falls, Mont., is lost to the Wisconsin football team for the season, Coach Harry Stuhldreher announced today. Seelinger will be confined to the hospital for at least two weeks as the result of an injury suffered in practice yesterday and physicians have advised it would be dangerous for him to play this year.

The Montana boy had figured heavily in Stuhldreher's offensive plans, altho he ranked as only third string left half. He was scheduled to play in the opener against Marquette Saturday. Seelinger is the fifth prospective regular to be lost to the Badgers for the entire year. The others are Claude York, Don Kolbusz, Harold Rooney, and Al Lorenz.

MARQUETTE AT PEAK.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 2 [Special].—Marquette university's football squad, except for the early-season ineligibles, was intact today as the team began to reach peak for Saturday's opening game with Wisconsin in Madison. Don Vosberg and Bob Sleske, ends; Bill Phillips, quarter back; Erv Rick, tackle; Bob McCahill, half back, and one or two others who have been on the casualty list, were in uniform and pronounced ready to go. The Hilltoppers are abstaining from heavy scrimmage this week, but there was light contact work today as the coaches handed out additional defensive assignments and dressed up their running attack.

Lane Tech and Kelly Win in Soccer Matches

Lane Tech defeated Von Steuben, 12 to 1, and Kelly won its opener from Schurz, 6 to 0, in Chicago Public High School league soccer games yesterday. Bruno Opela scored twice to lead Lane's attack in its game in California park. Ray Wilcop scored twice and Bernard Romank got the third goal for Kelly in Gage park. Field goals count two points this season, with one point awarded on a penalty goal.

SOX, CUBS CARRY ON FEUD UNDER LIGHTS TONIGHT

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The left handed motif will continue tonight as the city series moves into its third game and its first in Comiskey park, the stronghold of the White Sox. The Hose have detailed Southpaw Edgar Smith for the pitching chore, while Larry French will hurl for the Cubs. Lefty Lawrence completed the regular season with a .500 record of 14 victories and 14 defeats, while Smith boasted as many triumphs and only nine defeats.

Incidentally all potential guests are advised that tonight's game will begin at 8:15 o'clock, 15 minutes earlier than the regular starting time for nocturnal games in the Sox park. Thirty-five thousand grandstand pews and 5,000 bleacher seats will go on sale when the gates open at 5:30 p. m.

The hitters had a cross wind to contend with in lieu of Tuesday's raw nor'easter, the breeze coming out of the north.

The customers were treated to a double header—auricular and optical. The public address system in the center field bleachers relayed the radio report of the world series opener in Cincinnati beginning at 12:30 o'clock, Chicago time, and continuing thru the sixth inning of the Cub-Sox game.

Maj. Frederic McLaughlin and Bill Tobin of the Blackhawks stood in line for their tickets shortly after 1 o'clock. Both stated that since they will be looking at a bit of hockey for the next six months they might as well have a last look at baseball.

J. M. Sweeney, a visitor from Vinton, La., stopped in Chicago Tuesday en route to the world series, for which he held tickets. He saw the game here and then decided to pass up the world series, being among the first arrivals for yesterday's contest. Mr. Sweeney enjoyed the world series broadcast and the local battle. Of course, he may be a trifle prejudiced, seeing as how one of the Sox comes from his home town, a gaffer named Theodore Lyons, no less.

William Nicholson, the Cub outfielder who neglected to tag first after his terrific smash in Tuesday's game, more than redeemed himself in the fourth inning yesterday, when he made a nose-skinning catch of Taffy Wright's drive in left center.

Umpire George Magerkurth, working at third base thought comment by Mule Haas harsh enough to eject the Sox coach in the seventh. Haas based his criticism on Magerkurth's ruling of Bob Kennedy's grounder, the big arbiter calling it fair while Haas contended it was foul. It required further urging by First Base Umpire Tom Dunn to convince the Mule that Magerkurth had meant it.

James J. Dykes, the Sox manager, will chew his cigars elsewhere Saturday afternoon. That would be in Notre Dame stadium, where he will attend the football game between the Irish and Mr. A. A. Stagg's College of the Pacific. Following the city series James plans a three week visit to California.

Herman, Webb Find It Pays to Slide

The White Sox had all the best of this action around second base in yesterday's game, even if they did lose to the Cubs, 8 to 2. Jimmy Webb slides in safely when Bobby Mattick fails to hold Billy Herman's wild throw after he had picked up Mike Tresh's grounder. The umpire is George Pipgras.

Billy Herman slides home in the third inning to complete a successful double steal which landed Hank Leiber on second. The catcher is Mike Tresh.

ARON-MAMAKOS BOUT POSTPONED; MAY MEET NOV. 22

A 10 round bout between Milt Aron, Chicago welterweight, and Steve Mamakos of Washington, D. C., scheduled in the Coliseum Oct. 18, has been postponed. The new date may be Nov. 22. The postponement was made at the instance of Dr. Samuel Lerner, physician for Aron, who said Milton wouldn't be ready to box Oct. 18 because an eye injury, suffered in a draw fight with Mamakos on Sept. 9, has not yet thoroly healed. Promoter Irving Schoenwald said he would arrange a substitute windup for the Oct. 18 date.

Nate Bolden, 1937 intercity Golden Gloves middleweight winner, yesterday was matched to meet Paul Frazier, also a Golden Gloves product, in Marigold Gardens Monday. Booker Beckwith, Gary light heavyweight, asked to be excused from going thru with a six round preliminary against Orlando Trotter because of an injury he received while working out in a Gary gymnasium. The card is headed by a 10 round event involving Chico Romo, Los Angeles, junior welterweight, and Johnny Pleasant.

Sox Make Five Errors; Lose to Cubs, 8-2

A scratch single by Herman with one out in the Cubs' half of the first caused no trouble, but the affair took a different turn after Gleeson led off with a single to center in the second. Webb took Russell's popup and also threw out Todd, after which Mattick singled to right, Gleeson scoring. The end of the inning was delayed by Kennedy's fumble of Olsen's roller, but Appling picked up Hack's grounder for a force of Olsen at second.

Confused Sox Give Cubs a Run.

Travel was so easy for the Cubs in the third that one hit was enough to get 'em a run. Kennedy put Lee in trouble by fumbling again, this time on Herman's tap. A fly ball to Kreevich took care of Nicholson, but Leiber punched a single into right, Herman taking third. He scored on a double steal, Webb contributing to this by neither tagging Leiber nor hurrying the throw back to the plate. Gleeson walked, but Russell bounced to Lee and a double play resulted.

Hack started the fifth inning dizziness by beating out a bunt on the unsuspecting Kennedy. Hack's progress was aided by a two base wild pitch and he scored from third when Herman dribbled a hit over Lee's head. Nicholson flied to Kreevich and Herman broke for second after the catch, luck riding with him. He should have been an easy out, but Appling dropped the throw. After handing a pass to Leiber, Lee threw wild trying to nip Herman off second, Billy going to third and scoring on Gleeson's single. Leiber counted the third run of the inning while Gleeson was being forced by Russell.

Solters Hits a Triple.

After Kuhel's single, Solters' triple, and an infield out had given the Sox their two runs in the sixth, the Sox produced Appleton for the home half and trouble came at double quick time. A pass to Hack, Kennedy's late throw to second on Warstler's roller, and Kennedy's error on Nicholson's bunt filled the bases with none out. Leiber walloped a single into left, the only hit of the inning, Hack and Warstler scoring. Nicholson was bunted to third by Gleeson and scored on Russell's fly to Wright.

SALMON DERBY WINNERS ARE IN A KETTLE OF FISH

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 2 (AP).—Winners of three of the five automobiles in the Seattle Times city salmon derby last Sunday were accused of grand larceny today on charges of using planted fish to take the top prizes.

They were M. E. Smith, Spokane, who was awarded second prize; Frank Dupue, Everett, third prize, and Anthony Zuanich, Everett, fifth prize. Miss June Smaaladen, Aneta, N. D., who was awarded the automobile offered for the woman catching the largest salmon, was held as a material witness.

John M. Schermer, chief criminal deputy prosecutor, said Zuanich, Dupue, and Miss Smaaladen confessed they and Smith participated in a joint plan to win prizes in the derby by fraud. The salmon with which they won were purchased previously from Swinomish Indians and kept in a live-box off Hope Island until a few hours before the contest, the two were quoted as saying.

Smith was the object of a wide search today. The other three were held in the county jail.

No traces of suspicion were attached to Evans Manolides who won the top $1,000 prize, nor to Harry Ketchell, who won the fourth prize, also an automobile, the Times said.

THE THRUSH PUTS HIS BACKERS IN A SINGING MOOD

BY HOWARD BARRY.

The Thrush, a 5 year old gelding which had made five unsuccessful starts earlier in the Hawthorne meeting, finally raced himself into such good form that he was able to take advantage of the breaks of luck when they came his way yesterday. After the even money favorite, Opera Star, had been hopelessly pocketed in the stretch while the 9 to 2 second choice, Designer, was quitting after burning himself out in a fast early pace, The Thrush galloped in to score by a length and a half in the Wise Counsellor purse, a six and a half furlong dash which topped yesterday's Hawthorne program. Midair was second and Opera Star third.

Opera Star, Morris Vehon's consistent 5 year old mare, was dropping down in class after she had run out of the money for the first time in 10 starts. Accordingly the betters poured in heavy support. They decided that the chief threat should come from Designer, which had been showing signs of improvement during the Hawthorne meeting. This Lexbrook stable representative was made the 9 to 2 second choice. The LeMar Stock Farm's Midair and Jacobsen and Hough's The Thrush, were held at 5 to 1 and 6 to 1, respectively.

Designer Starts Fast.

Designer went out from the starting gate as tho he were going to make a runaway of this race. He drew clear immediately, and Jockey Al Bodiou put him to a sizzling pace. He was at the quarter in :22 4-5 and at the half in :46 2-5. Meanwhile he was opening up a lead of five lengths over Opera Star and The Thrush, which were racing head and head in second place.

As they came into the stretch, Designer began to show signs that he had had enough. The Thrush and Opera Star moved up steadily and Midair came with them. The Thrush, racing on the outside, found a clear pathway.

Then Jockey Johnny Adams, who was aboard Opera Star, realized that he was being drawn into a cul de sac. Designer was directly in front of him and if he tried to go to the inside, Midair was in his way running beside the rail. To get to the outside he would have to go around The Thrush.

Pulls Up Opera Star.

There was nothing to do but make the best of it and act quickly. So, Adams pulled up Opera Star, sent her to the outside and drove her hard. But it was too late then. The Thrush, racing in the clear, had gone on to certain victory, and Midair had kept his straight path along the rail to take second place by the margin of a head. There was nothing left for the favorite but third.

The Thrush ran the 6½ furlongs in 1:19. Those who backed him in the mutuels collected $14.80, $6.80 and $3.80.

Jockey George South, who suffered a serious head injury when he was kicked by his horse after a fall on Monday, was reported to be in slightly better condition last night in the Garfield Park hospital.

Principe Is Badly Cut During Giants' Scrimmage

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 2.—Dom Principe suffered a deep cut under the chin in the two hour scrimmage held by the New York Giants in a driving rain at the Polo Grounds this morning. Three stitches were taken to close the cut. Coach Steve Owen does not consider Principe's injury serious enough to alter his plan to start the player against the Jersey City Giants on Sunday at the Polo Grounds.

PURDUE ADDS TWO SOPHOMORES TO LIST OF PASSERS

Carter, Cook May Pitch Against Ohio State.

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 2 [Special].—Purdue's football team today worked on offense for the first time this week, holding a lengthy passing drill in preparation for its effort to upset Ohio State's Big Nine defending champions at Columbus Saturday.

The Boilermaker coaches were pleased with the performance of Marion Carter and Walter Cook, sophomore half backs, who have developed rapidly and are expected to strengthen the aerial threat in view of the known ability of Mike Byelene, John Galvin, and Bryan Brock.

Coach Mal Elward indicated that he would stick to the same starting line up against the Buckeyes that faced Butler last Saturday. In the forward wall in addition to Rankin and Combs, ends, Al Rossi and Pete Timperman are slated for the tackles; Jim Miller and Jack Winchell, guards, and Ted Axton, center. Byelene and Galvin will be at the half backs, with John Petty at full back, and Bob Kersey at quarter back.

OHIO WORKS ON PASSES.

Columbus, O., Oct. 2 [Special].—Pass offense and defense was the theme today as Ohio State prepared for the annual battle with Purdue in the Ohio stadium Saturday. Early in the afternoon the Buckeyes brushed up on their aerial offensive, then a reserve team gave the regulars another look at Purdue offensive formations.

There appeared to be some changes in the second and third string teams. Left Half Leslie Horvath was moved up to the first line replacement behind Dick Fisher who is subbing for the injured Jimmy Strausbaugh. Harold Nichols now has first call as Jimmy Langhurst's replacement, having beaten out John Hallabrin. Both are sophomores.

HOOSIERS DRILL FOR TEXAS.

Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 2 [Special].—Indiana's football squad today rehearsed scoring plays and drilled on meeting the types of defense expected in the "promised land," the territory between the opponent's 20 yard line and the end zone.

A defense against passes which the Texas Longhorns are expected to toss Saturday received renewed attention as Coach Bo McMillin expressed dissatisfaction with this phase of yesterday's practice. Execution of general defensive tactics and covering of quick kicks wound up the drill.

WORK ON PASS DEFENSE.

Iowa City, Ia., Oct. 2 [Special].—Pass defense occupied almost the entire practice session at Iowa again today. Only a small portion of the workout was devoted to signal drills and defense against South Dakota plays.

Coach Eddie Anderson said the starting assignment at left half back won't be made until game time Saturday and indicated the starter may not be his first choice for the position.

Registrations Pour in for Sportsman's Park Meeting

Registrations from horsemen now campaigning at Hawthorne continue to pour in on Sportsman's park officials for the meeting opening Monday. Sportsman's park is putting up more money for horsemen than ever before. The minimum purse will be $800.

SCHLITZ, KOENIG EACH WIN 3 IN CLASSIC LEAGUE

Schlitz Beers bowled 2,971 at the White City Recreation, won three games from Blatz, and took third place in the Wednesday division of the Classic league last night. Koenig's three game defeat of the Pabsts gave them second place, one game back of the Monarch Beers, who won two from the Rupperts. In winning two from Ambrosias, Michelobs went into a tie for fourth with the Pabsts. Rupperts shot 1,029 for high game. Frank Jerzyk bowled 665 for high individual series, and Al Kowalski's 257 was high game.

SEEKS NEW BIDS ON 4 PAVING JOBS TO SAVE $168,537

County Commissioner to Urge Use of Concrete.

Rejection of bids for four asphalt paving projects on Pulaski road and a call for new bids, specifying concrete paving, will be asked tomorrow by Commissioner William Busse when the roads and bridges committee of the county board meets.

The bids were opened Monday and will be acted upon by the committee tomorrow. Busse announced that he had compared the Pulaski road costs with bids submitted for two projects on Lincoln avenue where concrete is to be used. The saving, if concrete should be used on Pulaski road, would be $168,537.60, or enough to pave an additional mile of city streets, he asserted.

Low Bids Listed.

The Pulaski road projects, the low bidders, and their bids follow: Armitage avenue to Belmont avenue, the Midwest Construction and Asphalt company, $223,250; Harrison street to Chicago avenue, Rock Road Construction company, $223,009; Chicago avenue to Armitage avenue, Standard Paving company, $233,763, and Cermak road to Harrison street, Union Contracting and Engineering company, $229,890.

Following are the Lincoln avenue projects and the low bidders: Wells street to Fullerton avenue, Robert Anderson, $161,737, and Fullerton avenue to Diversey avenue, $94,110.

The average unit [square yard] cost of asphalt paving complete [excluding excavation, demolition, etc.] was found to be $3.71, Busse asserted. The unit cost of the concrete paving is $2.19, or $1.52 lower. The Pulaski road projects call for a total of 110,880 square yards of paving. This, multiplied by $1.52 gives $168,537.60, which the commissioner declares would be saved.

"Everything should be paved with concrete," said Busse. "It is stronger structurally and gives us a better wearing surface. The maintenance cost is lower, and the life of the paving is longer."

County officials said yesterday that asphalt was specified for Pulaski road because of an agreement between the city and the county and state highway departments that streets and roads always are to be repaved with the same material used in the original paving.

Maj. George Quinlan, superintendent of county highways, said yesterday he was "too busy to talk about it." Asked if Pulaski road is asphalt now he said he was too busy to look it up. Asked if concrete could be used even tho the old paving had been asphalt, he said it could.

BANK WORKER HELD TO JURY IN $40,450 THEFT

Richard O. Fossum, 24 years old, who embezzled $40,450 from the Lake View Trust and Savings bank, where he was employed, was ordered held to the grand jury on charges of embezzlement yesterday by United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker. Fossum was unable to make $5,000 bond. Fossum was arrested in St. Paul Thursday night by government agents, and $37,000 of the money was recovered.

QUIZ 15 COMPANY HEADS ON WORK OF A TAX FIXER

Fifteen officials of Cook county corporations were questioned at the state's attorney's office yesterday in connection with an attempt to fix personal property taxes. At the conclusion of the questioning, Thomas Bugan and Gordon Nash, assistant state's attorneys, said the attempted fix was engineered by a Chicago tax consultant whose name they refused to reveal.

The consultant, said Bugan, visited the various corporations offering his services as a tax expert. He explained that he could save the companies money on their taxes because he knew what exemptions might properly be taken. He accepted a flat fee, or a commission of one-third the money saved.

Instead of finding legal exemptions, however, the tax expert filed fraudulent tax returns and forged the names of the corporation officials to them. He wrote down the property values of one company from $80,000 to $7,000, the investigators said.

Bugan said he doubted that any official or employé of the Cook county assessor's office was involved in the plot. More corporation executives will be questioned today.

SUES TO PREVENT WIDER PAVING ON GRAND AVENUE

An injunction suit which is successful would prevent the city from widening Grand avenue in the 1000 block west was filed yesterday in the Superior court by three property owners, George W. Spousta, George B. Johnson, and Donato Verderana.

The suit is based upon an alleged flaw in the city's acquisition in 1845 of Ogden's addition from William B. Ogden and Caleb O. Halsted, according to Attorney Arthur L. Israel.

His clients, he asserted, actually can claim a portion of the avenue and that while the city has the common law right to use it as a thorofare, the curb line cannot be altered without consent of the property owners, or a suitable settlement. The widening project, which will take four feet from the sidewalks on either side of the avenue, extends from Halsted street to Western avenue.

IT'S A REPUBLIC, NOT DEMOCRACY TO G. O. P. WOMEN

The Woman's Republican Club of Illinois passed a resolution that its members refer to the government of the United States as a "republic" and not as a "democracy" yesterday at its regular meeting in the La Salle hotel. The resolution has as its purpose the aiding of voters who confuse the word "democracy" with the Democratic party, the women said. It was introduced by Mrs. David Greenlees, a member of the board of directors. Letters will be sent by the club to Wendell Willkie and all Republican candidates in Illinois requesting them to remember the resolution in preparing their campaign speeches.

GAMBLER TELLS OF HIS CAREER IN JOHNSON TRIAL

The career of William P. Kelly from stenographer to big time gambler was outlined yesterday to a jury in federal court. Kelly himself gave the sketch in his trial with William R. Johnson, reputed gambling boss, and seven other men, all charged with conspiracy to defraud the government of $1,887,864 in income taxes.

Kelly, 37 years old, is known as the baby of the gambling world. Under questioning by Attorney George F. Callaghan, Kelly said that after finishing high school, he worked as a stenographer. Then he became a salesman. Next he worked at a dog track. From then on, he said, he gambled, and eventually opened the D. and D. gambling house at 1205 North Dearborn street.

He denied that Johnson had any interest in the place. The government contends Johnson was the real owner, and Kelly was merely his employé. Kelly was the third defendant to take the stand. The others were Jack Sommers and Andrew J. Creighton.

PAY-AS-YOU-GO PLAN APPROVED FOR CONGRESS ST.

A joint committee of engineers representing the city, county, state and federal governments will start mapping plans this morning to construct the 40 million dollar Congress street superhighway on a pay-as-you-go basis.

This was announced yesterday by Ald. George D. Kells [28th], chairman of the city council joint subcommittee on superhighways, following a meeting in Mayor Kelly's office. Kells said representatives of the various governments had agreed to the principle of joint financing of the project and the first step will be to arrange for division of the cost.

Ald. Kells' plan calls for spending 10 million dollars a year, of which the city would contribute about 2½ millions from its share of state motor fuel tax revenues.

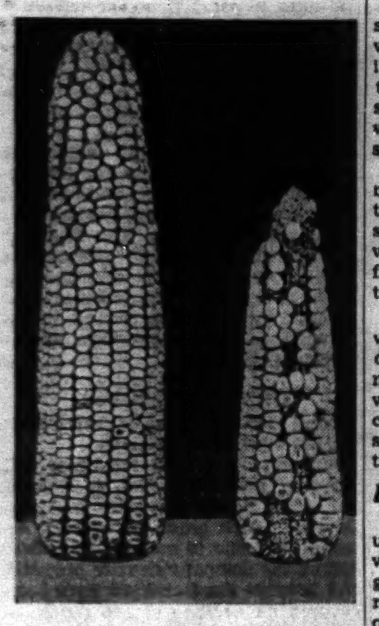
Soft Corn a Problem

Oct. 2, 1940.

WHAT to do with the soft ears of corn that are sure to come rolling into the wagons along with the good ears as the corn picker harvests the crop this fall is puzzling workers at the Du Page county farm. They know there will be some soft corn as a result of killing frosts last week that caught the late ears before they were mature.



Good and poor ears of corn from adjoining hills. Many such small ears will be soft at picking time.

Most of Corn Escaped.

Fortunately most of the corn was too far advanced to be damaged when the frosts came. Scattered thru all the fields, however, were stalks that still were green. It is the ears on these stalks that will give trouble at picking time because they will contain too much moisture to keep well in storage.

Most of the soft ears are small ones that developed on late stalks after the August rains ended the summer drouth. Many of these ears are only partially filled with kernels. This is because most of the pollen on the surrounding stalks was gone before the silks on the late ears were ready to be fertilized. Faulty pollination is one of the most common results of drouth when corn is in the silking and tasseling stage.

The workers plan to toss out the soft ears as the corn pours from the wagons into the elevator that carries it to the storage bins in the combination granary and corn crib. They still have not decided what to do with the soft corn after they get it separated from the good corn.

There are no more green corn blades left in any of the fields. All turned white and started drying up soon after the first heavy frost a week ago tonight. There was some frost three mornings in a row, but the last two times it was light.

The frosts killed some of the late vegetables and flowers in the gardens. Green and lima beans were nipped, and most of the sweet corn was ruined. A small patch of sweet corn on high ground escaped and still is furnishing roasting ears for the table.

Late Potatoes Killed.

Late potato vines were killed. The upper portions of the tomato vines were ruined, but there still are some green leaves and tomatoes underneath that were protected by those on top. These tomatoes now are ripening. So are the ones that were picked off the top parts of the vines and put in a shed the day before the first frost.

Most of the dahlias and zinnias in the flower gardens were ruined, altho some dahlias that were sheltered by a board fence on one side and shrubs on the others were unhurt. The gardeners expect many cut flowers from them before later frosts finally kill them. Morning glories and other tender annuals were killed.

There still are fine blooms on the petunias, snapdragons, delphiniums, and late gladioli. In the vegetable gardens are cabbage, broccoli, celery, endive, turnips, radishes, lettuce, beets, and carrots.

FHA FINANCING FOR SMALL ARMS PLANTS SOUGHT

Step Is Advocated Before Mortgage Bankers.

A suggestion that loans insured by the Federal Housing administration be used in financing smaller defense plants was made yesterday by Byron T. Shutz, president of the Mortgage Bankers Association of America, at the 27th annual convention of the association in the Drake hotel.

Byron T. Shutz.

"Increased industrial activity, due to war orders, is creating a need for new industrial plants," Shutz told 1,100 convention delegates. "That they should be built by government subsidy is both undesirable and unnecessary.

No Help for Small Firms.

"It appears likely that government defense contracts will allow the amortization of the cost of plant expansion in a period of five years. While this provision may be adequate for large industrial concerns, it cannot be relied upon to start a flow of funds toward the small manufacturers because of the uncertainty of the duration of the national defense program.

"If the FHA were to insure such industrial loans, they properly might be acceptable to institutional investors. Granting that the risk to the FHA might be somewhat greater than in the case of housing, it should be possible to set up a system of mortgage insurance which would spread the risk and prevent the hazard from becoming too great."

Wood Addresses Delegates.

Gen. Robert E. Wood, chairman of the board of Sears, Roebuck & Co., in addressing the convention said that the "first impact of a decline in population growth is on real estate values." After years of rapidly expanding population, he said, America now must meet a situation created by smaller growth. The trend of population has a vital bearing on nearly every business, he asserted.

Stephen G. Cohn of Dovenmuehle, Inc., Chicago, urged the group to take advantage of the business getting opportunities offered by their metropolitan newspapers, which, he added, should be the backbone of any new business campaign.

A. O. Smith Gets $3,561,000 Demolition Bomb Order

The A. O. Smith corporation, Milwaukee, manufacturer of automobile frames, yesterday received its first direct defense contract—a $3,561,000 order for aerial bomb casings. Production is expected to start in February. During the world war, the company produced 3,000 bombs a day.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK

Hog prices reacted yesterday after an attempt to extend Tuesday's rally. The close was steady to 10 cents lower. The average was unchanged, at $6.35 a hundredweight.

"Lard hogs" were again in best demand, altho these also lost the 10 cent gains run up on the first rounds.

Most steers and yearlings were strong to 25 cents higher, with the long fed stock equaling the 1940 peak of $13.90.

OPERATING RATIOS.

Can you give me the ratio of 1939 earnings to the net worth, total assets, and sales of some of the leading chemical companies?—W. H.

Answer: The ratios of 1939 net income of four leading chemical companies to net worth, assets and sales are compared in the following table:

Allied Chemical	12.45%	5.20%	12.83%
Du Pont	14.42	10.87	21.19
Eastman Kodak	12.18	10.08	15.35
Union Carbide	13.07	10.64	21.04

Comparative earnings statement and balance sheet ratios for 350 important industrial corporations for the last seven years are available to the Investors' Guide. The financial and operating ratios of any one of these companies or for several companies in one industrial group may be obtained by sending a request and a stamped, addressed envelope to the Investors' Guide.

OHIO POWER 3¼s.

What is the standing of Ohio Power 3¼ per cent bonds?—C. G.

Answer: The first mortgage 3¼ per cent bonds due Oct. 1, 1968, of the Ohio Power company are considered a high grade investment because the issue is secured by a first lien on the company's entire property and because fixed charges have been covered an average of 2.66 times, an ample margin, in the last 10 years.

RETIRES IN 1942.

If a man who has earned $150 a month regularly for 5 years becomes 65 years old and retires in March, 1942, what will his monthly old age benefit be and what benefit will his wife receive? —R. E.

Answer: He will receive a monthly old age benefit of $31.50 and, when his wife is 65, she will receive $15.75, or a total of $47.25 for both of them. Forms for estimating social security benefits which may accrue to a worker and his family may be obtained by sending a request and a stamped, addressed envelope to the Investors' Guide.

NEW DEAL PRIES INTO CONTROL OF 200 FIRMS

Report Termed Plot to Smear Willkie.

BY JOHN FISHER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 2.—The temporary national economic [monopoly probe] committee today released a preliminary statement on results of a secret prying expedition by the Securities and Exchange commission into control of American corporations, tending to show concentration of such control in the du Pont, Mellon, and Rockefeller families.

Senator Joseph O'Mahoney.

Release of the survey as part of the monopoly committee's investigation was contrary to a previous SEC promise not to issue reports prior to the November elections. Today's maneuver was immediately interpreted here as administration propaganda to attempt a "smear" of Wendell L. Willkie.

The New Dealers have pinned their campaign hopes on tagging Mr. Willkie as a representative of "big business" thereby hoping to antagonize labor against the Republican candidate.

O'Mahoney Apologetic.

Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney [D., Wyo.], New Dealer who holds the chairmanship of the monopoly committee, was half apologetic on issuing a statement containing the "highlights" of the SEC report. The report itself was not released.

O'Mahoney claimed this preliminary statement was released because of premature publication of a story on the study in a local newspaper today. He described the study, entitled "The Distribution of Ownership in the 200 Largest Nonfinancial Corporations," as "information bearing upon the problems of concentration of economic power." He emphasized that it had not yet been accepted officially and therefore does not necessarily represent the views of the committee. Any comment the corporations now care to make will be received as part of the printed record, O'Mahoney said.

Report "Confidential."

The report was prepared "confidentially" for full play publicity by the SEC staff after delving into its files.

The "highlights" which the SEC and TNEC chose to publicize include the following:

"The 200 corporations account for the bulk of activities in manufacturing, mining, electric, and gas utilities, transportation, and communication. Consequently an analysis of who owns them indicates the extent of concentration of ownership of much of the nation's productive facilities.

"Three family groups, the du Ponts, Mellons, and Rockefellers, have shareholdings, valued at nearly 1 billion, 400 million dollars which are so placed as to give them considerable influence, if not control, over 15 of the 200 largest nonfinancial corporations.

"Thirteen family groups, of which these three are a part, have holdings worth 2 billion, 700 million dollars, representing 8 per cent of the stock of the 200 corporations. Only half of the large shareholdings of the individuals in the 200 corporations are in the direct form of outright ownership. The other half is represented by trust funds, estates, and family holding companies."

Du Pont Holdings Largest.

The report said that the du Pont family is the most powerful of the three families mentioned, with control of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., General Motors corporation, and the United States Rubber corporation. The du Pont family holdings were estimated at more than 550 million dollars, while holdings of the Mellon and Rockefeller families were placed at close to 400 millions each.

President Roosevelt's son, Franklin D. Jr., married into the du Pont family, his wife being the former Ethel du Pont. Nelson Rockefeller, son of John D.—who is head of the Rockefeller clan — was recently brought into the administration by Mr. Roosevelt to head a state department division on improving cultural relations with Pan-American nations.

Large Buyers Take Most of Canadian Loan

Insurance, industrial and other corporations purchased a large share of Canada's recent $300,000,000 second war loan, investment dealers said yesterday. The subscriptions by small investors were not as large as they are expected to be on later issues.

The Canadian loan was offered early in September and when the books were closed two weeks ago it was announced that it had been over-subscribed by about $42,000,000. The loan was offered at 98¾, bears a 3 per cent interest rate and is due Oct. 1, 1952.

Chicago investment bankers said that before the loan was formally offered, a preferred list of large individual investors was made up. This list included the principal Canadian companies and Canadian branches of American companies.

Big Allotments Boosted.

The leading Canadian investment bankers cooperated with Canadian treasury officials in preparing the list and in allotting what was considered a fair amount of bonds to the individual purchasers.

Allotments to corporations were increased when the subscriptions by the general public fell below expectations.

The necessity of building up reserves to meet rising taxes was said to have restricted subscriptions by small investors. Persons of limited means have also faced heavy demands for war charities and have been investing their cash reserves in war savings certificates.

Smaller Amounts Desired.

The smallest denomination offered was a $100 bond. Some demand was reported for bonds of smaller denominations by persons who could not afford to purchase a $100 issue.

With the entire Canadian loan sold, efforts may now be made to redistribute a considerable part of it among smaller investors. Investment bankers were gradually picking up bonds bought by the large individual and corporate purchasers for resale to the public, it was said. One purpose of this move is to enable the larger buyers to enter original subscriptions on later issues.

Canadian war loan bonds cannot be sold in the United States because of the neutrality law.

NEWARK SEEKING FUNDS TO REOPEN ITS CITY AIRPORT

Newark, N. J., Oct. 2 [Special].—Definite action to reopen Newark airport was taken today when residents of New Jersey asked by a committee appointed by Gov. A. Harry Moore to subscribe $100,000 for stock in a private airport operating company. The company will lease facilities of the airport to commercial aviation concerns.

Newark airport, known a few years ago as the busiest commercial airport in the nation, was shut down when major airlines refused to continue to pay assessments prevailing before the opening of New York City's municipal airport resulted in a curtailment of scheduled service out of Newark.

Richard Weil Jr., Newark business man who is chairman of the committee, said tonight that about $30,000 already had been subscribed for the operating company. The plan calls for the amortization of the subscription over a ten year period at five per cent interest.

The city of Newark owns the property on which the airport is situated.

EASTERN BANKS BOOST DEPOSITS TO PEAK LEVELS

New York, Oct. 2 (AP).—The quarterly condition statements of the big eastern banks disclosed today a rising trend in lending and a further increase in deposits, some to record highs.

A survey of New York banks indicated an expansion in inquiries for financing in connection with the defense program. Not many of the queries, however, have been translated into loans.

Deposits and resources of the Chase National bank, largest in the country, rose to new highs in the three months from June to September.

Reports of major banks for the quarter ended Sept. 30, with comparisons for the preceding quarter, follow [in thousands of dollars]:

RAIL AND STEEL STOCKS FOLLOW CHEMICALS UP

Late Rally Extends Rise Thru 4 Days.

New York, Oct. 2 (AP).—Rails and steels followed the lead of chemicals today in a late advance which carried the whole stock market higher.

Individual gains were not large, but the uplift overcame four hours of lethargy imposed by cautious testing of resistance levels.

The Associated Press average of 60 selected stocks rose .3 of a point to 45.4. It was the fourth consecutive rising session. Transactions totaled 769,900 shares, compared with 807,100 yesterday. Nearly half the total action occurred in the final hour.

Business Indices Rising.

Analysts viewed the movement as almost entirely technical, and some operators said they were basing their position on developments solely within the market itself.

The indices of domestic business and industrial activities continued to show improvement; freight car loadings were estimated at a new peak for the year; electric power output reached an all time peak last week. The price of steel scrap rose 50 cents a ton in Pittsburgh.

Steels Among Gainers.

Leaders in the stock upturn were United States Steel, Bethlehem, Crucible Steel, Chrysler, Case, Owens-Illinois, Allied Chemical, Dow Chemical, Union Carbide, Johns-Manville, Phelps-Dodge, Santa Fe, New York Central, Pennsylvania railroad, Cerro de Pasco, and Electric Boat.

Among the gainers of a point or more in the Curb—where the turnover was 107,000 shares, compared with 111,000 yesterday—were American Cyanamid "B," Aviation and Transportation, Midwest Pipe and Supply, Pioneer Gold, and Sherwin-Williams.

AMERICAN STOVE VOTES DIVIDEND TWICE OLD RATE

American Stove company, St. Louis, Mo., one of the nation's largest stove manufacturers, announced yesterday that it will pay a dividend of 50 cents a share on its common stock on Nov. 1. The company previously had paid three quarterly dividends of 25 cents each so far this year. Payments last year totaled $1.75 a share.

BARS DIVIDENDS BY UTILITY UNTIL NOTE IS RETIRED

Washington, D. C., Oct. 2 (AP).—Taking issue with a federal judge in New York, the Securities and Exchange commission ruled today that Northeastern Water and Electric corporation could not pay dividends on its capital stock so long as any part of a $1,000,000 note which it proposed to issue remained unpaid.

Northeastern, a unit in the Associated Gas and Electric company system, wanted to issue the note in connection with the purchase of Union Water Service company.

[The SEC approved the purchase with the dividend restriction.]

Two weeks ago Federal Judge Vincent L. Leibell, in whose court a reorganization of the Associated Gas system is pending, said that it would be "unreasonable" for the SEC to order the dividends withheld.

Tells Chicago Area Aims in Arms Making

Col. Donald Armstrong, executive officer of the Chicago army ordnance district, told the Chicago Association of Commerce yesterday that the objective of his office is to make this area self-sufficient, in that it will be capable of producing every kind of ordnance equipment required of it. He spoke at the association's first meeting of the 1940-'41 season in the Palmer House.

"This district, which includes most of Illinois, northern Indiana, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, and North and South Dakota, is playing a tremendous part in the rearmament of the nation," Col. Armstrong asserted, "and it is going to do more.

Millions Spent in Chicago.

"Millions of dollars of the most important contracts have come to firms located in Chicago. The Chicago area is going to participate in a major fashion in the rearmament of field artillery and infantry.

"The manufacture of the medium tank, the 105 mm. howitzer carriage, the 155 mm. gun carriage, and the development of the 240 mm. howitzer carriage, which are some of the most vital phases of rearmament, are located here.

"In addition, this office is making contracts for millions of dollars worth of ammunition components, expected to aggregate 40 million dollars."

Col. Armstrong denied that the army or the navy was responsible for the fact that the Chicago area in the past did not have a proportion of rearmament business commensurate with its industrial importance.

Competitive Bidding a Factor.

"If the district failed in the past to get its share, the reason is that in competitive bidding the low bidder frequently has been in the east. I have inquired why. I don't know the answer yet, but Chicago is coming into its own and is handling a fair share of the output this year."

Col. Armstrong said the average annual appropriation for the army ordnance department in the years since the world war has been 25 million dollars; that it was 134 millions for armament alone in the last fiscal year, and that in the present fiscal year the ordnance department will spend about 2 billions.

ARMS SPENDING FOR QUARTER SET AT 594 MILLIONS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 2 (AP).—Cash expenditures of $594,975,389 for defense purposes during the first quarter of the present fiscal year were reported today by the treasury. The defense commission, meanwhile, said it had approved contracts aggregating $7,660,000,000 in approximately the same period.

Altho proportionately far short of the $5,000,000,000 which the budget bureau has estimated will be expended during the year the cash outgo figures, announced by the treasury, showed a steady increase from month to month. The September figure, $218,432,482, was double that of last year.

All treasury outlays for the quarter totaled $2,299,266,771, compared with receipts of $1,489,000,676, with a consequent deficit of $810,266,095. The deficit for the same period a year ago was $976,060,301.

The public debt rose $1,105,409,209 in the quarter to a record high of $44,072,940,246.

FIELD OFFERS TO BUY CONTROL OF N. Y. TABLOID

New York, Oct. 2 [Special].—The management of P. M., the afternoon tabloid newspaper which made its initial appearance on June 18, is considering selling control to Marshall Field III., Ralph Ingersoll, publisher, said today.

He confirmed a report that Field, one of the 18 stockholders who invested a total of $1,500,000 in the paper, had offered $300,000 to pay off his colleagues at 20 cents on the dollar, and had offered $500,000 new capital to enable the paper to carry on.

If Field's offer is accepted it was said that a new company will be formed in which the old stockholders will receive a special class B nonvoting common stock entitling them to 15 per cent of the equity and assets.

LAKE SHORE CLUB GETS $475,000 MORTGAGE LOAN

The 850 Lake Shore corporation, owner of the Lake Shore Club of Chicago, Lake Shore drive and Chestnut street, yesterday negotiated a $475,000 10 year mortgage, at 4½ per cent interest, with the RFC Mortgage company.

H. E. Devereaux, secretary of the corporation operating the club, said the loan will be used to pay back taxes and expenses incident to the reorganization of the property, formerly the Lake Shore Athletic club.

The corporation has a 15 year lease on the property, with an option to buy.

15,000 WRIGLEY SHARES ARE SOLD 'OVER COUNTER'

A block of 15,000 shares of William Wrigley Jr. company's capital stock was sold over the counter yesterday at $80.25 a share by Smith, Barney & Co., underwriting house. The stock was released for sale after the New York Stock exchange had closed and was purchased by securities dealers.

Wrigley stock closed on the New York exchange at $82 a share, and closed an hour later on the Chicago Stock exchange at $82.50. J. C. Cox, first vice president of the company, said that the sale of the stock was not made by an officer or director of the company.

3 MORE ITALIAN BOND ISSUES GO INTO DEFAULT

New York, Oct. 2 (AP).—Three more issues were added today to the list of Italian dollar bonds on which interest payments have been defaulted since Italy's entrance into the war.

At the same time a new tangle developed in efforts to clear the status of Dominican Republic obligations held in the United States, when more than $3,000,000 of an issue due in 1940 went unpaid.

Defaulted Italian issues were City of Milan 6½s of 1952, Venetian Mortgage Bank 7s of 1952, and Adriatic Electric company 7s of 1952.

Report Offer of Lire.

It was understood Italian exchange authorities offered to supply lire instead of dollars, but such money would be of value chiefly in Italy.

Dollar resources of Italy held in this country are estimated at about $30,000,000. Government figures indicate the Italian debt held in the United States totals $73,600,000.

The $3,000,000 to $3,500,000 of Dominican bonds affected represented the unextended part of the republic's debt of $16,000,000. Bulk of the debt was extended in maturity in 1934 by arrangement between the United States and Dominican government, with the approval of the foreign bondholders' protective council.

Order "Flat" Dealings.

The interest on the issue affected today, the 5½s due nominally Oct. 1, 1940, was made available. The New York Stock exchange ruled that henceforth the bonds would be dealt in "flat," or without computation of accrued interest.

A change of status in the bonds was arranged between the United States and the republic last month. Financial circles are in the dark as to exact plans for the bonds.

PRESIDENT GETS WOOL LABEL BILL AFTER 25 YEARS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 2 (AP).—The senate accepted today a conference report on a wool labeling bill and sent it to the White House, thus completing congressional action on legislation of a kind which had been pending in either the house or the senate for more than 25 years. The vote was 31 to 18.

The bill provides that all woolen articles must bear labels showing their exact fiber content, including percentages of new and reclaimed wool. New or virgin wool would be labeled simply "wool," as distinguished from "reprocessed" and "reused" wool fiber. The federal trade commission would enforce the measure.

WOMAN EXECUTIVE'S STORE SALES REACH PEAK AT 10 MILLIONS

New York, Oct. 2 (AP).—Mrs. Hortense M. Odlum, chief executive of the Fifth avenue department store, Bonwit Teller, Inc., announced today that sales so far this year have passed $10,000,000, higher than any full year on record. The previous peak was $9,750,000 in 1938.

Mrs. Hortense Odlum.

When Mrs. Odlum took over in 1934 volume had dwindled to $3,500,000.

Mrs. Odlum said she foresaw good business in the fall and winter season. September sales, she said, were the largest for that month in the store's history.

Warns Military Dictatorship Threatens Us

Dr. Virgil Jordan, president of the National Industrial Conference board, declared yesterday that the American economic system is in the grip of a political dictatorship, which "will probably develop into a military dictatorship of the same kind as in all the rest of the world."

He addressed some 350 members of the Farm Equipment institute on the second day of their 47th convention in the Edgewater Beach hotel.

With the assertion that the American republic has collapsed during the last decade, Dr. Jordan said that this political dictatorship "has been made practically complete by recent authority to conscript persons and to confiscate property at executive discretion."

May Become Permanent.

"It will probably become permanent if the persons who now hold it continue in office," he said.

He predicted that the government will continue to plunge into insolvency by spending the "community's income and savings to employ people in military occupations and production of war equipment."

Altho business and industrial activity will be stimulated, this policy will result in destruction of the means for producing ordinary economic requirements, Dr. Jordan said.

Means Low Living Standards.

"It will result in a steady and rapid decline in the standard of living, and, when the process stops, in the most profound depression," he said. Dr. Jordan concluded that it probably would take the rest of the century "to emerge from the economic disintegration which will result from this war."

The National Industrial Conference board, which Dr. Jordan heads, is a research and statistical organization supported by industries thruout the country.

CHICAGO STEEL PLANT CAPACITY BEING EXPANDED

Carnegie to Build 2 Electric Furnaces.

With defense and general industrial steel orders expanding rapidly, the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation announced yesterday that work has been started at the South Works, Chicago, on two additional electric furnaces, which will increase its special steel capacity by 100,000 tons annually, more than doubling present capacity.

Electric furnaces are used for the production of stainless and other special steels. Chicago already is the center of stainless steel manufacture for Carnegie-Illinois—largest operating subsidiary of the United States Steel corporation. Cost of the new furnaces was not given, but it was reported in the industry that they will probably total about $3,500,000.

Pig Iron Demand Rising.

Indicating the wide demand from general industry for merchant pig iron—the raw pig iron—it was disclosed yesterday that the Interlake Iron corporation has five of its six blast furnaces in operation. Both the company's Chicago blast furnaces are operating, two at Toledo, and one at Duluth. The only one not functioning is a small one at Erie, Pa.

Merchant pig iron is used by automobile and a wide variety of companies that require iron castings, malleable irons, and other items.

Orders Still Increasing.

The magazine Iron Age reported yesterday that altho the ingot production of the country has remained almost stationary for three consecutive weeks at 93 per cent of capacity, the trend of orders and inquiries and the volume of prospective work is up, backlogs are accumulating and deliveries on a number of products are lengthening.

Contributing to the high rate apart from defense are the automobile industry, now approaching the 100,000 car weekly rate, and the railroads, which in September bought 11,220 freight cars.

Iron and steel exports in August were the largest in history, the department of commerce reported yesterday. Shipments worth $53,870,693 totaled 1,045,084 gross tons of which the United Kingdom took more than half. The July total was 707,809 tons worth $39,511,996.

PUT 20 MILLIONS INTO SHIPS FOR ORIENT SERVICE

Nine More Vessels Will Run from Northwest.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 2 (AP).—Expansion of American flag steamship service between the Pacific northwest and the Orient was approved today by the maritime commission.

New service from Columbia river ports will be conducted by the American Mail Line, which already operates from Puget sound to the orient.

The commission approved a 20 million dollar program for nine new freighters for the enlarged Pacific northwest-orient run. Six will be of the C-2 type with a speed of 15½ knots, and three of the C-1 type, 14 knots.

First of the new vessels is scheduled for delivery to the American Mail Line next January, and is expected to be the Cape Alava, recently launched by the Seattle-Tacoma ship building corporation. The Cape Alava is the first ocean going merchant ship to be built in the Pacific northwest since the world war period.

All of the new ships will be placed in service by 1942, the commission said. They will replace six older vessels now being used.

The expanded program calls for a minimum of 32 sailings a year, 12 from Columbia river ports and 20 from Pugent Sound ports.

Stocks, Bonds

New York Bonds.

New York, Oct. 2 (AP).—Railroad issues clung firmly to their position as pacemaker for a rising bond market today.

Japanese bonds rallied strongly and fresh gains in British empire and South American loans gave the foreign section numerous gains of 1 to 4 points.

United States governments were quiet and ended up 4/32 of a point to that much lower.

Chicago Stocks.

ELECTRIC POWER OUTPUT REACHES ALL-TIME PEAK

Central Industrial Area Has Largest Gain.

The electric light and power industry of the United States produced 2,669,661,000 kilowatt hours of electricity last week, the largest output ever recorded, the Edison Electric institute reported yesterday. The previous all-time high was set last year in the week ended Dec. 23, when production totaled 2,641,458,000 kilowatt hours.

The central industrial area of the country, of which Chicago is the hub, continued to lead other sections in increased power output. Production of electricity in this area last week was 11 per cent larger than in the corresponding week last year.

The Commonwealth Edison company, Chicago, reported its output last week aggregated 159,504,000 kilowatt hours, compared with 157,565,000 in the preceding week and 154,490,000 in the corresponding 1939 period. Output was 3.2 per cent above a year earlier.

National output last week was 1.6 per cent larger than a week earlier, when production aggregated 2,628,667,000 kilowatt hours and was up 8.1 per cent from the corresponding week in 1939, when output totaled 2,469,689,000 kilowatt hours.

All major geographical sections recorded gains over last year. Year to year increases were west central, 9 per cent; southern states and the Pacific coast area, each 7.7 per cent; middle Atlantic, 5.6 per cent; Rocky mountain area, 2.9 per cent, and New England, 1.1 per cent.

PROTEST LETTING NLRB PASS ON DEFENSE ORDERS

Illinois Companies Assail Hillman Policy.

The Illinois Manufacturers' association yesterday protested to the national defense commission against the policy that will permit the National Labor Relations board and the department of labor to pass on the eligibility of companies seeking defense contracts.

The association described as "arbitrary and dictatorial" the new policy outlined in Washington Tuesday by Sidney Hillman, labor representative on the defense commission. Hillman said that in the future the war and navy departments will not award contracts to companies that have been cited by the NLRB and the labor department for violations of the Wagner and Walsh-Healey acts.

Brig. Gen. Thomas S. Hammond, chairman of the association's national defense committee, declared in a statement submitted to William S. Knudsen, acting chairman of the defense commission, that the NLRB was not fit to pass on the eligibility of companies participating in the defense program.

The board's "prejudice and partisanship" is well known, he said.

A.T.&T. Subsidiaries Have Big Station Gain in Month

New York, Oct. 2 (AP).—A gain of 109,900 telephones in service during September was reported today by principal subsidiaries of American Telephone & Telegraph company.

In August a gain of 66,300 phones was reported. In September, 1939, an increase of 93,900 phones was reported. Total phones in operation in the system at the end of September this year numbered 17,181,800.

PENNROAD DENIES IMPROPER USE OF INVESTED FUNDS

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 2 (AP).—Pennroad corporation, an affiliate of the Pennsylvania railroad, denied in answers to three independent suits in federal court today that there were any improprieties in the handling of its funds. Three suits, filed separately by three stockholders during the last year, asked for an accounting of their investment of $141,285,000 in the securities of the corporation. The stockholders charged that the voting trustees of Pennroad and some of its officers and directors, who held interlocking posts with the railroad, specifically "lost" $13,000,000 or more trying to help the Pennsylvania railroad obtain domination in the eastern area of the United States. The stockholders are Mrs. Ione M. Overfield of Salt Lake City, Utah, Grace Stein Weigle, Chicago, and David Steckler, New York City.

20 MILLION U. S. LOAN AGREED ON FOR ARGENTINA

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 2 (AP).—Warren Lee Pierson, president of the United States Export-Import bank, announced today details had been completed for the granting of a $20,000,000 credit to the Argentine government.

The bank some time ago indicated its readiness to make funds available for the purchase of industrial materials and equipment in the United States.

Pierson, who has been here since Sept. 23, will leave tomorrow for Santiago, Chile. He intimated further coöperation with the Argentine government may come later, but said no other credits were planned for the time being.

New York Curb to Reduce Associate Member Fees

New York, Oct. 2 [Special].—Initiation fees for associate memberships in the New York Curb exchange are to be slashed sharply if members approve a step taken today. The board of governors approved a constitutional amendment to reduce the cost from $2,500 to $1,500 so long as the price of a regular seat remains below $10,000, and to allow new associates to pay their fees in three equal annual installments.

Timken Roller Purchases 60 Ton Electric Furnace

Canton, O., Oct. 2 (AP).—The Timken Roller Bearing company announced today it had ordered a 60-ton electric furnace to cost $500,000 and to be completed by Feb. 15. The equipment will meet increased steel requirements in connection with defense orders. Republic Steel corporation is building three 50-ton electric furnaces.

People and Events

Dr. Melchior Palyi, economist, and Dr. Charles C. Smith of the National Association of Manufacturers will be among the speakers at the 22d annual convention of the National Restaurant association to be held in Chicago next Monday thru Friday.

The first convention of the Federation of Sewage Works association will open today at the Hotel Sherman. About 700 municipal sanitary officials and waterworks engineers from all parts of the country are expected to attend.

Personal Loans

On Your Own Signature

Here salaried men and women [single or married] can get $25 to $250 or more entirely on earning capacity and personal responsibility. We prefer to make these loans the way most people like—without security—without endorsers.

NO WAGE ASSIGNMENTS.

Simply do this:

1. Make application. [Can be in person or by phone.]
2. Come in, sign and get the cash.

Pick Your Own Payments.

Take a year, or more, to repay. You know best how much you can afford each month—you name the payment which best fits your income.

PRIVACY.

We keep the entire transaction strictly between us. Your employer, friends, or relatives are not notified.

SIMPLE TO GET.

Our loans are made on the simple basis of your ability to make small, regular payments, and if you can, you should not hesitate to see us for a loan at once. Come in or telephone.

Winners in Tribune's American Fashions Contest—California Woman Artist Takes First Prize

In another variation of the costume, the model removes both jacket and lame skirt, leaving a chic evening gown.
